Provocateurs in Church Will Be Suppressed; Jews Arrested.

'Worst Yet to Come,' Pope Tells Germans

Urges Faithful Remain Steadfast, Assails 'Pagan' Drive.

The German Situation.

Pope Pius called on German Catholics to remain steadfast, and warned more difficult times were likely to come.

By the United Press.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Translating into action his pledge to purge Germany of Jewish, Catholic and other "enemies of the state," Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels today launched a campaign against "Catholic provocateurs."

Simultaneously Nazi courts imposed death sentences on Communists while authorities throughout the Reich, preliminary to the ban against Jewish-Aryan marriages, arrested scores of Jews for "race pollution."

Hans Hinkel, commissar for supervising Jewish cultural activities, ordered all such Jewish organizations to join the "Reich union of Jewish cultural associations" before September 1. Headquarters of the association have been established in Berlin under Hinkel's direct supervision.

People Are Warned.

They were signed by the Berlin division of the Nazi party, of which Goebbels is chief.

"German people! Beware! Protect yourselves against those who come in sheep's clothing but who are vicious wolves," the placards said.

They revived complaints of a Catholic-Communist conspiracy, saying:

"While the Fuehrer is bringing to a victoriocs close the hardest fight in history for the work and freedom of the German people, Centrist politicians are working hand in hand with Bolshevism, using its methods against the National Socialist state, which saved Europe and its culture from Bolshevist destruction.

"Beware of traitors who seek to do their dirty political work under the mask of religion. The eternal enemies of the Reich want to destroy German unity.

"The government and the party will make an end to this shameless activity.

Provocation Alleged.

"Certain agitators are at work to draw you into the Kultur fight. They misuse religion for disgraceful political purposes."

Four other Communists were sentenced to from 12 to 15 years in prison.

Eight Jews and eight Aryan girls at Liegnitz and four Jews and four Aryan girls at Goerlitz were arrested for "conduct immediately threatening public security." They were sent to concentration camps.

U. S. Expresses Regret Cartoon Irked Mikado

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday expressed to Hirosi Saito, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, regret that Vanity Fair's caricature lampooning Nippon's revered Emperor Hirohito was misunderstood in that country.

Hull made his statement after Saito, in friendly fashion and without any harshness, pointed out to the Secretary of State that the magazine's humorous portrayal of the Emperor pulling a jinrikisha bearing what purported to be the Nobel Peace Prize, was offensive to the Japanese people and had created resentment among them.

The Secretary of State pointed out that this Government exercised no control whatever over the press of this country—an observation well known to the Japanese Ambassador, who has as good an understanding of American political philosophy and practices as any diplomat in Washington.

But Saito did not come to the State Department of his own volition. He was ordered by his government to suspend his vacation in Connecticut to come to the Capital's heat to make representations.

Secretary Hull apparently appreciated the embarrassing position Nippon's Ambassador was in and he wanted to say something which would appease the jingoist element in Japan and close the incident without further ado.

On the other hand, Hull could not concede that the Japanese government had the right to exercise an indirect censorship over the American press.

After the meeting, which took place in the privacy of Hull's office, the State Department informally described what took place, as follows: :

"The Secretary of State in replying to the representations of the Ambassador of Japan relative to material which appeared in the

Greece Stems Crete Revolt; Six Killed

Rioters Steal Guns, Sack Offices in One-Day Uprising.

By the Associated Press.

Athens, Greece, Aug. 5.—Complete order has been restored everywhere in the rebellious Isle of Crete, the government announced tonight, after a short-lived revolt by 4,000 strikers had taken a reported toll of 6 dead and nearly 40 wounded.

The riotous strikers, who early today overwhelmed government forces in Candia, sacked the administrative offices and fought in the streets with stolen weapons, capitulated late today.

They dispersed peacefully and were given until morning to surrender all the stolen arms or face drastic measures, Gen. Bakopoulos, in command of the trouble zone, reported to Athens.

Six strikers were reported killed. The wounded included 20 strikers, 5 officers, 8 soldiers and 4 gendarmes.

Two Ships Recalled.

Two warships sent toward Crete at the first news of the revolt, along with a squadron of bombing planes and troop reinforcements, were recalled.

Five months ago Crete was the scene of an unsuccessful uprising led by former Premier Venizelos, adherents of whom were blamed in some government quarters for today's trouble.

The trouble, arising from a passive strike Sunday, flared this morning in front of the prefecture at Candia (also known as Erakleion), where the strikers gathered to shout their demands for increased wages and shorter hours.

Sharp fighting followed their defiance of orders to disband. Gunsmiths' shops were raided, rifles and revolvers seized and pitched battles began in the streets.

Gen. Bakopoulos warned the strikers his men would fire unless they withdrew from the streets and when they refused a frantic plea for troop reinforcements was sent to Athens.

As two destroyers and the bombers started toward the island word came that order had been restored.

(In Tesse-La-Madeleine, France, the exiled Venizelos said he knew nothing of today's revolt and expressed surprise "that he is accused of instigating it.")

Martial law was declared during the rioting.

Although the politically harassed Greek governmdent blamed the trouble on political foes, the Greek Labor Guild said authorities were at fault for not meeting the workers' demands for better wages.

The question of restoration of the monarchy was believed generally to have had no connection with the rebellion, although it was recalled there has been a campaign by Royalists since March to connect Republicanism with Venizelism.

(Former King George of Greece, in London, denied through his aide-de-camp a report that the deposed monarch was negotiating for a reconciliation with Venizelos.)

Theater and union officials tried to straighten out the controversy.

The three theater chains recently served notice they would cut wages of machine operators in their 150 show houses from $2.12½ an hour to $1.25. Those operators are members of Local No. 306.

Today the 12 unions made known that if the pay cut is made effective, 20,000 sympathetic theater employes would walk out. All of the unions are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Typhoon Wrecks 2,000 Homes, Kills Hundreds in South China

By the Associated Press.

Amoy, China, Aug. 5.—China, already suffering from the severest floods in years, was dealt another blow by Nature today when a typhoon tore through southern Fukien Province, leaving hundreds dead.

Fragmentary reports from interior points said many of the victims were drowned. Streams were flooded and many villages were completely inundated.

Fears were increased by weather predictions that a similar storm was on its way.

The typhoon affected virtually every section of the southern half of the great province, centering at Chaunchow, 100 miles north of Amoy. There 2,000 homes were reported destroyed.

It was described as the worst typhoon to strike China's south coast in many years.

Fukien is one of south China's three maritime provinces and much tea is grown there. The province has an estimated population of 20,000,000.

It lies immediately opposite the Japanese-owned island of Formosa, which was battered July 30 by a typhoon, which also struck the Foochow section of China.

Many persons were injured and property damage was large. The present typhoon is the fourth of the season in that section.

Recent floods in the Yangtze River Valley made 10,000,000 homeless and thousands were drowned.

'Hunch' Recovers $100,000 Necklace

New York, Aug. 5. — Two young detectives who had a hunch tonight seized a Negro ported with a $100,000 pearl necklace in his pocket, portions of which he had pawned from time to time—when he needed money—for a total of $90.

The necklace was lost more than four years ago in a dress shop by Mrs. Grafton W. Minot, socially prominent New Yorker now at Chateau d'Azay-Sur-Indre, France.

Her husband formerly was attached to the United States Embassy at Berlin.

Detectives Raymond Henshaw and Charles Beaky were walking through the Wall street sector tonight when they saw a Negro emerge from a financial district skyscraper.

He looked vaguely "suspicious," they agreed, so they trailed him to a nearby park, where they halted and searched him.

The prisoner, James Hinton, 42, porter for a paper company, said the gems had been found May 6, 1931, by his wife, Esther, who worked as a maid at the Modiste Shop frequently patronized by Mrs. Minot.

Pension Veto, Oil Bill Slated For Messages

President Wins Agreement on Petroleum Rule by States.

As steps toward winding up this session of Congress, President Roosevelt yesterday started preparations for two more messages to Congress—one urging adoption of mild oil control legislation and the other, it is reported, vetoing the bill restoring full pensions to Spanish-American War veterans.

The President succeeded in getting his Administration aids and Congressional leaders into virtual agreement on oil-control legislation at a White House conference. It was decided to proceed at once with the Cole petroleum bill in substantially its present form. While this is not satisfactory to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, he realizes that he cannot get more at this session of Congress and has agreed to its passage as a stop-gap measure.

No Compulsory Control.

The basis for the oil legislation was agreed on at a conference attended by Ickes, Charles Fahy, chairman of the Petroleum Board; Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma; Chairman Sam Rayburn of the House Interstate Commerce Committee; Representative William P. Cole (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman of an Interstate Commerce sub-committee and author of the measure which found favor, and Representative Wesley E. Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma.

The Cole bill has been a bone of contention for several months, being criticized on the ground that it does not go far enough because it fails to provide for compulsory control of oil production. It is based on voluntary effort and enforcement of State compacts relating to production quotas.

The proposed legislation would set up an oil board, chiefly a research and fact-finding agency, but which also would have a hand in supervising State compacts which have been ratified so far by Okla-

White House May Approve Utility Shift

Roosevelt Is Willing to Accept Revised Bill Is Report.

'Death Clause' Principle Must Be Retained; Hurley Is Called.

Utilities Developments.

President Roosevelt was reported willing to approve a compromise on the utility holding company measure providing it contains the principle of ultimate abolition of "unnecessary" holding concerns.

E. P. Cramer, who suggested a "whispering campaign" against the President as part of the fight on the utilities bill, was discharged by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., which termed the plan "reprehensible."

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt will approve a compromise on the "death sentence" provisoin of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill provided it contains the principle of ultimate abolition of "unessential" utility holding companies, it was reliably reported last night.

At the same time, reports were circulated that the House version of the bill was unacceptable to Mr. Roosevelt.

This was the situation as conferees on the measure arranged to resume meetings tomorrow, following a deadlock over the right of Ben Cohen, PWA attorney, who aided in drafting the bill, to participate. The House voted to instruct its conferees to bar outsiders such as Cohen.

Wheeler Yields Point.

Chairman Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Senate group, indicated yesterday that he might yield on this point. He added, however, that if his group did surrender it would insist all outsiders be barred, including two representatives of the legislative drafting service.

By not insisting on Cohen's presence, Wheeler feels he will be testing what he terms the "good faith" of the House managers to report out a bill with teeth in it. The tall Montana Democrat accompanied President Roosevelt on a week-end fishing trip, but declined to comment on their conversation.

The utilities bill, he said, was discussed "in a general way."

Bill May Be Campaign Issue.

It has been currently reported that unless Mr. Roosevelt got a strong bill, legislation would be sidetracked at this session and the issue carried into the 1936 campaign. Warnings that it might be made a political issue have been given on the floor of both houses by Wheeler and Chairman Sam Rayburn (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Some Administration followers in the House say openly that Mr. Roosevelt would veto the House bill in its present form. Wheeler flatly refused to be drawn into a discussion on this point, but said:

"I still feel there is an excellent chance of getting a bill satisfactory to both houses and to President Roosevelt."

No compromise has yet been suggested, he said. The House and Senate are not so far apart on the provision concerning the fate of "unnecessary" holding companies, he said, that differences can not be compromised.

One plan suggested, but not yet seriously considered by conferees, involves a set of standards to which the utility holding companies

AT SEA.

Duel in 40 Fathoms.

BILL HAND and I were swordfishing on Bill's schooner the Buckaroo, about 15 miles off No Man's Land. By a lucky chance we had Dr. Frank Stetson along as a guest.

[This is Murray Pratt's story, told to the United Press. He lived to tell the thrilling tale after being dragged 40 fathoms downward by a wounded and infuriated swordfish. He is a 39-year-old fisherman of Fairhaven, Mass., near the fishing grounds, where the battle in the sea occurred].

We had pretty good luck all morning and about noon I sighted a big fellow from the mast. He must have weighed about 250 pounds, which is my own weight. I went below to take the wheel, while Bill did the harpooning, 'cause Bill's a fine shot. Bill Hand speared the critter and I went overboard in the dory to pick up the keg and haul him in after he got tired pulling me around. He gave me quite a sleighride and it must have been half an hour before I drew him alongside. I reckoned the fish was all done, but when I jabbed his tail with the fluke hook he bolted again. He almost capsized the boat before I let him go and in the thrashing about the coils got caught around my ankles. Next thing I knew I was being yanked clear out of the dory. The fish sounded for the bottom, as they all do, and me after him. I tried to kick the coils free, but they gripped me like a hangman's knot. Down we shot, perfectly straight, and fast as if I had fallen out of an airplane. My next instinct was to get out my pocket knife and hack that line—and here's a funny thing. I pulled out my cigarette lighter first and instead of letting it go I put it back in my pocket. Finally, I got my knife out and opened and began hewing. After I freed my right foot I found I could kick off my left rubber boot. I still had strength to begin fighting my way upward, though I must have been down 35 or 40 fathoms. I remember taking 10 or 12 strokes, then everything went black. They tell me I was floating face down, helped by an air pocket in my shirt, when Stephen Gardner and Cecil Watson of the schooner Helen found me. They were all stripped to the waist and sweating when I came to. They say it was after about an hour. I was still clenching my knife in my fist and they say I wouldn't let it go.

House Passes Tax Bill By 282-96; Opposition Is Mounting in Senate

(Southern Style)

By Hugh Brannen

THREE weeks in the South discovered these things to me:

President Roosevelt's personal popularity hasn't appreciably diminished, though oppositionist forces have become more vocal and more disturbing.

The Triple-A program has indisputably been the salvation of the farmer, though it is apprehended that when the benefits finally are removed he'll be in the position of the baby that has lost its candy.

Business in the cities is measurably better, owing to these same agricultural benefits and to the largesse of Mr. Hopkins, widely called "FDR" money.

There is a disposition to deride the New Deal and all its works, though it is soberly admitted that "something had to be done."

This is the general situation. In the individual States I found:

Louisiana does the will of Long, but it is still debatable whether he can go into Mississippi and defeat Harrison and into Arkansas and set Robinson down.

There is little disaffection elsewhere save in Georgia, and here, in the President's own "adopted State" the red galluses of Gov. Eugene Talmadge are symbolic of the Administration's most significant opposition in Dixie.

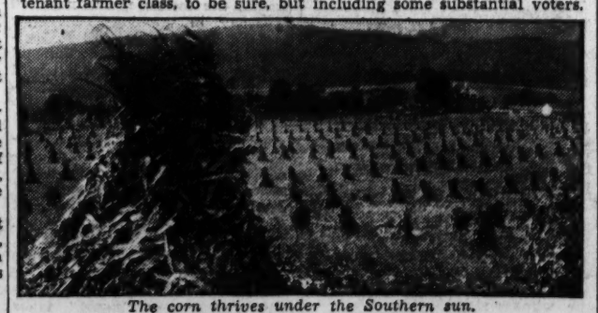
silenced by the Government's "tax-the-rich" program, which nobody seems to comprehend exactly, but Eugene Talmadge has not been hushed up. Recently, he announced himself as Democracy's sole hope in 1936. He has assailed the President time and time again. Thoughtful Georgians have wondered about his motive. He has opposed the Federal relief plan consistently, and at the moment is blocking the State's $19,000,000 allotment of highway money on the ground of State's rights. A lot of people take him seriously as a presidential possibility. Others believe he is after a seat in the Senate. I heard the report that he'll not oppose Mr. Roosevelt in 1936, but will, rather, be his next Secretary of Agriculture, succeeding Mr. Wallace.

There is a disposition in Washington to laugh off Mr. Talmadge. People in Georgia don't do so. There are his supporters, mainly of the tenant farmer class, to be sure, but including some substantial voters.



The corn thrives under the Southern sun.

There are the indifferent, and there are his opponents. Everyone will tell you that "Gene Talmadge has something on the ball." Whether he strikes out Mr. Roosevelt down there remains to be seen.

Representative Carl Vinson says he won't. Mr. Vinson comes from the Sixth Congressional District. He made a quick trip home the other day to confer with constituents about that road money. Coming back on the train he told me:

"Talmadge is playing politics, but isn't getting anywhere. Roosevelt will sweep the State. Talmadge can't get the delegates."

"Will there be an early settlement of the highway fund controversy?" I asked.

"Within a few days," Mr. Vinson promised.

Meanwhile, road money or not, the South, and Georgia, are distinctly enjoying Federal funds. There is very little suffering for lack of the material things. In 1932 and 1933 there was actually hunger and despair. In 1935 there is only discontent. And a chicken in every pot, probably Southern style.

Foster Calls on Reds to Seek Recruits Among U. S. Jobless

By the United Press.

Moscow, Aug. 5.—William Z. Foster, former Communist candidate for United States President, today urged red leaders to increase their activity among the unemployed in America.

Wracked by illness, Foster journeyed from a Soviet spa, where he has been receiving medical treatment for months, to address the seventh world congress of the Comintern (Third Internationale).

"We must take advantage of the present crisis confronting capitalism to promote the growth of communism," Foster told the congress after it accorded him an ovation.

He was followed to the rostrum by Gil Green, head of the American League of Communist Youth, who deplored the growth of fascism and said the 8,000 young Communists in America should enlist the anti-fascist youth under their banners.

Foster revealed formation of an American "united front" among "left wingers" to oppose fascism—growth of which he described as a serious menace to the United States.

"American fascism is a menace because it is disguised in the pseudo-liberal movements supported by William Randolph Hearst, Father Coughlin, Senator Huey Long and Dr. Francis E. Townsend," he said.

New Fight Looms On Soft-Coal Bill

By Robert C. Albright.

Projecting the Administration's wealth-taxing objectives squarly before the Senate, and reviving insurgent moves for a $2,000,000,000 bonus rider, the Administration's $250,000,000 revenue bill swept through the House yesterday by a 282-to-96 vote.

The bill was messaged immediately to the Senate, where a critical Finance Committee already is at grips with the measure. Business will make a last stand against what its spokesmen regard as grave economic implications of the bill tomorrow, when representatives of the Chamber of Commerce conclude hearings before the finance group.

Bonus Rider Planned.

Despite a rush toward adjournment that made House passage of the bill possible in four days, and has noticeably curtailed Senate opposition, a veterans' bloc drive started last night to attach the inflationary Patman bonus bill to the measure.

Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, leader of the bonus forces, called House and Senate soldier enthusiasts to meet tonight, to determine final strategy. He expressed the view that the bonus rider will be offered.

Even before the tax bill reaches the Senate floor—probably not sooner than next Monday—the bonus spark may be fanned into fire again. It was learned that Senator Frederick Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, may offer the Patman amendment to the Administration's gold-clause bill, limiting dollar devaluation suits against the Government to the next six months.

Coal Bill Couses Concern.

Removal of the tax bill from the House arena meanwhile hurled that chamber into a controversy on another Administration measure, more threatening to the President's hopes than the bonus bill, which leaders feel can be easily sidetracked.

It is the Guffey coal bill, setting up a "little NRA" to govern the soft coal industry, which has rested uneasily on a Ways and Means Committee table while the tax bill was groomed for passage.

The bill was reported to the full committee by a sub-committee "without recommendation." All yesterday afternoon, Democratic members of the full committee wrestled with the bill. There was imminent possibility that another "without recommendation" precedent-establishing report might be made to the House.

Constitutionality Questioned.

The bill is important to New Deal plans for testing how far the Constitution will stretch on interstate regulatory legislation of the Guffey bill type. Democrats are worried about the President's recommendation that the bill be approved, regardless of reasonable doubts as to constitutionality.

The "wealth soaking" tax bill was speedily passed by the House yesterday on a roll call ballot, following viva voce rejection of a Republican motion to send it back to committee.

18 Democrats Vote No.

Voting for the measure were 254 Democrats, 18 Republicans, 7 Progressives and 3 Farmer-Laborites, while 78 Republicans and 18 Democrats voted "No." A significant element in the Democratic opposition vote was the stand taken by five members of the Virginia delegation, reflecting the position of Virginia Senators.

"No" ballots were cast by Representatives Schuyler Otis Bland, Thomas G. Burch, Colgate W. Darden, A. Willis Robertson, and Howard W. Smith, all of Virginia.

Other Democratic Representatives opposing the bill were Biermann, of Iowa; Dempsey, New Mexico; Gavagan, New York; Granfield, Massahusetts; Greever, Wyoming; Jeckes,

President Gets Bill Regulating Motor Carriers

Senate Adopts Provisions Voted by House; Local Buses Exempt.

By Felix Bruner.

The Senate yesterday sent to President Roosevelt for signature the bill providing for regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of interstate motor transportation of passengers and freight. In adopting the House amendments to the bill the Senate ended a decade-long fight to bring motor transportation under the same regulatory status as railroads.

The law, effective October 1, provides for regulation of passenger and freight rates and for supervision of routes over which busses and motor freight carriers run. Certificates of necessity and convenience will be required.

Bus and truck lines in operation prior to June 1, 1935, will be given these certificates automatically, but others will be required to show cause why they should be given such certificates.

Local Busses Exempt.

The measure has approval of the Administration and is a part of the plan of Joseph B. Eastman, Federal co-ordinator of transportation, for general co-ordination of common carrier facilities. It is the first of such measures, designed to bring under Government regulation all interstate land, water and air transportation. The Government will prescribe safety regulations and hours of labor of operators as well as rates and routes.

The principal House amendment exempted from provisions of the measure trucks carrying farm products and newspapers. The House also changed effective date of the measure. Ohter exemptions include trucks not used for hire, school buses, taxicabs and buses used in carrying passengers to and from cities through zones adjacent to cities.

Under the bill the commission would fix rates for common carriers, but could only approve or disapprove the minimum contract rate for contract carriers. These latter would be required to obtain operating permits from the commission and brokers would be licensed.

Water, Air Bills Wait.

Since trucks and buses came into direct competition with the railroads about 10 years ago, constant effort has been made to bring them under Government regulation. Bills now are pending for regulation of water and air carriers and for an increase in the membership of the Interstate Commerce Commission but these are expected to go over until the next session of Congress.

Only minor changes in the motor carrier bill as proposed by Eastman were made in Congress.

"Regulation will be of substantial advantage to shippers and the public generally," Eastman said in a report. "While certain shippers will lose the unreasonably low rates and the priviege of driving hard bargains which they have enjoyed, especially of late, all will gain the advantage of fair, known and stable rates. The smaller shipper, mainly dependent on common-carrier service, will be relieved from some of his present handicaps, so that he can compete to better advantage with the shipper who has secured special rate privileges through volume of traffic.

Aim Is Lower Rates.

"Public advantage will also result from the opportunities which regulation will create for co-ordinating rail, water and motor services. There is no other way to prevent unnecessary duplication and waste and to give each form of transportation a chance to develop in the field where it can function the best, without destructive competition from inferior forms. Such co-ordination is the foundation for financial stability and lower transportation costs and rates."

The first bill for regulation of interstate motor transportation was introduced in Congress in 1925. This and subsequent measures were advocated by the railroads but stiff opposition has been encountered from bus and truck interests.

Railroads have suffered considerable loss of traffic from bus and truck competition. Eastman estimated that in 1932 truck traffic was about 44 per cent of rail in terms of freight originated and 12.7 per cent in terms of ton-miles.

States' Tax Coins Declared Illegal

Treasury Lawyers' Opinion Holds Tokens Unlawful.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Morgenthau produced a new argument for sub-penny coins yesterday with the announcement that the Treasury's legal experts had concluded that State sale tax token coinage was illegal.

Morgenthau said that four States—Illinois, Colorado, Missouri and Washington—which are now employing local tax pieces had not been notified of the decision but indicated this would be done shortly.

The Treasury's message to Congress urging legislation to permit the midget coins was tabled last week by the House coins, weights and measures committee on the ground the Treasury would be given too much authority in the matter of issuing small coins.

Morgenthau did not disclose whether the Treasury would push efforts for this legislation, but said his department experts would be glad to confer with congressional committees governing coinage at any time.

Cuba May Default Bonds.

Tax Bill Is Sent To the Senate By 282-96 Vote

The Senate Finance Committee plans to dig further into Administration arguments for the bill when hearings are resumed this morning, with Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the Internal Revenue Bureau, on the witness stand.

Tomorrow representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce will go before the committee with a comprehensive analysis of the House measure, and its probable economic effects. Chairman Pat Harrison will fly back from Mississippi to hear their concluding testimony.

Many Riders Likely.

Some of the other issues slated to be injected are:

The original confiscatory "share-the-wealth" amendments of Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, who said yesterday he will move to substitute them for the Administration plan.

Amendments by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin, designed to pick up more revenue by reaching into lower bracket incomes, but with perhaps some easing of the proposed new inheritance and surtax rates.

The $3,000,000,000 Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage inflationary bill, which Senator Lynn J. Frazier (Republican), North Dakota, or Senator William E. Borah, Idaho's Republican independent, may offer as a rider.

Several attempts will be made to open up the complicated tariff structure, leading off with an amendment by Senator Steiwer to increase the tariff on eggs.

Banking heavily on the desire of members to adjourn and go home, leaders expressed confidence in their ability to hold the measure substantially as reported by the Finance Committee. They smiled at renewed reports of adjournment before Senate action.

There is strong conservative opposition to the bill in the Finance Committee and observers expect considerable revision of House provisions before a report is ordered.

Opposition fast crystalizing against the measure was reflected yesterday in warnings sent New England Senators by Carl P. Dennett, chairman of the National Economy League, that the bill "will gradually destroy the source of income and drive money out of industry."

"The proposed tax bill will provide less than 4 per cent of the Federal budget for the fiscal year 1936," Dennett said. "If divided among the adult population it would produce less than $5 each. It is not a sound, normal measure, nor will it put one dollar into the pockets of the so-called poor."

He said the country would cheerfully accept any "sound" taxes necessary, once "abnormal and wasteful expenditures" were curtailed.

"On behalf of 95,000 members in New England," he wired, "we urge first a drastic reduction in Federal expenditures and then the passage of a tax bill that will definitely balance the Federal budget, and that destructive legislation be postponed until this program can be perfected."

Guffey Bill Deadlocked.

With the tax bill out of the way, House Ways and Means Democrats went to work on the Guffey bill—a task so distasteful to many members that full committee consideration has been postponed until this late date.

Democrats were reported evenly divided on favorably reporting the measure at yesterday's session. Another meeting of Democrats has been called for this morning, when absentees will be brought in, in an effort to break the deadlock. If the disagreement persists, a move will be made to report the bill without any commitment, a recourse rarely resorted to.

Stratosphere Airplane Crashes, Pilot Is Killed

Paris, Aug. 5 (AP).—France's first stratosphere airplane was wrecked in a test flight today, killing its pilot, Marcel Cogno, 28. The plane, which had been three years in construction, was undergoing a final test when it crashed near Bonnieres.

A few spectators saw the plane gyrating wildly as without a pilot, then plunge to the earth. This gave rise to the theory the pilot fainted in the rarefied upper air. Cogno, one of France's crack test pilots, was killed instantly.

New Deal Farm Powers Aided; Court Ban Lost

Breaking a conference jam that has held up approval of six major Administration measures, House and Senate conferees on the AAA amendments arrived at partial agreement yesterday on a bill that enhances New Deal farm powers, but still leaves court doors open to suits to recover processing taxes.

Despite the AAA appeal for a flat court ban on processing tax recovery litigation, House conferees yielded to the Senate following long disagreement. The provision was rewritten to require litigants to first file their claims with the Internal Revenue Bureau, and appear for hearing of facts.

The Senate won another victory, at the expense of the Administration, in striking from the long-controverted bill the last price-fixing amendment, through which the AAA sought establishment of minimum prices to producers.

House Gains Point.

The House, on the other hand, gained one important concession, by retention of a provision virtually earmarking 30 per cent of all customs receipts for the promotion of farm markets. This section also was rewritten, to deny purchase from this fund of submarginal lands, or payments of bounties on raw cotton.

House conferees announced they would go back to the House for instructions on three items under consideration—a potato control plan, a $50,000,000 relief fund allotment for purchase of submarginal lands and a $20,000,000 appropriation for fighting tuberculosis and Bangs disease among cattle.

Under the bill as agreed to by conferees, the Secretary of Agriculture would be empowered to enforce marketing agreements covering milk, fruits, tobacco, beans, naval stores, vegetables, other than vegetables for canning, except asparagus and olives.

Salary Clause Out.

The Senate amendment providing for Senate approval of all high-salaried Federal appointees was eliminated in conference. Conferees retained in the bill another Senate change empowering the President to raise or lower tariff barriers wherever necessary to protect basic commodities.

Full authority was granted the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to investigate all books and records in connection with suits to recover processing taxes. It was stipulated that all wholesalers and retailers be permitted to file claims for recovery of processing taxes on floor stocks, if the law is invalidated.

Text of Barrier.

Following is the partial text of the conference change in the House bill's barrier against suits to recover processing taxes:

"No recovery, recoupment, set-off, refund or credit shall be made or allowed of, nor shall any counterclaim be allowed for any amount of any tax, penalty, or interest which accrued, before, on, or hereafter accrues under this title (including any overpayment of such tax), unless after a claim has been duly filed it shall be established in addition to all other facts required to be established to the satisfaction of the commissioner of internal revenue, and the commissioner shall find and declare of record, after due notice by the commissioner to such claimant and opportunity for hearing, that neither the claimant nor any person directly or indirectly under his control or having control over him, has, directly or indirectly, included such amount in the price of the article with respect to which it was imposed or of any article processed from the commodity with respect to which it was imposed or passed on any part of such amount to the vender or to any other person in any manner, or included any part of such amount in the price or fee for processing, and that the price paid by the claimant or such person was not reduced by any part of such amount."

Wallace Hits Tariff

By the United Press.

Amarillo, Tex., Aug. 5.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace tonight added his voice to those of angry Texas farmers who are demanding that protective tariffs be abolished.

Speaking before a group of farmers, Wallace declared that farmers should organize to hold on to the processing tx until the tariff is done away with.

"The only wy to do away with the processing tax is to do away with the tariff," Wallace said. "Until people say they don't want the tariff we aim to hold on to the processing tax."

Wallace was cheered throughout the speech.

Dickinson Hit By Vandenberg Over Socialism

Munitions Charge of Iowa Senator Brings Sharp Retort on 'Hill.'

By the Associated Press.

Assertions by Senator Dickinson (Republican), of Iowa, that the Senate Munitions Committee was promoting Socialism brought a sharp retort yesterday from Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, a fellow Republican.

"I give him credit for not knowing what he is talking about," Vandenberg declared.

The two Senators, often mentioned as possible Republican presidential nominees in 1936, pitched into debate to the delight of Senate Democrats.

Dickinson said the Munitions Committee, of which Vandenberg is a member, was "trending" toward Socialism in attacks on the Navy, the War Department, and munitions makers. He contended that Stephen Raushenbush, committee counsel, was a Socialist.

Dickinson Leaving.

Taking the floor as Dickinson was about to leave the chamber, Vandenberg declared the Iowan had tried "deliberately to create the impression that all the Munitions Committee has produced is either Socialistic or Communistic in results."

The Michigan Senator said the war profits and neutrality legislation advocated by the committee "speaks for itself."

"If the program reaches the statute books," he added, "the children of tomorrow will be a little safer than were the children of yesterday."

Dickinson earlier characterized as "entirely wrong" a statement by Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, that the Iowan was "marching under the banner of that unspeakable scoundrel, William B. Shearer."

Clark made the assertion recently in answering an attack by Dickinson on Raushenbush.

Never Met Shearer.

"I have never met Mr. Shearer and have never talked to him directly or indirectly," Dickinson told the Sente, in denying he was "under the influence of the former big-Navy propagandist."

"I do not believe any one can accuse me of being a big-Navy man or a big-Army man," Dickinson added. "My interest is purely that of a Senator without any ax to grind."

Dickinson, who had told the Senate that Raushenbush had written Communist articles, foresaw danger in the possibility that through such an avenue secret War and Navy Department information might get into Communist hands.

The Munitious Committee, he said, had authority to send its investigators into the "confidential files" of the two departments.

"If we let a Communist into War Department and Navy files of confidential information," the Iowan said, "he could give the committee what information he desired, but reserve the rest for other use."

Draper Named By Roosevelt To Assist Roper

New Yorker Appointed to Commerce Post Left by Dickinson.

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Ernest Gallaudet Draper, of New York, for Assistant Secretary of Commerce to succeed John Dickinson, who recently became Assistant Attorney General. Draper, a native of Washington, is prominent in both labor and business affairs.

Since 1920, Draper, 50 years old, has been president of the American Association for Labor Legislation. He is a former member of the National Labor Board and of the Business Advisory Council of the Commerce Department.

Started as Clerk.

Draper, following his graduation from Amherst College in 1906, began his business career as a clerk in New York. From 1912 to 1920 he was president of the American Creosoting Co. Since 1920 he has been vice president of the Hills Brothers Co., packers of dates and other food products. He is also vice president of the Dromedary Co. of California and a director of the Sooville Canning Co.

Draper was a lieutenant, senior grade, in the United States Naval Reserve Force, 1918-1919; assistant navigator of the U. S. S. Sierra in 1918. Since 1930 he has been a member of the New York State Commission on Unemployment, and he was a member of the New York City Art Commission from 1924 to 1927.

Civic, Business Leader.

Among Draper's other civic and educational connections are: Trustee, Gallaudet College, Washington; director, Peoples' Institute, New York; member and vice president at large of the American Management Association; president, since 1930, of the American Institute for Labor Legislation; member of the committee on industrial relations of the Merchants Association of New York; member of the American Economic Association and the Academy of Political Science; member of the committee on pensions of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"Mr. Draper is a man of high business standing with an unusual background of experience in the business world," Secretary Roper said in commenting on the nomination. "As a result of his many years of practical contact with business problems he has a very thorough understanding of these situations and I am sure he will bring to the Department of Commerce qualities and advantages that will be of great assistance to us in helping us in our efforts to serve the interests of the various segments of trade and industry."

Smoot to Steer Clear of Politics

Former Senator Says He Will Not Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 5.—Former Senator Reed Smoot, once powerful figure in Republican affairs, made it plain tonight his party can expect no help from him in next year's campaign.

"I'm not going to campaign," said Smoot, for 30 years United States Senator from Utah, when asked about his prospective part in Republican efforts to beat back. "I may make one or two speeches."

Then he added:

"I am not going to run for any office. I am out of politics."

The former dean of the Senate and chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee persisted in the position he has maintained since his retirement from office and declined any discussion of public affairs.

Coolidge Aid Lends Support to AAA

Former Agriculture Head Approves Farm Measure.

By the Associated Press.

Denver, Aug. 5.—William M. Jardine, Republican and former Secretary of Agriculture, said today he "fears agricultural conditions would be chaotic if the Supreme Court were to invalidate the AAA."

"Sudden abandonment of the AAA would be disastrous to farmers," said the man who was in the Cabinet of the late President Coolidge.

"I know farmers; in fact, I'm somewhat of a farmer myself, and I would say that 90 per cent of them are strongly in favor of the AAA.

"I don't believe the act is entirely sound. But some such measure was absolutely necessary, and it is too late to go back to conditions before the AAA. We must hold on to the progress that has been made."

Long Proposes Oratory Duel To President

By the Associated Press.

Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, yesterday proposed an open political debate on the New Deal with President Roosevelt and offered to "guarantee the crowds."

In a Senate speech, the Louisianan noted published reports that the President soon may visit Arkansas to lend support to Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, and open an anti-Long campaign in the South. Long suggested instead that Louisiana be made the battle ground.

He advanced as a debate topic "What has become of the promises of the candidate of the Democratic Party, and what can be expected in the future, based on the character of performance in the last two years."

To Offer His Program.

At the same time, Long told newsmen he would offer his "share-the-wealth" program as an amendment to the tax bill approved yesterday by the House.

Although saying he would prefer to meet Mr. Roosevelt on a Louisiana platform, Long declared in the Senate:

"If at any time I can accommodate the gentleman in helping to lay before the voters the great issues before us, I am at his beck and call, and as a humble servant, ready to bow in respectful service to the learned Chief Executive of the United States."

He read a number of headlines, one of which read, "F. D. R. will invade Arkansas to assist anti-Long campaign."

Too Much Territory.

"If Mr. Roosevelt has that idea," Long continued, "why pick Arkansas? That election's a long way off. That's next fall, a year from now. There's an election in Louisiana in January. I don't know how badly he's needed in Arkansas, but the anti-Long element needs him mighty bad in Louisiana right now."

Once quoted as saying he would try to defeat Robinson for re-election, Long said today he only undertook "to fight on my own soil," and that "I never invade foreign territory." He added he "didn't know the President conceded me a territory so large."

Haile Selassie Pleased by U.S. Hope for Peace

By the United Press.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt's hope that war in East Africa can be averted brought a reply of "abiding gratitude" today from Emperor Haile Selassie.

Receiving Cornelius Van H. Engert, newly arrived United States Charge D'Affaires, the Conquering Lion of Judah said Mr. Roosevelt's statement, issued last week while the League of Nations Council was deliberating the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, was typical of the peace-loving attitude of the American people.

The Emperor, who chatted with Engert in his simple, rug-lined study at the Greystone Imperial Palace, praised the good work of American missionaries in Ethiopia.

"My people are deeply grateful," he said earnestly.

Engert presented his credentials to the Emperor while the foreign office studied the text of league council resolutions on the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. Initial satisfaction turned to disappointment over wording of the resolutions.

Ethiopians believed they offer loopholes for evasion and procrastination. The foreign office said they jeopardize effectiveness of the conciliation commission. Ethiopia is satisfied that a fifth arbitrator has been named, but it objects to continuing doubt abroad as to possession of Ualual, where Italian and Ethiopian troops clashed last December. Even Italian maps show Ualual, in Ethiopian territory, an official said.

Ethiopia is satisfied also that the council has resolved to convene next month for a complete examination of the Italo-Ethiopia conflict as she has been demanding this for eight months.

Arms Pact Reported.

London, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Ethiopia has signed a contract with Japan for heavy consignments of arms and ammunition, the Exchange Telegraph reported from Addis Ababa today. The report added Emperor Haile Selassie is preparing to receive a Japanese military and commercial mission.

Message to Geneva.

Geneva, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Emperor Haile Selassie today telegraphed the League of Nations assurance of Ethiopia's desire to reach a pacific solution of her conflict with Italy.

He thanked League council members for their deliberations of last week.

"The imperial government repeats Ethiopia is resolved firmly to reach an equitable and pacific solution of the problem," the emperor said.

"We hope League efforts will be successful in maintaining peace."

Security Wage Support Sought Of A.F.L. Chiefs

General Johnson Appears Before Labor Group 'As Adviser.'

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 5.—Hugh S. Johnson, New York relief director, today appeared before American Federation of Labor leaders in an "informative" role to seek support for the security wage the Government has stipulated under its re-employment program.

The executive council gave Johnson no answer but after the meeting William Green, federation president, said he had anticipated the New York situation which developed when Congress rejected a federation demand for payment of prevailing local wages on all work relief projects.

He said similar reports of opposition to the security wage had come from other parts of the country, particularly Chicago and Massachusetts.

Johnson told the labor leaders he felt skilled craftsmen in New York would make far more under the $93.50 "security wage" than with a few days' work at the prevailing local scale.

Made No Demands.

Emerging from the meeting, he said he had made no demands and had received no answer from the council.

Johnson told the federation council there were jobs for every idle craftsman in the city.

Green reported after the meeting: "Gen. Johnson and Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, met with the council and reported upon the progress being made in New York on the work relief program.

"They reported some opposition on the part of a number of workers to the security wage lest it tend to reduce the prevailing rate in private employment.

"There wasn't any specific request made of the council—it was more a matter of information. The council regards the whole subject as a matter for the international and local unions concerned to take care of."

Reject Merger.

The Foundry Workers Union rejected an effort to amalgamate the Molders Union and the Foundry Workers Union and Green said the next move was up to the federation's general convention here in October.

The formation of a federation department to take in all the needle trades unions will be considered at tomorrow's session of the council.

The long-smoldering quarrel among building trades unions of the American Federation of Labor broke at the meeting of the federation's executive council.

A demand was laid before the council that the group of building trades unions headed by M. J. McDonough stop calling itself the American Federation of Labor Building Trades Department. The demand was made by J. W. Williams, president of the latter, and rival group.

The two groups have been at odds since last fall, when the federation's San Francisco convention called the department's convention "illegal," because it refused to seat delegates from the carpenters, bricklayers and electricians unions. Leaders of those unions previously had let it be known they had intended to oust McDonough.

Things as They Are

Cuban Trade Treaty Scrutinized as to Duty Revenues and Market Prices.

By Samuel Crowther.

THE application of elementary bookkeeping to the results of our trade treaty with Cuba brings out a state of facts which ought to be of especial interest at the present time while the Congress is weighing the number of tax straws it will take to break the camel's back. Our own finances are hardly in a shape to warrant considerable foreign donations.

The Cuban treaty is the especial pride of the State and Commerce Departments and has been presented to the country as a perfect example of what diplomatic acumen can do for business. It is a truly perfect example. Secretary Hull has frequently eulogized the treaty and the State Department sent out a release on how pleased is everyone doing business in Cuba. In view of the facts, the Cuban praise seems restrained.

The reason why the Cuban treaty is supposed to be a success is that in 1934 our exports to Cuba increased by 80 per cent. This increase is not quite as impressive when expressed as $20,000,000. But even an increase of $20,000,000 is an achievement in these days and the State Department is entitled to all the praise it requests, if it has actually succeeded in disposing of this amount of American goods—at a profit to the Nation.

The reciprocal trade agreements act presupposes a mutuality in the pacts negotiated under it. Our diplomatic and commercial representatives in Washington were presumed to take on the character of horse traders and drive bargains in the best New England tradition. This, of course, means that they were presumed to get the long end of every deal. The act was drawn by the Administration and put through Congress at a time when the New Dealers modestly volunteered to do anything better than it had ever been done before. In that spirit they negotiated a trade agreement with Cuba—an agreement which at once demonstrated its worth by apparently effecting an 80 per cent increase in our exports.

Now let us look at the other side of the ledger and discover how much the American people had to dig out of their pockets in order to make a $20,000,000 sale. Neither the State Department nor the Department of Commerce presents any figures on the cost of getting the business. They are concerned only with gross sales and not at all with the cost of making sales. Here is what the new business cost:

The President, by an order effective June 8, 1934, reduced the duty on Cuban raw sugar from 2 cents to 1.5 cents per pound. The trade agreement made a further reduction to 9 cents. In return for this concession, Cuba reduced duties on a number of American products. In 1933 we sold goods to Cuba in the amount of $25,093,000, and in 1934 we sold goods to the amount of $45,355,000—and of this we sold $17,614,000 between September, when the treaty took effect, and the end of the year. A considerable portion of the Cuban exports of sugar—that is, 1,100,000 tons of raw and about 200,000 tons of refined—was held until after the treaty went into effect and paid duty at the new rate. This involved a loss of duties as between the new and the old tariff rates amounting to $32,323,000.

* * * *

When the treaty went into effect, about half a million tons were in American bonded warehouses and presumably had been bought at world prices. But another factor entered. The AAA in its wisdom had fixed quotas for both domestic and foreign producers of sugar and the Cubans had cannily held off most of their exports to this country not only until after the treaty date but also until the other quotas were exhaused.

Therefore, they found themselves, not at all by accident, with a monopoly right to supply this country with sugar. Their average price to the world during the September-December, 1934, period was .8 cent per found f. o. b. Cuba. Their price to the United States under the monopoly given them by the AAA was 1.97 cents per pound f. o. b. Cuba.

They engineered for themselves a present of 1.17 cents per pound, or more than $15,000,000. Adding this donation to the amount lost in duties makes a total of more than $47,000,000.

This is the sum that the American people paid in order to promote an additional gross export business of not over $20,000,000! The profit on the additional export business was probably not in excess of 10 per cent. If, however, we assume that the profit was 25 per cent, then the American people laid out $47,000,000 in order that a few exports might gain a profit of $5,000,000.

* * * *

For the present year, the Cuban sugar quota is fixed at 1,658,055 tons. On this amount, at the new duties, we shall lose the sum of $40,726,000. How much more we shall pay for our sugar than the world in general pays Cuba, can not be known until the year is over. For the first five months of this year, Cuban sugar for the American market averaged in cost 1.19 cents above what Cuban sugar for any other market cost.

On this basis, we shall during the present year pay about $43,000,000 more to Cuba for our sugar than we would were it not for the benefits granted by the trade agreement and the AAA.

Taking the loss of duties and the additional price of sugar, the new tax laid upon the American people for the privilege of doing business with Cuba in the present year therefore will amount to more than $80,000,000.

This may be Yankee horse trading. But if it is, the Yankees are speaking Spanish.

Officer Fihelly, Hurt in Riot, in Grave Condition.

A blood transfusion was administered to Detective Sergt. Arthur T. Fihelly of police headquarters last night as doctors at Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital struggled to save the life of the policeman who received a fractured nose while answering a riot call last Wednesday night.

Fihelly was struck in the face unintentionally by the upraised elbow of an unidentified man as he milled through a crowd at Ninth and O streets northwest.

U. S. Expresses Regret Cartoon Irked Mikado

current issue of an American periodical, referred to the reported statement of the publisher denying any purpose to give offense.

"The Secretary then said that he is always sorry when incidents occur or situations arise which are taken amiss and occasion misunderstanding between this and any other country."

Earlier in the day Frank Crowninshield, editor of Vanity Fair, said there was no bitterness whatever in the hearts of those publishing the magazine toward Japan, that no offense was intended and that the portrayal of the Japanese Emperor in a caricature, along with four prominent Americans, was done in a spirit of "good-natured fun."

Leaving Hull's office Saito put his finger on the basis for the unusual importance which Japan attached to the incident when he termed it a misunderstanding which had arisen from divergent national ideas of humor.

In a country in which cartoonists lampoon all and sundry officials, from the President down, the Vanity Fair caricature is regarded as a trivial thing for a great world power to make diplomatic representations about.

But the Japanese do not regard their emperor humorously. To them he personifies the divine and eternal authority of their country. They regard him as a descendant of the grandson of the Sun Goddess, Amaterasu-Omikami (interpreted, "Shining Over the World." A Japanese who makes a derogatory remark about the emperor or his family would be fortunate to escape with his life.

Many of the difficulties which Japan is causing on the world stage today result from this divine-origin cult. The jingoes and militarists invoke the emperor's name for their imperialist schemes and, immediately, it becomes a crime to cross them. Under the influence of emperor-worship, the Japanese people are being driven to make ever-increasing appropriations for the army and navy to carry out Japan's divine mission in the Far East.

All this is understood at the State Department, but even then the thought prevails in some quarters that the Japanese foreign office showed a surprising enthusiasm for seizing so hastily on such a trivial incident to make the basis for representations.

Indeed, the cables from Tokyo indicate that Eiji Amau, the foreign office spokesman, added flame to whatever feeling was caused by the Vanity Fair caricature when he denounced it as "terrible" and worse than aspersions cast on the Emperor some months ago by a Shanghai publication.

Government officials responsible for Far Eastern policy have been impressed by this manifestation of anti-American sentiment in Tokyo and in the foreign office. Less than 500 copies of Vanity Fair containing the caricature were sent to Japan, and most of these have been seized. The foreign office easily could have disregarded the incident. That it did not shows the influence of the jingoes in that important quarter.

Meanwhile, while the magazine's editor made a contrite statement, William Gropper, the artist, according to the Associated Press, regarded the international flare-up caused by his work amusedly and somewhat belligerently. In effect, he said he had been denounced by better critics than Japan and that, anyway, he would do it again.

He said that if the Japanese Emperor was shocked at the Vanity Fair cartoon "he ought to see 20 or 30 others I have done and one I'm going to do this week for a radical publication," the Associated Press reported, adding that Gropper said he was "grateful that Japan has given class to the list of persons who have objected strenuously to my work—the score now stands: one labor leader, several capitalists and one emperor."

Long Kicks at 'Monk,' Makes Hirohito Agent

Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana's Kingfish, who was one of the five-figured caricature in which the Japanese Emperor appeared satirically, thought something should be done to stop the cartoonists. Long was portrayed as a monk.

"Yes, sir; I agree with the Emperor," the Kingfish asserted. "We gotta stop these cartoonists. But if he can control them, he's a better man than I am. You tell the Emperor that he can go right ahead and collect anything he wants to for me. I make him my agent.

"I don't know how he looks, but I know I'm a good-looking man and that cartoon didn't do justice. If he can handle those cartoonists, he can have me as a citizen. Yes, sir, I'll move to Tokyo."

vaded the Hitler youth hostel at Solingen and destroyed furniture, flags and tablets commemorating Hitler youths killed in political battles.

"We take revenge" was smeared on the walls. The message was signed "Storm Squads," supposedly representative of dissolved Catholic youth organizations.

Muenster, Westphalia, reported that Father Hans Budenbrock, Catholic priest, will go to prison unless he can prove he used the past tense in a sermon one year ago.

Budenbrook allegedly said: "After all, the morals of the Old Testament and the gospel are higher than those displayed in our days by men who claim leadership."

During his trial he asserted he said "claimed" rather than "claim," thereby intending to refer to Roehm and other former-Nazi leaders shot in the purge of June 30, 1934. The Court aquitted him of slander.

However, since Goebbels revived the anti-Catholic movement the state prosecutor won a Leipsig Supreme Court retrial order.

Castle Gandolfo, Italy, Aug. 5.—Pope Pius, from his vacation retreat, today called upon German Catholics to remain steadfast to the Church eternal and deplored the Nazi fight "against both God and Christ in favor of modern paganism."

Addressing 50 members of the Young Men's Catholic Action of Treves, Germany, the pontiff made the Church's most vigorous comment on events within German borders.

"It is sad to think of the fight of some against both God and Christ in favor of modern paganism," the Holy Father said.

"The name Germany tells us many happy and a great many sad things. It is happy to think there are many strong, pious youths with faith unshaken in Germany.

"It is necessary never to lose courage, but to be ready for firm defense of the faith.

"Trust God because, while this is a most difficult moment, still harder times may come."

The Holy Father blessed all German Catholics, bishops, the clergy and youths "so gallantly facing battle for defense of the faith." He said in benediction:

"We express our paternal wishes for a better future, although it is not bright in our eyes. Therefore, both father and children must be firm and ready in loyalty and love for the defense of the Church."

Suspect Faces Murder Charge In Mutilation

Habeas Corpus Move Made for Prisoner in Slaying of Doctor Bauer.

Chicago, Aug. 5—A flurry of legal activity in behalf of Mandeville W. Zenge, young Missouri carpenter held in the emasculation slaying of Dr. Walter Bauer, ended today with the State obtaining a murder warrant against him.

The warrant, issued by Judge J. F. McCarthy in felon court as the prosecution hastened to forestall a habeas corpus hearing for the prisoner, was made returnable tomorrow.

Indictment Due.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said he expected a grand jury indictment against the one-time suitor for the hand of the slain doctor's wife would be returned by then. He announced that Mrs. Louise Bauer, the widowed bride, who flew here from Cleveland last night in furtherance of a police plan for her to confront the taciturn Missourian, had been served with a subpena requiring her appearance before the grand jurors.

Ten other witnesses will be heard by the grand jury, Dougherty said. Among them may be Joseph Bauer, of Cleveland, Ohio, the victim's brother, to establish the corpus delicti.

The prisoner had a brief chat with his father, J. Andy Zenge, Canton, Mo., dairyman, as he waited a hearing in Judge Cornelius J. Harrington's courtroom on his petition for a habeas writ. Father and son embraced as they met and talked spiritedly for a few minutes before they, with Mandeville's brother, Leighton Zenge, and a cousin, Claude Stagg, posed for photographers.

But Judge Harrington refused the writ when the State informed him Judge McCarthy had issued a first-degree murder warrant and young Zenge was returned to the custody of Lieut. Otto Erlanson, of the police homicide squad.

Dougherty said his witnesses would be able to give the grand jurors a complete record of Zenge's movements from the time he registered at Jennings House in Ann Arbor, Mich., where Dr. Bauer was kidnaped, until his arrest here last week.

cific methods of combatting fascism. Another conference will formulate opposition to labor camps—such as the Civilian Conservation Corps—as promoters of militarization of unemployed youths.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to acting Secretary of State Phillips today demanded "a strong protest" from the State Department against alleged activities in the United States by the Communist Internationale.

"If the Russian government fails to respond honestly to a strong protest from your department," Woll wrote, "the interests of the people of the United States demand that diplomatic relations be immediately severed."

In the letter Woll, who is also acting president of the National Civic Federation, urged Phillips not to be "misled" by Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky's recent statement "we never had any dealings with the Communist party on the West Coast."

It was believed Woll alluded in his letter to speeches by American delegates to the Moscow Communist congress.

False Pretenses Laid To Two Arrested Here

Earl L. Morfitt, 38, of the 1700 block of P srteet northwest, was arrested at Union Station by Detective Sergt. L. M. Wilson, on the complaint of George A. Roberts, of the 1300 block of Connecticut avenue, who said Morfitt gave him a bad check for $5.

Police said they had several bad checks against Woodrow R. Ingram, 25, colored, the other man arrested. They claimed it was his practice to pay the insurance premiums of acquaintances, without their knowledge, giving bad checks in excess of the amount and taking the change in cash.

Chinese Society Fires on Japanese Officers

Tientsin, Aug. 5 (U.P.). — The Chinese "blood and iron" patriotic society precipitated a critical situation in the demilitarized zone between Tientsin and the great wall today when four members attacked Japanese officials at Luanchow.

Detraining at Luanchow, on the Peiping-Mukden Railway, the Chinese shot and killed Liu Tso-Chow of the pro-Japanese peace preservation office. A Japanese gendarme on the station platform was wounded seriously, Maj. Fukui, commander of a battalion of Japanese railway guards at Tangshan, near Luanchow, was threatened.

Japanese military authorities in Tientsin asserted the Luanchow incident is more serious than the recent Tientsin assassination of pro-Japanese officials. The Luanchow assailants escaped, but three suspects subsequently were arrested.

New York Cites Dutch Schultz On Income Tax

By the United Press.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The New York State department of taxation and finance threw a new net around Public Enemy Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer tonight for income tax evasion.

An agent of the department, under direction of Commissioner Mark Graves, presented the former Bronx beer baron with a Supreme Court order directing Flegenheimer to return to New York County Thursday for a hearing before Supreme Court Judge William R. Black.

The order, obtained by Seth T. Cole, department counsel, is designed to compel Schultz to reveal the value and location of any property or funds he may possess.

Perjury Case in Offing.

Graves acted after Flegenheimer's attorneys allegedly indicated he would not fulfill his promise to pay the State more than $36,000 in past due taxes, despite the fact he was acquitted of evading Federal taxes.

Should "Dutch" fail to answer the order, it was explained, he may be cited for contempt of court and, if he appears and gives answers later proven false, he probably will face perjury charges.

The order was served on Flegenheimer at his hotel suite here, after operatives from New York's newly organized Scotland Yard had trailed him throughout the day.

"Yard" men were placed on Flegenheimer's trail at request of the department after the order was issued by Supreme Court Justice Louis Valente at New York City shortly before noon.

Secrecy Preserves Net.

Activities of the State tax department were kept strictly confidential to prevent Flegenheimer from obtaining advance information on the new move which would enable him to escape the net.

"Okay boys," "Dutch" said, when the order was presented him. "Mayor LaGuardia didn't want me to come back to New York, but now I guess I'll have to go."

The one-time Bronx beer baron said he probably would go to New York City by automobile or train "tomorrow or the next day."

"There's no doubt that you'll be there?" he was asked.

"I guess so," he replied.

He appeared little disturbed by the new move, which might easily result in another legal tangle.

"Do you plan to see your new baby before appearing in court?" the questioning continued.

Colored Man Taken From Jail in Nocturnal Raid; Girl Not Harmed.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsboro, Miss., Aug. 5. — The body of Bodie Bates, colored, suspected of attempting to attack a white girl, was found swinging from a rope under a Yalobusha River bridge.

Twelve hours after the body was cut down, officers said they had no information of the identity of members of a mob who snatched him from the county jail last night. The assault on the jail was not revealed until after the victim was found.

Sheriff Jack W. Powell said he had been informed the mob overpowered the officer on duty at the jail and seized his keys. Speedily they removed the prisoner from his cell and hurried to a secluded section of the county where he was hanged.

Bates was alleged to have made advances to a 22-year-old waitress of a Pittsboro cafe.

Sheriff Powell said the girl told him a colored man appeared at a bedroom window of her home Saturday night shortly after she had retired. She said he demanded that he be admitted and that her screams, which were answered by neighbors, caused him to flee.

Officers and citizens quickly formed a posse and trailed the suspect with bloodhounds. The search led to Bates' arrest near the home of another colored man.

Dickinson Slew Himself, Says Detroit Suspect

Confessions Obtained by Force, Schwertzer Testifies at Trial.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 5. — William C Schweitzer, 26-year-old hotel habitue, on trial with three former burlesque theater dancers for the hold-up slaying of Howard Carter Dickinson, New York attorney, testified today that Dickinson shot himself in Schweitzer's automobile while it stood in Rouge Park last June 26.

He also charged that three confessions already read into the record were obtained during four days of almost continual questioning during which he was beaten by detectives and given but litle food.

With Florence and Loretta Jackson, sisters, and Jean Miller, on trial with him, Schweitzer testified, he and Dickinson went for a ride following a party in Schweitzer's hotel room. He said he stopped the car at the request of one of the women.

"The girls got out of the car and I had one foot on the running board myself, when I heard a shot in the back seat," Schweitzer testified. "I looked back and saw 'Dick' stretched out on the seat with a gun in his hand. I made a grab for it and when my fingers closed on it, it went off again. Dick slid out of the car, his feet resting on the fender."

Following his arrest in Fort Wayne, Ind., with the three women, Schweitzer said, he was turned over to Michigan officers at the State line despite his refusal to waive extradition. "They worked it," he said, "by putting the girls in a different car and taking them by a different route. They saw to it that there were no witnesses."

Of the questioning, Schweitzer said "so many people took part in it that I got confused. They took me into another room and when I stepped through the door somebody hit me and knocked me clear across the room." He said that during the four days of questioning in Detroit following his return here, he was given only two rolls and a cup of coffee each day.

Farmers' Income U 2 Billion Over 1832

Only 4 Billions Less Than Peak Reached in 1929.

American farmers' gross income for last year was placed yesterday at $7,300,000,000 by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the total showing an increase of $900,000,000 over the 1933 income and an increase of nearly $2,000,000,000 over the 1932 total. The peak of income since 1920 was in 1929, when the total was $11,971,000,000.

Cash income from production and Government payments was $6,267,000,000 in 1934, compared with $5,409,000,000 in 1933 and $4,377,000,000 in 1932. Benefit payments amounted to $594,000,000 in 1934 and $278,000,000 in 1933.

Production costs have increased less than income, the bureau found. Production expenses in 1934 were placed at $3,010,000,000, compared with $2,861,000,000 in 1933. The greatest increases in farmers' expenditures in 1934 were for farm machinery and automobiles.

'Marrying Parson' Removes Sign

With advertising signs of "marrying parsons" banned by a new ordinance in Elkton, Md., the Rev. Edward Minor (back turned), assisted by a policeman and a visitor, is shown dismantling a sign yesterday.

Elkton's Marrying Parsons Contrive Less Blatant Signs

Ministers of Maryland's Gretna Green Join in Appeal to Town Council to Permit Display of Markers at Least at Residences.

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., Aug. 5.—Their big signboards banished by a new town law, Elkton's two "marrying parsons" today sought another way to let lovelorn couples know where they can find a minister and marriage license in this Gretna Green.

They centered upon an appeal to the city council that they be allowed to post small signs on their homes to guide altar-bound swains and lassies.

The first of the large "marriage information" posters was hauled down last midnight by the Rev. Edward Minor, its owner, aided by David J. Randolph, town officer, and a spectator.

The others, belonging either to Mr. Minor of the taxicab company which employs the Rev. Charles M. Cope, the other "parson," were pulled down soon afterwards.

The appeal for the smaller signs will be considered by the council Wednesday. Until then, at least, the knot-tying clergymen and their affiliates must make out with the sign boards and information booths maintained outside the corporate limits.

Mr. Minor said he could not understand either the new town law or charges of "commercialism" hurled at him. Stating he was a member of the Southern Baptist Association, he insisted he followed its tenets "not to exploit my business in any way."

He said the taxicab company once offered him a job to "do their marrying business on a salary basis, but I turned it down flat and they have antagonized me ever since."

Mr. Cope, a retired Baptist minister, who marries couples the taxicab company brings to him, had no comment.

5 Lorton Inmates Granted Paroles

Board Denies Petitions of 13 Others.

Five prisoners at Lorton Reformatory will receive conditional parole, it was announced yesterday following a meeting of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole at the Reformatory by Emmett J. Scott, board member. Those paroled were John Sims, Albert Lee, Joseph Edwards, Emmett Richards and Warren Robinson.

In addition, the board denied the applications of thirteen other prisoners. In some of these cases this action was taken with prejudice with the right to apply again permitted. In two cases final action was postponed.

'Mercy Slayer,' 81, Kills Helpless Son and Self

Goddard, Kans., Aug. 5 (AP).—William Whitby, 81-year-old farmer in failing health, slew a crippled son of 40 "in mercy," officers said, and then shot himself to death today. "He apparently could not bear the thought of leaving his son a burden on others," said Undersheriff Clem Rogers. "Murder and suicide," was the verdict of Dr. G. C. Davis, Sedgwick County coroner.

Rollo Whitby, the son, had been hopelessly crippled and an imbecile since a fall from a barn loft when he was 5 years old injured his spine. Whitby had cared for him cheerfully, but was depressed by the thought that his own ill-health would leave Rollo to be cared for by his stepmother and another son, officers said.

State Demands 2 Women Die In 'Torso' Case

Attorney Charges Murder Premeditated, Asks Extreme Penalty.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Terming the "torso" slaying of Ervin Lang "a long-premediated murder," Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty today demanded the death penalty for both the middle-aged women on trial for the murder.

Sitting side by side, Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, 43, the victim's mother-in-law, and Mrs. Evelyn Smith, 47, former burlesque dancer, listened without apparent emotion as the prosecutor declared "nothing but the extreme penalty should be meted out to these women."

Lon. Judge to Rule.

The trial got under way when both waived a jury and agreed Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the criminal court alone could decide their fate.

Prosecutor Dougherty told of the finding of Lang's body in a swamp near Hammond last July 10 and said he would prove that Mrs. Dunkel, motivated by jealousy, had induced Mrs. Smith to slay Lang for a payment of $500, of which $100 was given.

He asserted that two men, one in New York and another in Chicago, were offered money by Mrs. Dunkel to slay Lang, but that the plans went awry until she obtained the aid of Mrs. Smith.

Then, he continued, they drugged Lang and "Mrs. Smith applied ether pads until she was satisfied that Lang was dead."

Says Husband Aided.

"She then garroted Lang," the prosecutor declared and dismembered the body the next day, disposing of it with the help of her Chinese husband, Harry Jung, who is still a fugitive.

Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, counsel for the defendants, waived an opening argument and the trial was continued until tomorrow morning.

While Dougherty was delivering his statement in the crowded courtroom, Mrs. Smith sat with a prayer-book in her hands, while Mrs. Dunkel stared straight ahead, a handkerchief pressed to her face.

Woman Seeks $15,000 For Auto Crash Hurts

Attempt to Kiss Girl Bares Sister's Assault Story.

By the Associated Press.

Reidsville, N. C., Aug. 5.—Rockingham County authorities today arrested Charlie Richardson, 48, colored farm hand, and charged him with committing a criminal attack on a 16-year-old white girl, and an attempt to attack her sister, who is about 19. He was held in jail at Wentworth.

Officers who arrested the man said the older girl told them she went to the barn early this morning and that Richardson grabbed her and kissed her. She returned to the house and told her mother, she was quoted as saying. The mother called Richardson to the house and told him to get to work in the fields or her husband might kill him if he learned of his actions.

When the man was gone, the woman called officers and Deputy Sheriff L. M. Worsham arrested the man while he was at work, a few hours later.

IN fact it doesn't pay to gamble when the lives of others are concerned. One of the most dangerous hazards today along the highways is the motorist who clogs up the road in an outworn machine. He is a menace to the safety of others . . . as well as to himself.

It is foolish economy to drive a worn-out automobile. You can purchase a good re-conditioned Used Car for a moderate price and with terms that will not place a strain on your purse from the many money-saving offerings listed today and every day in The Post.

Motor Accident At Darnestown Hurts Brothers

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
Telephone, Shepherd 2363.

Two brothers were injured, one seriously, yesterday when the car operated by one of them, Walter Parkins, 20, turned over on the curve at the Darnestown Presbyterian Church. John Parkins, 19, suffered a fractured skull. Both are from Dickerson, Md.

The driver told police a tire blew out. The brothers were removed to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, Md. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Parkins, of Dickerson.

Walter had multiple contusions on the head and body. An operation was performed on John, whose condition was said to be serious.

The board of the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, Silver Spring, announced yesterday that it has decided to close the Sunday school until September 1 on account of an infantile parlaysis case in the community.

Kathleen Norris, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Norris, of Ridge avenue, has been in Children's Hospital with the disease since Friday. Yesterday physicians reported her condition as critical.

Rockville residents meanwhile, are considering a campaign to have the buses run all the way downtown instead of only to the District Line.

Hundreds of persons have been attending the carnival conducted under auspices of the Takoma Park American Legion post at Maple and Carroll avenues northwest.

The affair is scheduled to close tomorrow night. Paddle wheels and bingo are attracting many. These games are forbidden in nearby Montgomery County.

William H. Waters, sr., 55, retired farmer, died late Sunday at his home in Gaithersburg. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the funeral home of Ernest C. Gartner in Gaithersburg, with burial in Goshon Cemetery.

Mr. Waters was born in Kentucky, where he resided until he came to Gaithersburg 15 years ago and engaged in farming near Laytonsville. He retired about two years ago because of illness. He is survived by a son, William H. Waters, jr., of Gaithersburg.

Forest Glen Council, Knights of Columbus, will sponsor a crab feast on the grounds adjacent to St. John's Church, Forest Glen, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in conjunction with the Montgomery County Laymen's Retreat League.

Final plans for the feast, which will be featured by a special program of entertainment, will be made at a meeting of the council tonight in St. John's Hall.

Election of delegates to the American Legion convention in Ocean City, Septemebr 4 and 5, will take place at a meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Takoma Park American Legion Post, No. 28, tonight at 8. The meeting will be held in the home of the president, Mrs. L. E. Beacock, 234 Park avenue.

Mrs. E. H. Schulze Funeral Arranged

Silver Spring Resident Died in Auto Fire.

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Horner Schulze 63, of Wynnewood Park, Silver Spring, Md., who was burned to death in an automobile accident at Vineland, N. J., Sunday, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., at the Herbert B. Nevius funeral home here. Interment will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Schulze, the wife of Dr. Gustav H. Schulze, Washington druggist, was pinned in the car as it caught fire after a collision with another machine. Her husband was thrown clear with the impact, escaping with a cut over the eye. Llewellyn J. Hupp, jr., Mrs. Schulze's son by a former marriage, was cut on the right arm in an effort to remove his mother from the car and Miss Ann Coughlan, fiance of Hupp, is confined to her home in Woodside, Md., suffering with a slight concussion of the brain and cuts and bruises. The party had been vacationing in Atlantic City.

Born in Washington, Mrs. Schulze made her home here until her marriage to Lewellyn J. Hupp, of Cincinnati, when she moved to that city. After his death she came back to Washington and three years ago came to Wynnewood Park to live. Besides her husband and son, she is survived by a brother, Jack Horner, of Oklahoma.

Takoma Auto Dealer Burned by Backfire

J. Milton Derrick, Takoma Park automobile dealer and president of the Takoma Park Lions Club, was burned seriously yesterday when a truck backfired while he was priming a carburetor at his establishment, the Takoma Motor Co.

Derrick was burned on the face, arms and chest. He was taken to the office of Dr. W. A. Shannon in Takoma Park by P. Carlton Forsyth, a bookkeeper at the motor company office. He then was removed to his home in a serious condition.

Mrs. Derrick and their children were at South River on vacation. They returned last night to be at the bedside.

4,800 Expected To Cast Ballots In Arlington

Half of Qualified Electors May Vote in Primary Today.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the rising of the sun at 5:12 today, the battle opened for the Democratic nomination for the State Senate and all county offices. The polls will close at 7:15 p. m.

Indications are that there will be approximately 4,800 of the 9,000 qualified voters enter the primary. It is expected that the results of the election will be known soon after midnight.

The women's and men's Democratic clubs have completed plans for the receiving of returns at the courthouse. These will be broadcast to the crowds.

Work rapidly progressing in the shaping and grading of the county roads ready to receive the surface treatment, it was learned yesterday at the office of the county manager that a number of contractors have already obtained specifications for the work.

Bids will be opened at the county manager's office on the morning of August 12 for the surfacing treating of approximately 30 miles of roads where sewers have not been installed. The board will act on the bids opened at its meeting on August 14.

Bids for surface treating 40 miles of roads along which sewers have been installed will be opened the morning of September 12 in the county manager's office. The board will act on the bids at its meeting on September 14.

Miss Freeman Weds Dr. E. T. Campbell

Hagerstown Girl Married Saturday at Salisbury.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5.—Miss Charlotte Marjorie Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maxson Freeman, and Dr. Edgar Thrall Campbell, son of Dr. and Mrs. William Dick Campbell, Hagerstown, were married Saturday in the McKemie Presbyterian Church at Salisbury, Md., by the Rev. Ala Parsons, Washington, uncle of the bridegroom.

Mrs. George Richard Long, Salisbury, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, while the bridesmaids were Mrs. Charlotte Quillen, Miss Virginia Whyte and Miss Elizabeth Winslee, Salisbury, Md., and Mrs. Henry Briele, Baltimore. William Parsons Campbell, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Campbell is a graduate of Temple University and the Salisbury High School. The bridegroom is an interne at the Mercy Hospital, Baltimore. He was educated at the medical school of the University of Maryland, Johns Hopkins University and the Hagerstown High School. He recently was appointed medical officer at a Civilian Conservation Camp, near Savannah, Ga., after which he will return here and practice medicine with his father.

French to Bar U. S. Apples

Paris, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The French Ministry of Agriculture today refused the request of importers of American apples and pears for a 48-hour extension of their quota for the second quarter of 1935 to permit the shipment of 50 carloads of American fruit due August 16 on the Ile de France. The quota expires August 14.

There still are sufficient licenses for the second quarter, but the ministry's refusal for a time extension makes them useless.

A committee from the Woodlawn community headed by George Gillingham appeared yesterday before the meeting of the school board of Fairfax County, Va., urging that the present school site at Woodlawn be retained and additional land purchased for the new school to be erected in that section of the county.

A committee composed of School Trustees Mrs. M. L. Finks, of Mount Vernon District; Mrs. L. I. Dolph, of Lee District, and Vernon M. Lynch, of Falls Church District, was appointed to investigate the possibilities of acquiring additional land for the Woodlawn School.

A large delegaion of colored citizens appeared before the board asking additional school facilities and repairs to existing buildings for colored children. The matter was laid on the table pending further investigation and consideration.

It was reported that the county school book fund showed a profit last year of approximately $600. This fund is used to purchase school books from the printers and distribute them among the school children at low cost.

Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson, State School Architect Raymond V. Long and A. W. Petersilia, FERA projects engineer, will meet this week to confer on a local works progress program. Tobacco Crops Are Near Ruin, Reports Show

Maryland County Agents Reveal Dry Weather Reduces Yield.

Prospects for a favorable tobacco crop in Maryland have been "greatly reduced by unfavorable weather," it was announced yesterday by Dr. T. B. Symons, head of the University of Maryland extension service.

He pointed out that the growing crop had suffered in most sections from heavy rains and now is suffering from continued dry weather. Some farmers are reported as being forced to harvest theirs prematurely in an effort to save it.

P. E. Clark, county agent for Prince Georges County, said that although prospects for a normal crop in his section were good up to a few days ago, it appears now that the chance is small.

Fears Half Lost.

Every day without rainfall from now on means a loss of hundreds of dollars, he said, and unless there is sufficient rain in the next ten days the crop will be reduced one-half.

J. B. Morsell, county agent for Calvert County, said there had been normal crops in some sections of his county but that heavy rains followed by the prolonged dry spell had seriously affected most of them.

Some fields in this section have been estimated to have been injured 50 per cent. Even with normal rainfall, Morsell does not believe more than 75 per cent of the normal crop can be harvested.

St. Marys County.

For St. Marys County, J. Julius Johnson, county agent, estimates the crop will be at least 40 per cent short.

In Anne Arundel County, Stanley Day, county agent, reports very spotty conditions as to rainfall, with good color and growth in some localities, but a very light crop in prospect in most of the tobacco-growing areas. Bergen Brown, agent for Charles County, reported tobacco on soils deficient in humus is faring badly.

Tobacco Growers' Tour Will Be Held Tomorrow

The annual tour for tobacco growers of Prince Georges, Charles, and St. Marys Counties will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Upper Marlboro experiment station.

The tour was set for an earlier date than usual this year in order to avoid interfering with harvesting. Among the problems to be studied by the growers tomorrow are the following:

Different applications of nitrogen; topping experiments; rates and sources of potash; rates and sources of calcium; symptoms and effects of nutrition deficiency; different methods of applying fertilizer and irrigation; tobacco following legumes, and tobacco following weeds. Growers from Anne Arundel and Calvert Counties studied the problems yesterday at the Upper Marlboro station.

Rabies Treatments Decline During July

While Prince Georges County health officials continued their battle against the spread of hydrophobia Maryland State health officials yesterday announced a decrease in the number of persons given antirabbies treatment.

Only 13 persons, believed bitten by rabbies-infected dogs, received the treatment in July, they said. Thirty-two were treated in June, 30 in May, 24 in April and 15 in March.

Dr. Robert H. Riley, State health officer, who made the announcement through Dr. A. B. Hooton, county health officer, said four times as many applied but did not need the treatment.

He also announced that the quarantine regulation against dogs in the Beltsville area, where a mad dog bit several persons and numerous animals last month, would remain until October.

Another dog from that area was taken into custody for observation last week by Dr. Mark Welsh, State veterinarian. At the live stock sanitary laboratories at College Park, Dr. Welsh said he was sure the dog was infected.

Man Held in Robbery Denies Assault Charge

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Corpl. A. J. Morgan, of the State police, said tonight that George France, colored, denied charges by North Carolina officers that he is wanted in that State for assaulting an elderly white woman. The man was arrested Wednesday for attempted robbery of Mrs. F. Guy Ash, wife of the State adjutant general.

His fingerprints were sent to North Carolina, where it was said they fitted the identification of a man known as James Johnson and charged with assault at Leakesville on February 1. Capt. H. N. Rexroad, of the State police identification bureau, said the Negro confessed striking Mrs. Ash after she awoke while he was in her home Wednesday.

Three Officials at Rockville Trapped for Overtime Parking

Three of the town's most prominent citizens have fallen victims to a campaign against overtime parking in Rockville, Md. When Deputy Sheriff Leslie B. Thompson was appointed town bailiff July 15 he was ordered by the town council to enforce the law without fear or favor. He accepted the order literally.

In the net to date: Town Councilman G. LaMar Kelly; Frank H. Karn, president of the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners, and Judge Harold C. Smith, of the county police court at Rockville. In addition, Herman Rabbitt, Gaithersburg cattle dealer, who was shot at Thursday by a mysterious assailant, found Bailiff Thompson a better marksman with a parking summons. All four were charged with overtime parkings.

Judge Smith and Commissioner Karn are scheduled to appear in court today to pay fines of $3.50 if convicted. The judge will have to appear before Mayor Douglas M. Blandford if he goes to trial. Rabbitt and Councilman Kelly are scheduled to appear August 12.

The bailiff placed warning tickets on more than 75 cars before he began summoning "for keeps."

The Cartoon Incident.

It is difficult for the Occidental mind, and particularly those accustomed to an unornamented sort of democracy, to appreciate the attitude with which the Japanese regard their emperor. To the average citizen of Japan Hirohito is the direct descendant of Amaterasu-Omikami, the Sun Goddess, who set her grandson on the throne of Nippon about 660 B. C. This belief is implicit in the wording of so serious a document as the Japanese constitution which declares the emperor, to be "sacred and inviolable." Under these circumstances, good taste, if nothing else, should have precluded publication in Vanity Fair of the jeering cartoon which has brought an official protest from Tokyo.

The wisdom of entering a diplomatic protest against such a trivial incident, however, is quite a different matter. The American Government makes no effort to protect its own officials from the jibes of the press. And it is absurd to expect it to encroach upon the freedom of the press for the benefit of another country. This really very insignificant incident should have been forgotten.

It has been widely suggested that the protest was inspired by the military clique in Tokyo which depends for its success in the costly and dangerous game of territorial expansion on the unquestioning loyalty of the populace. Persuaded that the Japanese will be willing to supply taxes and cannon fodder only as long as they have before them the ideal of a royalty of divine origin, the militarists are said to be taking every last precaution to preserve that ideal.

If this is so and if the cartoon was such as to undermine the faith of the masses, then the militarists' move in instructing their Washington ambassador to register a protest was poorly planned. Simply to have banned the few copies of the magazine that enter Japan would have served their purpose. As it is now, the cartoon has been displayed through newspaper reprints to many thousands in this country who never would have seen it. And quite probably the last of the cartoon has not yet been heard in Japan. The shears of the censor cut two ways.

Blocked By Unfair Criticism.

The recent order for deportation of 151 criminal aliens has revived interest in the Kerr bill, through which the Department of Labor hopes to speed foreign underworld characters to their native lands. Approved by committees in both the House and Senate, this measure has been snagged by unfair criticism. As soon as Congress finds time to cut through current misrepresentation the bill doubtless will be enacted.

Department of Labor experts studied this problem for two years before recommending legislation. They found in the present law defects which prevent the deportation of habitual criminals from other countries. On the other hand, the survey revealed that extreme hardships are sometimes imposed upon aliens of good character who have committed some minor offense. The Kerr bill aims at correction of both defects.

To avoid the separation of husband and wife or parents and children, deportable aliens without criminal record, who have lived for more than ten years in this country, might be permitted to remain at the discretion of an inter-departmental committee, even though under the present law they would be deportable. This provision of the Kerr bill has given rise to a mistaken belief that every deportation in the future would be subject to the discretion of this committee. As a matter of fact, the mandatory provisions of the law would not be disturbed in the case of habitual criminals. On the contrary, the deportation of felons would be facilitated.

One section of the bill would make carrying a dangerous weapon a deportable offense. This is aimed at gunmen and racketeers. But if it were made mandatory, non-criminal foreigners might be deported for attempting to defend themselves. Obviously a new provision of this kind must be made discretionary to avoid intolerable abuses. Since hundreds of gangsters can not be reached by the present law, it is utterly absurd to assume that this new discretionary provision would weaken the hand of immigration officials in dealing with felons from other countries.

Any legislation in this field is necessarily complicated and therefore easily misunderstood. Certainly, however, the Kerr bill deserves more thoughtful consideration than it has received. The committees sponsoring it would do well to refute the prevalent misinformation and carry it to the floor.

Superficial Improvement.

During the 18 months from January 1, 1934, to June 30, 1935, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reports, only 22 insured banks with deposits of $5,056,000 closed their doors. Over 93 per cent of the deposits held by the 19 banks which have already been placed in liquidation was fully covered by insurance, after deducting secured deposits and those subject to offsets. Furthermore, 99 per cent of the individual depositors sustained no loss at all, since their deposits did not exceed $5,000. The FDIC, however, estimates that its net losses will amount to approximately $1,500,000 on an assumed deposit liability of $2,700,000 for the banks in question.

While the amounts involved in these bank failures are small and the almost complete protection afforded depositors is gratifying, it would be a grave mistake to infer that this favorable showing eliminates the danger of widespread closures with accompanying heavy losses. The good record is attributable to a number of special factors that offer no guarantees of immunity from a recurrence of past disasters.

In the first place, the banking structure has been temporarily strengthened by the elimination of thousands of weak institutions that could not survive prolonged depression and accompanying deflation. Furthermore, the Federal Government through the RFC has helped to rebuild the impaired capital structures of many remaining banks. Virtually all such institutions have been aided by the rise in prices of commodities and securities which has increased the value of their assets. Given this favorable combination of circumstances and protection against "runs," it would be strange if bank failures had been numerous. Indeed, the high percentage of loss to total liabilities of the banks that have been liquidated is rather astonishing.

At the end of June 14,279 banks with total deposits of $41,000,000,000 were participants in the Federal insurance plan, and the liabilities assumed by the FDIC for these banks amounted to an estimated $18,000,000,000. In view of the magnitude of the risks involved, Chairman Crowley rightly emphasizes the importance of strengthening the capital structure of insured bank and eliminating uneconomic and badly managed institutions. While the bankers themselves should be concerned, as he says, to reduce to a minimum losses from a fund to which all contribute, only the Government can correct those fundamental defects of our banking system which have caused hundreds of failures in good as well as bad years.

With thousands of independent banks, many of them with wholly inadequate capital, operating under the laws of 48 States and the Federal Government, banking mortality has been unavoidably high. The only way to prevent a recurrence of past disasters is to effect basic reforms aimed at unification of the banking system and strengthening of the units which constitute that system. So far Congress has been content with superficial remedies that fail to reach the seat of the trouble. It has restored public confidence in a feeble credit mechanism by resort to deposit insurance.

As a temporary expedient for enabling a discredited banking system to function, deposit insurance serves a useful purpose, but it provides no long-time solution of the problems. In view of the optimistic tenor of the FDIC report, it is well to remember that deposit insurance is not an evidence of strength but a confession of weakness.

The Wrong Approach.

In line with proposals advocated by the American Federation of Labor, Senator O'Mahoney has introduced a bill to replace the old NRA. The measure provides among other things for licensing of concerns engaged in commerce "among the States" and Federal incorporation of such businesses. It would guarantee the right of collective bargaining, prohibit child labor and impose punitive damages upon directors who take "unconscionable profits" from stockholders. Corporate surpluses would also be limited and equal voting power would be given to all stock.

Senator O'Mahoney maintains that this plan for bringing a large part of the trade, commerce and manufacturing of the country under the regulatory authority of the Government acting through an enlarged Federal Trade Commission would mean actual self-government in industry and put an end to the expansion of bureaucracy. It would be interesting to know by what tortuous process of reasoning he has evolved such an astonishing conclusion from the language of the bill.

The mere matter of determining whether a given concern is or is not engaged in "commerce among the States" would give employment to a small army of bureaucrats. Few will share Senator O'Mahoney's confidence that it is possible to draw a line between commerce that is completely within a given State and commerce which extends to or affects other States. Even supposing that a working differentiation could be made which the courts would uphold, a question arises as to whether the Federal Government is equipped to take over the administrative duties that would devolve upon it under the proposed bill.

The NRA did not collapse merely because it was unconstitutional; it was in a state of decline long before the Supreme Court dealt it a crushing blow, because it had undertaken too ambitious a task of regulation. That experience strongly indicates that such a comprehensive regulatory plan as that of Senator O'Mahoney would likewise overwhelm responsible administrative agencies.

If we are to have a genuine form of self-government in industry, the way to get it is to encourage voluntary agreements by removing some of the senseless prohibitions of our anti-trust laws, instead of multiplying obstacles to cooperative solution of the problems of competing industries.

Geneva's Contribution.

The Council of the League of Nations has done a good deal better than was generally anticipated in its special session on the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia.

The mere fact that the formula agreed upon has been promptly accepted in Addis Ababa, and is regarded as by no means entirely satisfactory in Rome, represents a measure of success. For if there was ever a perfect case of that premeditated aggression which the League Covenant was designed to eliminate, it is to be found in Mussolini's designs on the primitive African empire. Even to check those designs in a way acceptable to the presumptive victim is a real success for the Geneva method.

The council adopted two resolutions, one unanimously and the other with the Italian delegate refraining from voting but not offering active opposition. The first, formally approved by Italy, provides for the addition of a fifth arbitrator to the commission which has been seeking to adjust the Ualual incident, and stipulates that a report from this augmented commission shall be transmitted to the council before September 4. The second resolution is short but vital, merely stating that:

> The council decides to meet in any event September 4 to undertake a general examination in their various aspects of relations between Italy and Ethiopia.

The significance of the first resolution is minimized because Italy has denied the commission competence to decide whether the Ualual incident took place in Italian or Ethiopian territory, which of course is the basic issue. But there is rather more to the council's move than would appear from emphasis of that just criticism. The appointment of a neutral arbitrator should enable the commission to come to a decision on other aspects of the Ualual incident. Broadly speaking, that decision must either find Italy or Ethiopia responsible. If the former, Mussolini would find it doubly difficult to reply to an adverse judgment by the use of force. And if the award should favor Italy's case, that country would be equally bound by moral standards not to attempt to exact additional damages.

The acceptance of continued arbitration, plus the decision of the council to take up the problem again in a month's time, therefore, unquestionably makes it more difficult for Italy to employ force to wreak her will. On the other hand, it puts that nation in a strong position to exact far-reaching concessions as the price of refraining from hostilities.

In the discussions now initiated between Great Britain, France and Italy the real problem is to find a solution which will at least partially meet the Italian program of expansion in East Africa without intolerably infringing the sovereignty of Ethiopia. If that problem can be solved, there will be no war.

Maud On Nationalism.

Who could have imagined, 25 years ago, that the Mother of Parliaments, the British House of Commons, would ever devote crowded hours to debate upon the question whether "England is the best country in the world?" Whether a 13-year-old schoolgirl expresses "a dangerous imperialism" when she voices such a sentiment? Whether the school inspector who says so is or is not deserving of censure?

Nevertheless, only last week all this happened to Parliament and to Maud Mason, of Manchester. She had expressed her opinion in a school essay. The inspector expressed his opinion in commenting on that essay to Maud's teacher. The teacher protested in the name of patriotism. "The Commons," says a dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, "considered the affair as a test case concerning the teaching of citizenship." And not even his majesty's minister of education could quiet the teapot tempest that ensued.

Maud may only have meant that in England life is just now more comfortable than elsewhere: a defensible thesis. On the other hand, she may also have meant that the English nation is morally superior to every other: a thesis somewhat less susceptible of proof. Most likely, she was no clearer as to what she meant than that other English schoolgirl who recently defined an octopus as "one who hopes for the best." At any rate, upon the problem which Parliament read into her maiden essay, no decision was reached.

Nevertheless, the debate was profitable. Maud had a good time, because she occupied a front seat in the visitors' gallery. The parliamentarians had a good time because, as their tastes prompted, they could either plead for an arrogant patriotism or argue for a becoming modesty And to all non-Britains the incident offers a pleasant opportunity to point out that it was Maud who should have been censured because, of course, their own particular country, whichever it may be, "is the best country in the world!"

The Capitol is shocked by this profit-splitting of a gas and electric company. It is astonishing how the senatorial heavens can be darkened by so light a matter.

The French have arrested a Teutonic barmaid on charges of espionage. What in the world have the Germans to learn from Gallic lager?

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I cannot let the opportunity pass to congratulate you upon the lead editorial in The Post of August 2, "No Cause for Alarm."

It sets forth clearly the situation (as regards infantile paralysis—Ed.) as it exists at this time, and I believe it will go far toward allaying undue apprehension.

The Disaffection Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The McCormack-Tydings military disaffection bill is a typically idiotic and dangerous product of the martial mind. It aims to make the soldiery even less thoughtful and intelligent than they are at present. They are to be shut off completely from the drafts of criticism, from the winds of freedom. They must not be led to suspect that our political system could possibly be improved either in form or in functioning. Still less must they be permitted to realize that the military system that they support is an antiquated, iniquitous racket—"Theirs but to do and die!"

The danger in the proposed legislation lies in the power given the dictatorial element of the country to lay the foundations for a Fascist state, through throttling all criticism of our military establishment and military system. It is a direct violation of both the spirit and the letter of the American Bill of Rights. But our guaranteed freedom of speech and of the press has been violated before. We may be sure, therefore, that if this document goes into effect our prisons will be filled with those who will not be gagged and who will continue to criticize the war racket and its unscrupulous supporters.

All Americans who have a spark of manhood or womanhood in them should raise a mighty protest against this effort to rob them of their constitutional rights, and should especially make a point of letting their Congressmen and the President hear from them regarding the matter. LIBERTY BELL.

Midsummer Night's Dream.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I dreamed that in the New Deal of the year 2033, following the tremendous crash of 2029, one of the reconstruction measures of the Roosveltian Party, restored to power in the election of 2032, was the creation of a summer capital of the Nation in the Adirondacks. Beginning May 1 each year a mighty exodus of officials and clerks moved with train loads and truck loads of file cases and other paraphernalia from Washington to a high plateau above Lake George where substantial but airy office buildings and living quarters were provided.

We worked from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. in the exhilarating mountain air, producing at a phenomenal rate, and then for the rest of the day abandoned ourselves to sport and recreation, swimming, canoeing, speed-boating, mountain climbing, aeroplaning, etc. Boy! That was the life!

Then I awoke sizzling and stewing in a Washington temperature of 96. What a midsummer night's dream! Will it ever come true, I wonder?

"If This Is Socialism——"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Certain religious groups in the United States have seen fit to disparage the new revival of public education in Mexico as "socialistic." The government of Mexico is making a constructive effort to establish a strong system of state and federal schools. The nation is following the example of the United States. It is an avowed purpose of the Mexican government to publicly teach "socialistic principles" in the schools of Mexico. But why this should be branded as something pagan, devilish or criminal is beyond the ken of thinking men. Is it socialism to teach humanity, freedom of thought, freedom of expression and the biological truths? Or the facts about social and economic relationships which study and research reveal?

If the educational system, or lack of system, which dominated the minds of Mexico for the past century failed to bring enlightenment for the preservation of civilization and liberty to Mexico, do we wonder now that the Mexican government is determined to bring the social and economic and cultural level of the masses in Mexico to a higher fruition?

Since the old system in Mexico failed, may the light of modern times help the new to succeed! If this is "socialism," then it is these "socialistic principles" which we wish to bring before the people—in the United States and Mexico.

The Single Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is refreshing for the student of American history to read that at the conclusion of Thomas Jefferson's first term as President of the United States he was able to point with satisfaction to having reduced the national debt an average of $7,300,000 each year of his term, that he had reduced the number of public officials exactly one-half, that he had reduced the expenses of the Navy a considerable amount and that he had acquired the Louisiana territory without the addition of a single soldier. Jefferson was not in the ordinary sense a politician. He deprecated the appearance of the President where such an appearance could be construed as display for personal advantage.

Henry George took up the problem of statecraft where Jefferson left off, and this perfected democracy would, if adopted, liberate that prosperity which all men are desiring at the present time. This provides the abolition of all taxes which now are binding business and industry as by an unbreakable band and the providing of government with its natural revenue to be secured by a single tax upon ground rents. When the Government at Washington has tried every other experiment, the single tax will prove to be the success in providing prosperity that has been claimed for it for nearly 60 years.

History Of Apology.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the mob crashed the stanchions of the S. S. Bremen in its berth at New York harbor, tore down the swastika as a mark of its anger and hatred of German domestic behavior, the rioters were guilty of an unlawful act. These men have been arrested and brought to trial in New York. According to custom the offended government made representations to the State Department, complaining of the actions of the mob, and intimating that the offenders be punished. The State Department has politely expressed regret, inviting attention to the fact that the rioters are now in the hands of the court.

In 1890 a mob in New Orleans lynched a number of Italians alleged to have been implicated in the murder of the local chief of police. Secretary Blaine promptly expressed regrets for the affair and subsequently indemnity was paid by the United States to the families of the murdered men. Ten years later, during the Boxer uprising in China, Baron Ketteler, the German Minister, was murdered by the mob. China created a special mission to visit Berlin with official regrets for the killing. China also agreed to build a suitable memorial with inscriptions in Chinese, Latin and German, testifying to perpetual regrets for the death of the minister.

The most conspicuous case of apology to be found in American history is that associated with the settlement of the I'm Alone case, the Canadian rum-runner sunk in the Gulf of Mexico. The case went to arbitration, a Justice of the United States Supreme Court acting as the American arbitrator, while a former Senator was engaged as counsel with a fee of $10,000. The arbitrators found that the act of sinking the ship, I'm Alone, by the Coast Guard, was an unlawful act—that the United States ought formally to acknowledge its illegality and to apologize to the Canadian government therefor and further to pay damages in the amount of $50,660.

When officers or agents of the government are in error, their acts may be disavowed; when a mob destroys, its conduct can only be deplored—with indemnity in the distance. JOSEPH A. CONRY.
Washington, Aug. 1.

Wrong Or Mistaken?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a typical incident in the most prolonged and gigantic exhibition of dictatorial bulldozing ever witnessed in the land of a free people, the utilities lobbying investigation seems to be quite sicklied over with the rancid smear of offensive self-righteousness. While one can not but look with uncompromising condemnation upon any improper methods which may have been employed by some utilities lobbyists, neither can one but look with equally uncompromising condemnation upon the infinitely more vicious political pressure tactics which forced honorable business enterprise to take the field in its own defense.

The arrogant assumption that the Administration is always right while everybody and everything else is always wrong would fit perfectly into the political and social patterns of certain already unhappily notorious countries on the other side of the Atlantic. Such an attitude would seem to be wholly out of place in the United States of America in the year 1935. If the Administration is never either "wicked" or wrong, may it not be that it is, occasionally, simply mistaken? AN OBSERVER.

The Post Impressionist

One of the Big Fellows

Post Office, Tuesday.

"SINCE you seem to know that Henry M. Stanley was an author of fiction, can you," inquires John Haig, "tell us who it was that carved the Cardiff Giant—and hoaxed all America? There was a picture of this fake in The Post's Rotogravure Section a couple of weeks ago."

Well, many years past, the Popular Science Monthly investigated that riddle and placed the answer on the shoulders of "an American named Markham and a German named Edward Salle." But our own belief has always been that this usually exact magazine made a miss as to Markham and confused "Salle" with Sala. We have always believed that the Cardiff relic was the creation of an Illinois gentleman well named G. Fabrico Sala.

Anyhow, Sala himself said so:

"Yes, I carved the Cardiff Giant. Mr. Taylor got me to do it. He paid me $15,000 for the job—and afterward he'd mail me $500 or so whenever the receipts were uncommon good. Mr. Taylor was a gentleman."

* * *

In 1868 some well-diggers, engaged at their trade near Cardiff, in Onondaga County, N. Y., came upon a strange male figure—a figure of gypsum, 10 feet 6 inches high, "with shoulders of 4-foot breadth"—a rude figure, yet not inartistic. They turned him over to a rural tobacconist for a sort of cigar store Indian. A Syracuse doctor examined the find and bought it for $10,000. The State geologist pronounced it "a statue of great antiquity." The professor of natural science at Rochester University declared:

Eftsoon, scientific societies from almost all over the country were sending observers: none was audibly dissatisfied. Finally that savant, Phineas T. Barnum, pronounced the image "the petrified body of an early man," and acquired him for the Barnum Museum.

* * *

G. F. Sala had some local reputation as a sculptor in those days of a simple Illinois, but sculpture brought him little besides reputation—until it brought him the mysterious Mr. Taylor. Visiting San Francisco 33 years ago this summer, the aging Sala told a California newspaper man:

"I did my work for Mr. Taylor in a barn near Quincy, Ill., using gypsum obtained in that neighborhood, where gypsum is common. The 'pores' in the 'skin' were made by puncturing the surface with needles on the end of lead hammers: that's what produced the queer 'gooseflesh' effect that puzzled a lot of scientists.

"Understand," said Mr. Sala, "all I did was to carry out a limited commission—to make a certain statue in a certain way—and keep quiet. At the time I wasn't told anything about what the statue would be used for. But I learned afterward that the work was sandpapered and bathed in sulphuric acid to give it the effect of age. And I know it was smuggled out of the barn, sent by rail in a locked box car to Chicago, by the Lakes to Buffalo and from there to Cardiff by canal—all on the quiet."

* * *

The first learned person to attack the hoax was Dr. O. C. Marsh, of Yale. He noted that the face of the giant was smooth and little disfigured, although it had been surrounded by wet earth and was composed of gypsum—gypsum being soluable in 400 parts of water. "Manifestly," said Dr. Marsh, "the figure could not have lain long at the spot where it was found."

Whereupon Mark Twain took his fling.

* * *

But none of these revelations perturbed the master showman, or, for the matter of that, kept the crowds from paying to see "The Petrified Man." Sala said that, to his knowledge, the statue earned $400 nightly "for a considerable time in Boston alone." Statisticians of almost equal eminence estimated its total earnings at a figure far in excess of $3,000,000.

It survived exposure for a decent decade. It may be said to have died—when it did die—a natural death.

* * *

Lincoln thought you could fool only some of the people all of the time. But P. T. Barnum, who based his successful career on the theory that people like to be fooled, knew that some were always sufficiently numerous to provide a comfortable living for the fooler.

Moreover, like every great genius, he appreciated the value of preparation a long time ahead of time.

* * *

For who was Mr. Sala's mysterious Mr. Taylor?

"Oh, Mr. Taylor," said Mr. Sala, "turned out to be some sort of business connection of Mr. Barnum."

* * *

Genus Americanus.

OUR subject is a male of 60 years. His hair is white and he is, according to our sentimental traditions, a kindly, salty party with a twinkling eye (blue if you prefer), a sprig of beard, a doughty independence and a fine, wholesome soul. He has lived a good life, raised a family of useful citizens, boys and girls, who now have bred children of their own, and has been absolutely loyal to his wife, or, in consecutive order, to his wives.

Our subject has arrived at his present age in shape to review his brief past with serene satisfaction and his infinite future with unruffled confidence.

He is the composite venerable American. He is the male figure in the advertisements of the annuity companies, walking slowly into the shadows arm in arm with a sweet-faced, white-haired lady of the same age, or thereabouts. He is illusion. He may be all that he seems to be, but in thousands of cases he was a loafer in his youth who had to do business at the business end of a shovel from time to time in order to keep out of the county jail in, say, Iowa, or Colorado, or New Jersey.

• • • •

HE sold patent medicine from the tail board of a buggy in a dirt-road territory, pulled teeth by authority of a mail-order diploma, served six months under the colors in the war of '98 as a militant patriot stationed at Chattanooga, seduced a waitress in Wichita, sold his vote at the rate of a dollar a crack in the first ward of Chicago in the rough-and-tumble days, bellyached for a veteran's pension, got it; squawked for more, got it; trifled, married, bred, wandered away, married again and yet again, breeding as he went, and is now 60 years old.

That is none of his doing, however; time did that for him.

Nevertheless, he, too, is now eligible for an old-age pension of $50 a week, never having been convicted of a crime. And the people who will pay him his pension are the working people who come on after him, and, observing a more conscientious code of conduct, advanced themselves to that station which is honored with the privilege of paying the income tax. Our subject is 60 years old, a father, a grandfather, an old patriot, a militant American veteran of a push-over war, a Treasury stiff, a life-long moocher and guest of his fellowmen and a grand old man who has never earned his way.

Reality is revolting and I expect to be scolded for suggesting that any man who wears white hair and is unable to work now that his muscles are old and his bones are cold never was willing to work and wouldn't have been worth a dollar a day to any employer at any stage of his life even if he had been willing to carry his weight. Our subject managed to be parent of several younger citizens, no particular thanks to him, who will take considerable umbrage at the very suggestion that their dear old pappy is anything less than the symbol of goodness now that he might be elected to a pension of $50 a week, which would not only take him off their hands but, possibly, contribute something to their own support. But the young ones may be no better than their pappy themselves.

OLD DOCTOR TOWNSEND, who invented or adapted the plan to which he gave his name, was a physician and surgeon in a frontier country for many years. He observed that parents, in many cases, became parents through no nobility of soul but only because nature had certain definite ideas about cause and effect in people as well as in rabbits and cattle.

The Townsend plan assumes, however, that all persons who arrive at the age of 60 are automatically shriven of all laziness, dishonesty and whining self-pity and are automatically endowed with noble qualities, retroactively.

I only suggest that people are people just as pigs are pigs and that it is no infallible mark of virtue to have lived 60 years. There are hundreds of thousands of men and women in their forties, thirties, twenties and 'teens today who will reach the age of 60 without the slightest claim on the generosity or duty of younger people coming on behind, even though they do keep out of prison.

Anyone who aspires to a public pension at the age of 60 should be willing to stand inspection as to whether he earned secure repose by honest work during the years when he was coming along. We all know many contemporaries who will not be able to qualify when their time comes.

Helen Moody

By

William Lyon Phelps

NO tournament of tennis, open to men and women, has ever resembled the tournament at Wimbledon in England in this present year of 1935.

This is the only time in tennis history where the excitement over the women's finals exceeded that aroused by the men's. It not only exceeded it, there was no possible comparison between the two—in anticipation, in watching the match itself, in the feverish discussions that followed. That final match in England between two American girls living 6,000 miles away, will be talked about by those who saw it for the rest of their lives; and it will appear in every book written on lawn tennis as one of the most sensational events in the history of athletic sports.

The male competitors played beautifully; and although Fred Perry in the finals established his reputation as the greatest living amateur player, there was no particular excitement—nothing like what there used to be when Maurice McLoughlin, the French musketeers, Billy Johnston, and, above all, Bill Tilden appeared. Everyone said Perry played a splendid game and let it go at that.

But the moment in the month of May when a girl in San Francisco, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, announced that she had suddenly decided to enter at Wimbledon—and it certainly seemed to be a sudden decision—that was first-page news all over the world. That assured the success of the Wimbledon tournament, which without her appearance would have been sadly lacking in sensations.

• • • •

And then, to have the drama in real life reach a climax that even the most theatrically successful maker of plays could not have surpassed! Although the English people naturally love to have their own fellow countrymen and countrywomen win, they would not have had this particular tournament take any other course than it did. To have those former rivals, Helen Jacobs and Helen Wills Moody, come through to the finals, seemed incredibly dramatic.

Geneva (By Mail.)

THE events of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict are developing on three fronts: the juridical, that of the League; the diplomatic front where it is rather a struggle between England and Italy than between Ethiopia and Italy, and finally the military front in Africa, which after all is the actual front.

Up till now it is on the League front that most of the events have happened. And, at this very time, it is toward Geneva and the council session that all eyes are turned and, indeed, not for the first time. The Ethiopian complaints first came to Geneva at the end of last year.

The affair opened with communications addressed to the secretary general, pertaining to the so-called Italian aggression at Walwal. The Walwal incident had occurred on December 5. On the 14th Ethiopia sent to the secretary general of the League a long statement of the facts throwing the rseponsibility on Italy. This note did not, however, ask the secretary general to bring the affair before the council. There followed then only a long paper warfare of notes through the medium of the League between Rome and Addis Ababa. The role of the secretary general was under these conditions limited to the handling of the notes and their transmission to the members of the League. As for Geneva, nothing could have been more pleasing.

Thus the first phase of the conflict was this paper warfare of notes. But suddenly at the end of December word came of Guerlogoubi and Ago incidents. Once again Geneva received a note from Ethiopia, on January 3, 1935. But this time the Ethiopian government did not limit itself to a report of the occurrences alone, but asked that the case be brought before the council as provided by Article 11 of the League Covenant. The request was made, however, in a vague manner and it was not until January 15 that a legal complaint was presented by Ethiopia to the secretary general. But this time the demand was formal, backed by a voluminous statement of the case. The council, which at this time was in session for the Saar affair, could do nothing further than accept the Ethiopian request. The affair was put down on the council agenda on January 17. The first battle on the League front opened.

BUT this first battle, hardly begun, was to end in an armistice. By two letters addressed to the secretary general, results of lengthy pourparlers in the League lobbies, on January 19 Italy and Ethiopia agreed to apply the procedure of direct negotiations, of conciliation and arbitration as stated in the treay of 1928. They agreed likewise to take every precaution to avert any untoward incident. Again a lull.

We come now to the month of February. The direct negotiations are making no headway. Italy is in no hurry to begin them, and when she does she demands reparations and will stand for no discussion of the responsibility for the incidents. Ethiopia, on the other hand, wants to begin discussions, since she insists she has been attacked. Again the affair is at a standstill. But suddenly, at the end of February and the beginning of March, a new development takes place: Italy mobilizes. This results, on the Geneva front, in Ethiopia sending a new complaint to the secretary general on March 17, based this time on Article 15. Ethiopia declares that there is danger of war, and that her territorial integrity is threatened by Italy. Rome is notified, replies, and the battle of notes starts up again. The secretary general is in no hurry to convene the council, knowing that is bodes no good for the League.

March and early April go by, the warfare of notes continues, the Italian mobilization is progressing, the transportation of troops and equipment is speeding up. We are already in mid-April. The Ethiopians, seeing that the door of the League is not being willingly opened to them, busy themselves in applying the treaty of 1928 which they had had the unfortunate idea of concluding. On both sides arbitrators are appointed, the Italians, as usual, taking their time. But on the Italian side the participation of foreign conciliators is objected to in the commission. Exasperated, the Ethiopians try again to gain admittance to the council room, while the council was convened in an extraordinary session to deal with the German rearmament affair. They were led out, as politely as possible, and were begged to be patient until May 30—that is, until the ordinary session of the council, on the agenda of which the Ethiopian affair has been noted. The Ethiopians had no choice but to leave Geneva with heavy hearts. Italy won the juridical battle this time and she was gaining time.

HERE, then, is the situation at the beginning of May this year: The affair began in December with Walwal in Africa, there followed the warfare of notes in Geneva, there were in January again incidents in Africa and this time the council was at last aroused. But it referred the affair immediately to direct negotiations. These failed, Italy mobilized, but the new complaint of Ethiopia is postponed to the session of May 20. Thus we come to the council session which was definitely given over to the Ethiopian questions and its discussions are at the bottom of all that is happening in Geneva at this time.

The May session of the council was a laborious one. The fundamental difficulty lay in the fact that Ethiopia, supported by Great Britain, was seeking to throw over the procedure of the 1928 treaty with Italy in favor of the procedure of the covenant. After countless pourparlers in which the role of France in the conflict first began to take on the appearance of that of the honest broker, an agreement was reached, representing a three-quarter victory for the Italians. For it was decided to employ the procedure of the 1928 treaty, which allowed Italy to drag out the affair for as long as she needed. One might wonder if the treaty of 1928 had not actually been negotiated by Italy with an eye to future juridical and diplomatic situations in which she might find herself in conflict with Ethiopia, so well do the clauses fit the present situation.

The quarter of the decision of May 25 which was unfavorable to Italy consisted of the fact that there were two delays. The conciliation was to be effected by July 25, failing which the council was to meet. And if the conciliation is not effected and arbitration is resorted to, a decision must be reached before August 25, otherwise the council is again to meet.

• • • •

AS is well known, the conciliation was not effected. On the contrary, during the fruitless discussions among the four conciliators, the conflict developed and was revealed in its true light, namely, as a problem of colonial expansion of the first magnitude. The council finds itself in a position very similar to that foreseen in the case: the Commission of Conciliation, so they say in Geneva, must become a commission of arbitration. The council, however, is in no way competent to nominate a fifth arbitrator.

Italy, on her side, agrees to the nomination of a neutral arbitrator as long as the discussions will be limited to the question of the responsibility in the Walwal incident. But Italy will never agree to the discussion of the question of frontiers by neutral arbitrators.

Under such circumstances, unless something extraordinary comes up it may be expected that the two parties will agree on the nomination of a neutral arbitrator. Formally the council will have only to take notice of this agreement. The great difficulty of negotiating during the council session will consist in persuading Ethiopia to accept this new rebuff from Geneva.

This is the most probable development foreseen in Geneva. Thus the struggle on the Geneva front consists in the following: Will Ethiopia succeed in withdrawing the conflict from the procedure of the 1828 treaty in order to place it firmly on the basis of the covenant or will the procedure of the 1928 treaty continue?

• • • •

HERE, then, is the juridical aspect of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. The number of events in the juridical field rather surpasses their importance. For the real battle ground is not in Geneva. The combatants are merely growling and showing their teeth at each other, but these teeth are false and can not bite; they are the articles of the covenant. Geneva is certainly a vast arena where the acts are staged, but they are simply dramatics designed for the public eye. The protagonists, when playing for themselves, play at home.

It is on the diplomatic field that all the important events have recently been happening, and it is there that they will be happening for some time to come. It would be wrong to compare the political front with a battle front. It would be more accurate to compare it to a market. Actually, putting aside all League and humanistic phraseology, the negotiations about Ethiopia are more like wholesale hagglings.

A bear's skin is to be sold; it is that of the Negus. But it is difficult to agree on the price. For each party wishes to come out on top of the bargain. England wants a large share of concessions, if she can not succeed in preserving the whole. France sees the opportunity of bindng Italy politically to her in Europe, and especially of forcing her to make the necessary concessions to the Little Entente in order that the Danubian treaty of guarantees may be concluded. While the bartering is continuing, the bear is still running loose. But once the bartering is finished, the field on which the conflict is being fought will change, for when they have gotten beyond the juridical and diplomatic stages, the bear hunt will begin in earnest.

Therein lies the third and real front of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, a front on which the battle will not be one of notes but of guns. For when land and liberty are at stake, arms always decide.

would have to conform to remain in existence.

Meanwhile, the Senate committee investigating utility lobbying changed its plans to resume today and does not plan to question Former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Associated Gas & Electric Co. attorney, then. The committee said last night it had set no date for resumption of its inquiry. Hurley volunteered to testify before the committee after his name had been brought in as receiving a fee of $25,000 from the A. G. & E. He was invited to fix a convenient time for his appearance.

The committee later plans to continue its investigation of the "whispering campaign" against President Roosevelt. A New Jersey advertising executive testified that he proposed such a campaign to officials of the Electric Bond and Share Co.

Committee investigators, it was learned, are examining the records of Dr. Hugh Magill, head of a group of public utility investors, who conducted a militant campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

Whispering Campaign Author Is Discharged.

By the Associated Press.

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 5.—E. P. Cramer, who suggested to utility company officials that a "whispering campaign" be used to discredit President Roosevelt and the New Deal, was discharged today by Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

In a statement signed by Charles Edison, president of the company and son of the late inventor, the firm said it felt Cramer's "advocacy of so reprehensible a plan" warranted his release.

Cramer had been employed as an assistant in the advertising department.

"Thomas A. Edison, Inc., is not a public utility, has no interest in the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, and no interest in Mr. Cramer's political views", a company statement said.

Heifetz Predicts Music Will 'Outdraw' Football

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Jascha Heifetz, internationally famous violinist, predicted tonight that "within a few years classical music will draw more people to the stadiums of America than football."

He made this statement at Lewisohn Stadium where, on bright autumn Saturday afternoons, Benny Friedman's City College football squad plays before meager crowds.

In contrast, 3,000 extra chairs had to be lined along the gridiron to accommodate the crowd which came clamoring to the gates of the stadium tonigrt to hear Heifetz play the Tchaikovsky concerto and Chausson's "Poeme" with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society Orchestra.

Heifetz said he felt "the amount of good music being played on the radio today has precipitated a musical renaissance."

No End of Books

Olla Podrida.

RICHARD C. BORDEN makes $50 an hour coaching big business executives in the art of standing up on their feet and making a speech, and no doubt it's worth it. You can have the gist of his advice for $1.50 in his little book: "Public Speaking as Listeners Like It" (Harper), and theres' even less doubt that you'll get your money's worth.

Like all good practitioners of a subject, he makes his book just as alive and cogent as he would have you make your speeches and after-dinner talks. The only important rule in formal public speaking, he says—and this is one of those few simplicities which seems sound enough—is the "listener's rule." First of all the listener says to himself: "Ho hum!" So you've got to kindle his interest, start a fire under him. Then he thinks: "Why bring that up?" To which your reply is to build a bridge from his own private interests to the topic of your speech. Then he thinks: "For instance!" So you must give him actual cases and examples. Finally, he thinks: "So what?" And you wind up by asking for action of some kind. Not to request something active and definite is a futility like that in the Chinese proverb: "To talk much and arrive nowhere is the same as climbing a tree to catch a fish."

IT'S been a long time since I've read a grammar and one or two of my kind readers have pointed out to me that the fact is not too inconspicuous. But from now on you may expect English of purest ray serence. Mason Long's "The New College Grammar" (Ronald Press Co., New York, $3), has come to hand, and its influence is already spreading benignly through me.

Being, in spite of the exceptions, an orderly subject, grammar is capable of the most entertaining schematization. Do you remember how you were taught to make outlines in school? The divisions of a subject graded from the Roman numerals "I, II, III," etc., all the way down to "a'', b'', c'','' and even further. "The New College Grammar" could give that scheme a two-minute start and overtake it in three blocks.

It is really an excellent job, and one much needed by all who care for words. The author is associate professor of English at the Pennsylvania State College—sufficiently a school-master to prohibit "It is me" (which I shall probably say at the gates of heaven, if and when) but no so stiff as to disallow the plural verb after "none" (and here I was born and bred to believe that "none of the rules of grammar are without exceptions" would be an ungrammatical sentence).

IF you were ever involved in the passionate crusade for the Tugwell Food and Drug Act, or if you have read any of the Consumers' Research exposes in the same field, you are probably convinced that the public lies at the mercy of a horde of diabolical manufacturers intent on mass poisoning. And no doubt you will likewise be conditioned to believe that the Government's ability to control this playfulness is somewhat like that of a Louisiana parish constable's to arrest Huey Long for speeding.

But, though beyond question there's room for improvement, these matters are not so black as they are painted. Any reader of Alexander P. Blanck's "Foods and the Law" (Peter Smith, N. Y., $2.50), can not but be impressed with the power and efficiency of the Government in protecting consumers of foods. To be sure there is plenty of shifty scheming and legal trickery in defiance of the law, but I believe it is a matter of no uncommon knowledge that in another field, that of the income tax, precisely kindred evasions have been heard of.

Mr. Blanck, a New York lawyer and an expert on food laws, gives over the first part of his book to citing clauses in the law and illustrating them with actual cases which have come before the courts. The second part is a collection of all the Federal laws relating to food—just the sort of thing you pay your lawyer $60 to amass. Specifically written for those who touch the food trade in any way, the book should be worth its weight in gold to any corner grocer, say, who does not realize that a fine of $200 or $300 and a year's imprisonment can descend upon him if he sells, albeit innocently and unwittingly, a single package of illegal food, and that he is wholly immune from prosecution if he has from the manufacturer a written guaranty of the food's legality.

The Once Over

Midget Money.

Uncle Sam wants to start minting demi-tasse money. He is trying to convince a House Committee that what the Nation needs is more change for a nickle. Designs for new half-cent and one-mill coins are in and you may soon need a wagon to back up for the change from a $5 bill.

• • • •

Most people thought they needed more of the old money instead of a supply of something new, but it's a dizzy era and anything that happens comes under the head of good clean fun.

• • • •

The new coins will be quite cute. The half-cent pieces will be doughnut shaped with a hole in the middle. This will provide for air-cooling when you are trying to count out 50 cents in new money in a hurry.

• • • •

The mill pieces will be square, combining the artistic beauty of the Chinese yen with the serviceability of a long used carpet tack.

• • • •

President Roosevelt personally designed the new Tom Thumb cash. The hole in the half-penny was his own idea. But it is understood the Treasury Department insisted upon the rim.

• • • •

When you pass a hat these days you will get it full in no time but you will still be $2 or $3 shy of anything substantial.

• • • •

The only beneficiaries of the new money will be the folks who always play bridge for half a cent a point.

• • • •

Except possibly the piker poker players from whom we may expect to hear in resolute tones the words, "I'll see your half a penny and up you a mill!"

• • • •

The effect on shopping is problematical. But enough confusion to satisfy the spirit of the age is certain. We look for the 60½-cent table d'hote dinner, the nine-mill lollipop for Junior and further chaos at the gas station when the attendant tries to figure out how much 4 2-3 gallons costs in mills.

Already this department has heard of a new institution in American chain stores. The 5½ and 10½ Cent Store.

Roberts Holds Official Lobby Charges 'Silly'

Criticism by Utility Group 'Most Ridiculous,' Counsel Says.

Criticism of so-called "lobbying" by Government officials, made by representatives of utilities corporations during the congressional lobby investigation, was characterized by William A. Roberts, people's counsel, as "the most ridiculous of all ridiculous statements."

Roberts' statement was made in his Monday night radio address from WOL. Some of the corporation representatives, he said, had contended Government officials had no more right to participate in the "drafting and passing of legislation than do the representatives of the corporate interests.

"The extent of the absurdity of this criticism appears most certainly in connection with complex legislation dealing with appropriations for the support of governmental activities.

Cites D. C. Procedure.

"For further example let us turn to District legislation. It is a rigid rule of both committees of Congress that no legislation concerning the District will be considered until a full report has been submitted by the Commissioners. This is obviously the proper course of action.

"I do not desire to support the use of administrative pressure to compel passage of legislation. These are matters of party politics of which I have no concern and upon which any citizens is entitled to his own opinion.

"To my way of thinking it would be advisable to expand greatly the legislative drafting service so as to include research bureaus and make it compulsory that all legislation be referred to these bureaus for analysis before consideration by congressional committees.

Holds "Science" Needed.

"A recent summary indicates a tremendous growth in the amount of litigation over questions of construction and interpretation of law. Unless more scientific means are adopted for the technical preparation of these statutes, it is obvious that the business man and the private citizen charged with the knowledge of the law will be in grave danger."

More reasonable and standardized legal fees charged by lawyers is a growing necessity, Roberts said. He stated it would be "an admirable experiment" to carry out a proposal that several lawyers be associated, "offering advice and minor drafting services for a fixed rate per visit," similar to the practice which has become common among physicians.

Mrs. Fiermonte, Enzo Reported in Newport

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte and her husband, Enzo, the pugilist, were reported visiting today in a Newport home, the first time they have essayed the citadels of that social capital, the Daily News says. Mrs. Fiermonte attended the wedding of John Jacob Astor 3d, her son, and the former Eller Tuck French at Newport last year but Fiermonte did not.

Later they went to Europe in a wave of reports of disrupted home life followed by a reconciliation. They returned last week from Europe but it was not known whether Mrs. Fiermonte has seen her grandson, William, born last month. The News says Mrs. Fiermonte and her husband went to the home of her sister, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, in the Newport colony.

Refused License in N.Y., German to Return Home

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Paul W. Kress, whose failure to obtain a masseur's license in New York City became an international incident, gave up the fight for his license today and announced he would return to his native Germany Wednesday to run his father's laundry.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia had refused to allow the license commissioner to issue Kress a masseur's permit on the ground that he was not naturalized.

He said he hoped that during his absence the question of his getting a masseur's license when and if he returned would be settled.

Famed Woman Scientist Dies at 64 in Berlin

Berlin, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Frau Prof. Lydia Rabinowitsch-Kempner, 64, world famous bacteriologist who taught in Philadelphia in 1896, died today.

A native of Kovno, she was a pupil of Koch, studying bacteriology and conducting research in tuberculosis infection in milk. Her last post—in 1920—was bacteriologist for the Berlin Municipal Hospital. She had been ill for many months.

Pensions Veto, Oil Plan Slated For Messages

Ickes to Be Ignored.

The legislation also would authorize the President to limit oil imports. The proposed board would have the duty of enforcing the Connally "hot oil" act, closing the channels of interstate commerce to petroleum produced in excess of State quotas.

The State oil compacts require congressional ratification and in submitting these agreements to Congress the President will urge their approval and at the same time will state his desire to have enacted the provisions of the Cole bill as outlined.

The Cole bill would make the proposed oil board an independent agency. Secretary Ickes vigorously opposed this provision, contending it should be under his jurisdiction. The White House conference left this point unsettled but it is understood Cole will proceed with his bill for an independent agency.

To Veto Pension Bill.

The President earlier in the day turned to the bill restoring the Spanish War pensions, struck down in the 1933 economy act, when he conferred with Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, and Acting Director of the Budget Daniel Bell. They brought to him reports on the bill, passed by Congress last week.

Bell's report was to the effect that the bill would add $45,000,000 to the budget and that no provision had been made to raise that sum. Hines did not reveal the contents of his report, but he opposed the bill when it was before Congress, and his view has not chnged.

The President made no statement regarding the pension bill. It was explained he would consider the Hines and Bell reports at length, but the attitude of those two officials was taken as indicative of the President's intention to veto the measure, which would wipe out the last vestige of his economy act. Had he intended to sign the bill, it was pointed out, he would not have called the two officials to the White House to discuss it with him.

Butchers Seek AAA Aid to End Strike

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 5.—Harassed Detroit butchers want the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to explain existing meat prices to the army of women, whose buying strike has cost them thousands of dollars in spoilage and lost sales.

"Housewives are naturally upset over high prices," Emil Schwartz, director of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said today, "but we are going to try to get a government man in here to give an official explanation."

Both dealers and packers have asserted repeatedly since the boycott was begun two weeks ago by several hundred hair-pulling, face-slapping women pickets, that AAA processing taxes are largely responsible for the prices which the strikers demand be reduced at least 20 per cent.

Schwartz predicted that almost all Detroit butcher shops would be closed after Thursday unless the strike is terminated.

2,600 Miners Strike In Missouri Dispute

Old Mines, Mo., Aug. 5 (AP).—Twenty-six hundred Washington County tiff miners were on strike and the National Pigment & Lead Co. plant was closed tonight following collapse of wage negotiations today.

The men began their strike after having previously decided to start it a week from today. On Saturday night, however, they voted to walk out today if the company did not accept their demand for an increase of $2 a ton for tiff mines on company property. Virtually all tiff produced in the United States comes from Washington County.

Tribute Paid First Congress At Perry Home

Mrs. McNeese Entertains Gathering With Talk on Early Government.

An enthusiastic gathering met last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis R. Perry in memory of the founding of the first Congress in the Western Hemisphere. They were called by invitation of Mrs. M. de Clare Berry, who devotes much of her time as an exponent of early Virginian and medieval history.

Mrs. McNeese, wife of Col. O. W. McNeese, U. S. A., of Louisiana, gave the entertainment of the evening on the 316 years of the people's voice in government which was started when two burgesses from each of the plantations along the James River in Virginia met and formed the law-making body at this outpost of the English-speaking races, from July 30 to August 5 in the year 1619.

Mrs. Berry showed a leaflet that she had sent to every member of Congress as now in session reminding them of the anniversary of the body that was the forerunner and forebear of their own body. She also called attention to the fact that the paintings in the Capitol Building left out the three points in early American history that established the English civilization in the Western Hemisphere, the Capitol paintings giving only the discovery by Columbus in 1492 and the landing of the Mayflower at the end of the year 1620. The three historic steps omitted were the discovery of the mainland of the North American Continent by the Italian brothers Cabot then in the service of Henry VII of England, next the three ships that founded the permanent English colony at Jamestown in May, 1607. After being firmly established for 12 years this colony called together the burgesses in 1619 (from July 30 to August 5) that established representative government out of which grew all steps in free franchise here west of the Atlantic ever since.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Branson, their daughters, Miss Margaret Branson and Miss Ramona Branson, and their son, Eugene, of Wichita, Kans., who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Walker for two weeks have left for the West. They will visit Lookout Mountain in Chattanooga, Tenn., and in Little Rock, Ark., enroute home.

Mrs. B. Shanks Chaney has returned after a six weeks' trip to California, where she visited her son, Dr. Albert L. Chaney and Mrs. Chaney in Glendale. She also spent a few days at the San Diego exposition.

Enroute West, she stopped in Jacksonville and St. Augustine, Fla., and in New Orleans.

Mrs. Chaney visited the Rev. and Mrs. H. Camden Lacey, in Loma Linda, where the former is a member of the faculty of the College of Medical Evangelists and Dr. and Mrs. Leon L. Caviness, in St. Helena, Calif.; her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Shanks and her sisters, Mrs. Warren S. Clark and Mrs. Jeannette Wermich in Minneapolis.

Northern Trip Planned By Maj. and Mrs. Hall

Maj. and Mrs. Melvin Hall are leaving for a round of visits in the North lasting a month, ending with a two weeks' stay with Mrs. Frank Noyes at her summer home at Winter Harbor, Me. Upon their return Maj. and Mrs. Hill again will occupy the old house in Alexandria, Va., which they rent from Mrs. Henry Harwood Rousseau.

Three Engagements of Interest In Capital Are Announced

Miss Louise Gwendolyn Olsen to Marry in Bern; Miss Anne Alden Gill to Wed in Brazil; Lockner-Waite Nuptials in Fall.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Louise Gwendolyn Olsen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. Ellsworth Olsen, to Dr. Daniel T. Walther, of Geneva, Switzerland, was made at a dinner party Sunday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Olsen in Takoma Park. Dr. Walther is the son of Mme. Walther, of Bern, Switzerland.

The marriage will take place the latter part of August at the home of the bride-elect's uncle and aunt, the Rev. and Mrs. Steen Rasmussen, in Bern.

Miss Olsen will sail from Baltimore August 14.

Dr. Walther is president of the Seminaire Adventiste, located at Collonges-sous-Saleve, near Geneva. He was for two years head of the department of history in Union College in Lincoln, Nebr., and spent six weeks in Washington working on his thesis for his doctor's degree. He is the author of a volume, published by Funk & Wagnalls, "Gouverneur Morris; Witness of Two Revolutions," which was written in French and translated into English.

Miss Olsen became acquainted with Dr. Walther when she was a student of the Collonges Seminary. During the past year she has been a student in Union College and is spending her vacation at her home in Takoma Park.

Capt. Charles C. Gill, U. S. N., and Mrs. Gill have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Alden Gill, to Lieut. (J. G.) Floyd B. Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Schultz, of Bay City, Mich.

Capt. Gill now is on duty in Rio de Janeiro as head of the United States Naval Mission to Brazil, and the wedding will take place there some time in September.

Lieut. Schultz is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, class of 1932, and now is a student in the graduate course in naval construction at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mr. and Mrs. John de Lackner, of New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Lackner, to Mr. Vaughn Owen Waite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Lewis Waite, of Washington and Madison, N. J. The wedding date has been set for late September.

Donna Powell Becomes Bride Of H. S. Garber

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Maurertown, Va., Aug. 5.—At high noon Wednesday, a wedding of considerable interest in Ohio, Virginia and congressional circles took place at the home of the Rev. John F. Locke, near Maurertown, Shenandoah County, when Miss Donna Jane Powell became the bride of Mr. Hayden Shelley Garber. The distinctive single-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Locke, a college classmate and friend of the bridegroom, in the presence of a few close friends.

The bride wore a charming pink frock and a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses. The room was decorated with gladioli in pastel shades.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mrs. Locke entertained the bridal party at dinner. The nuptial motif was carried out in the favors, floral decorations and dessert course.

Mrs. Garber is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Powell, of Cambridge, Ohio. She is a graduate of Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio, and for several years has been a high school teacher at Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Garber is the son of Dr. L. L. Garber, professor of English at Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio, and former executive officer of the English department of Kent State Teachers College, Kent, Ohio. His mother is a member of the Moomaw family of southwestern Virginia and is connected with the Nininger family and other prominent families in southern Virginia.

Mr. Garber received his A. B. degree at Ashland College. Several years after his graduation, the Ohio State University conferred upon him the degree of master of arts in English literature as recognition of his important work on "The Psychology of Comedy." In search of adventure, Mr. Garber boarded a tramp steamer in New Orleans, and after a voyage of several months was given his papers as an able seaman and promoted to the position of helmsman. Returning from his voyage, he became an educator of prominence, teaching in various Ohio high schools.

After the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Garber left via the Skyline Drive for a brief trip through the South. After the adjournment of the Seventy-fourth Congress, they will continue their honeymoon westward. They will reside in Caldwell, Ohio, and in Washington.

New Bath Oil Tones Up Skin And Muscles

By Dudley Harmon
Pinch-Hitting for Ruth Anne Davis.

WHENEVER we use oils with our bath, we invariably think of early Romans lolling around magnificent marble halls while sinewy slaves anointed them with the heavy, fragrant lotions of the East. As we luxuriate in our own hot tub, we never fail to send up a silent vote of thanks to the ancients who were responsible for the use of oils while bathing.

But smart as the Romans were, we today are even smarter when it comes to the oils we use. We moderns have gone them one better, and imparted scientific health-giving ingredients which they never thought of. For example, on sale at a downtown store is a bath oil which has been produced only after thorough scientific study. This oil is used at the great resorts of Europe, such as Carlsbad and Baden-Baden. Here it is employed with enormous benefit on those weary, nerve-torn souls who come for the cures.

What makes this oil so soothing? Principally the fact that it contains fragrant pine needle ingredients, straight out of the great forests of Siberia. It also contains a secret concoction—the result of experimentation by countless physicians and scientists—which banishes fatigue. It calms and rests the nerves, promoting peaceful sleep even after the most strenuous social engagements. It cleanses clogged pores and regulates the blood circulation, allowing for the entrance of oxygen into the blood tracts.

This oil is prescribed the world over by physicians, nerve specialists and dermatologists for its dependable results in the treatment of weaknesses and disorders. Prof. Winternitz, of Vienna, explains that the surprising phenomenon which takes place is new formations (stagnant cells in the various tissues and organs are brought into circulation and utilized as though they were newly formed). This lotion is not to be confused with other so-called pine preparations, which are mostly alcoholic and made from commercial grade oils of no therapeutic value. This particular pine needle essence is highly emulsified, and becomes a component part of the bath instead of evaporating, as so many oils do.

So let's go Roman in a big way. After a hard day at the office, or a bout of housecleaning, run a hot bath and enjoy the fragrance and soothing qualities of this health-giving oil. You'll be amazed at its invigorating and beautifying effects. It's on sale in two sizes at reduced prices. One bottle has been reduced from $1.95 to 98 cents, and the other from $3.75 to $1.25.

Some Elegant Perfumes.

THE SAME STORE has just stocked some elegant perfume, which comes in three odors: gardenia, old-fashioned bouquet and something called "prelude." This last is a delightful flower fragrance which ought to be the prelude to many a successful evening. The gardenia has that real gardenia scent, with none of the synthetic qualities which accompany so many perfumes of this kind. They all come in a generous bottle, encased in a stunning box of brown and gold. The price is only $1.95. This is a very special special, for this size usually fetches $6.

Three-Star Nail Cream.

WE CAME across a little wonder in the fingernail line the other day. It is a three-star cream which is equally good for hangnails, hardened cuticle, and dry and brittle nails. Its softening ingredients replace the valuable natural oils which the nail has lost from frequent use of liquid polishes. This cream also softens the cuticle, making it easy to push back. Once daily you should massage it into the nails, cuticle, and entire length of the finger. It really serves a dual purpose in that it can also be used to soften chapped lips and hands. The price is only 50 cents.

A New Deodorant.

WOULDN'T you beam with delight if you found a deodorant which has all the following characteristics rolled up into one?

It can be used after shaving.
It does not necessitate waiting before you put on your dress.

We hasten to inform you gleefully that such a deodorant actually does exist, and that, furthermore, it's on sale at a local department store. Brand new, it's made of a fragrant, pure cream, which makes it unnecessary to fuss and fume over messy liquids. You apply a tiny bit in the morning, and are assured of complete protection for the entire day. It doesn't stain your dresses, either. You can get a good-sized jar for only 35 cents.

Ruth Anne Davis has compiled a list of 20 aids to summer beauty, with the names of the shops where these cosmetics can be purchased. This leaflet will be sent on receipt of a 2-cent stamp. Address Miss Davis in care of The Washington Post.

Tweeds Change Designs.

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman, photographed here with her daughter, believes that experience in money management should begin in early youth. She advises parents to make their children a regular allowance, as she has done with her daughter since the latter was 4 years old.

Woman Who Burdens Husband With Clothes Bills Was the Little Girl Who Squandered Money on on Candy or Ice Cream, Expert Learns.

THE WOMAN who buys "pretty clothes" beyond her means and keeps her husband behind on the insurance and rent is, nine times out of ten, the little girl who spent all her allowance on candy.

The man who insists on having a sporty roadster and a high time even though the mortgage be foreclosed is usually the little boy who squandered his income on ice cream cones and lollypops.

So believes Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman, teacher and writer for the home economics division of the Department of Agriculture. Mrs. Freeman has been making studies of the cost of living and money management in Illinois families, particularly with reference to children, and is now in Washington putting her conclusions into book form.

Wise Spenders Learned Young.

"Wise spending in adult life is largely the result of careful training in money management in early youth," she said. "Parents who work hard to inculcate other good habits in their children would do well to devote some attention to training them in the matter of finance.

"First of all every child should have a regular allowance. Parents who dole out money to their offspring at irregular intervals are doing them no favor, for the child who is accustomed to irregular handouts can never hope to establish system in his spending.

"This allowance should be on a definite schedule, whether daily, weekly or monthly. The amount should be determined by the income of the family.

Let Child Manage Fund.

"Once they have established a regular allowance for their child, parents should abandon all idea of playing watchdog over the spending of this money. They should merely make it clear to the child that one part is to be used for his own pleasure, another for gifts such as Sunday school contributions and birthday presents and the third part saved.

"But in such a plan wouldn't the children fritter away too great a proportion on trivial knickknacks?" Mrs. Freeman was asked.

"I don't think so," she replied. "In the first place, when they see something they want, they should be told by their parents that it is up to them to purchase it themselves. I've known many a child, who, when told this, got into the habit of planning to save his pennies for a particular purchase. And don't forget, they must use part of their allowance for birthday presents. If a child's best friend's birthday comes around and he hasn't thought to put any money away for a present, that's just too bad. The next time he'll remember and have something tucked away for the occasion."

Children Wise in Buying.

"Children are surprisingly wise in their buying. Having an allowance gives them a feeling of importance, and gradually they learn that money has value, and is not simply something to be thrown away on no matter what. This was illustrated by one little girl of my acquaintance who very much wanted a particular doll she saw in a shop, but who had spent her weekly allowance. When he mother offered to advance her the money, Mary drew herself up to her full four feet six inches and replied, "No thanks, mother. I'm not going to start spending my money in advance."

Mrs. Freeman believes that no one can get the full value out of money except by keeping an account of the amount spent. She herself has devised a little account book especially for children, where, under the various headings of money received, money spent, items purchased, and presents made, the children can keep track of every penny.

No idle theorist is Mrs. Freeman. She has a daughter, 12, who affords her the opportunity to put her ideas into practice. Mrs. Freeman started her daughter off at the age of 4 with a weekly allowance of 10 cents, most of which went for Sunday school contributions. Gradually this amount was increased, until it is now 25 cents a week. Now, she reflects a bit before buying an ice-cream soda, and weighs in the balance the question of whether it might not be wiser to save it after all.

Air-Cooling Held Hay Fever Remedy

Filtering Eliminates Pollen, Magazine States.

Hay-fever victims may find in air-conditioned rooms a relief from their sneezes as well as the heat, according to House Beautiful..

"The value of air conditioning for the victim of hay fever lies in the fact that the air is filtered and may thus be rid of the pollen that is the cause of the trouble," the magazine states. "Experiments have shown that sufferers from hay fever, caused by air-carried pollen, will show marked benefits after 10 or 15 minutes in a properly air-conditioned room and after two hours all symptoms entirely disappear, only to reappear, unfortunately, within 15 minutes after leaving the room. Pollen-free air can be had inexpensively for one room only. The apparatus needed consists of a suction fan which draws air from outdoors and forces it through a dense filter and then blows it into the room. Such apparatus uses about the same amount of electric current as a vacuum cleaner.

Mother Worried Over Daughter's Engagement to Older Man in Delicate Health.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: My 23-year-old daughter has become engaged to a man of 40 against the wishes of both her father and myself. We think the difference in ages is too great, for one thing, but our main objection is to the man's health. He is so nervous and high-strung as to be almost eccentric at times, and has had two "breakdowns," one when 18 and another about ten years ago. He is a diet faddist and is almost fanatically concerned with his health.

* * * *

My daughter is this man's secretary and I blame the whole affair on her being impressed by the fact that her boss has taken personal notice of her. He bears a good name and has plenty of money, but I can't bear to see my fine, healthy, normal young daughter throw her life away on a neurotic semi-invalid. Is there anything we can do to break off the engagement, or make her see reason?

* * * *

We've tried reasoning with her and have tried ridiculing the man, but she only gets stubborn and haughty. I would so appreciate any helpful suggestion.

WORRIED MOTHER.

Problem in Eugenics.

DEAR WORRIED MOTHER: Since your daughter is (so you say) a fine, healthy, normal young woman, it seems safe to suppose that marriage, for her, is synonymous with motherhood. Not consciously, perhaps, but subconsciously. If you can bring her to a realization of the importance of giving her children a congenital endowment of splendid physical and mental health, you may do more to save this situation (if it needs saving) than could be achieved by any amount of vehement protest against the eligibility of this particular man.

* * * *

Nothing is to be gained by criticizing this man for his unfortunate state of health; nor by scolding your daughter for her compassionate and generous, if also headstrong, short-sighted and stubborn determination to be a selfless martyr to her love. Bring a saner, kindlier, more humanitarian attitude to the situation.

* * * *

Call her attention to the fact that the individual has the right to throw away his life only if the careless expenditure does no injury to others. Ask her if she would care to bring children into the world to suffer as she has undoubtedly seen her fiance suffer; to be scorned and criticized as you have scorned and criticized him. Tell her that you realize there is some chance that you may be an alarmist; that you may be nursing an unfounded prejudice against her fiance, and suggest that she disprove your argument by consulting a competent physician concerning the advisability of marrying this man.

* * * *

If you can get her to take the matter to a doctor for advice you will have done all that could be done under the circumstances. You can point out the possible pitfalls ahead and suggest the route for avoiding them, but you can not forcibly lead or drive her along the path of life.

Domestic Field Invites Women

The field of domestic service still offers opportunity for women, according to a report of the Girl Service League of America.

Since January, 1933, the league has trained about 175 girls for positions as "household assistants"—the term preferred to "servants"—and to date has had a 100 per cent placement record.

Girls are placed only in homes in which they receive minimum wages of $35 monthly, at least one afternoon and night off, alternate Sundays off and annual vacations with pay.

Pattern No. 833.

UNDERWEAR is grand pick-up sewing for summer's unplanned-for moments of leisure. This pattern is easily cut out—there are only six pieces in all. And no matter when it's finished, the style will be right and usefulness assured. Both panties and slip are designed for year 'round clothes—dainty under summer frocks and with perfect lines for the new fall designs, too.

There is so little sewing that both garments may be easily made by hand. The slip is fitted at the waistline by simple darts. The pattern is cut in sizes 12 to 42. In size 18 (36), the slip requires 2¾ yards of 39-inch material; the pantie, cut lengthwise, takes 1⅛ yards of 39-inch fabric and ⅝-yard of 35-inch lace.

Monk and Halo Hats Favored In Hollywood

By the United Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug 5.—The monk's skull cap, "halo hat" and "bishop's beret" will be the Hollywood touch in women's headwear this fall.

Latest designs shown in the fall style market hark back to the period of the Italian Renaissance and the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries for new ideas.

Jean Muir, blonde actress, was first to show the new "halo hat," a dark aureole brim over close-pulled hair. The "halo effect" will be found in most designs, displacing the "shovel" effect of last season, according to style spokesmen.

"Shovel Hats" Discarded.

Styles forecast in the annual fall market show at the Biltmore Hotel indicate a sharp swing from the racy tilted "shovel hat" worn over the right eye, to high-crown sports hats and ecclesiastical afternoon and evening designs.

Colors will follow Renaissance painters — Titian red, Veronese green, with black predominant from halo hats to monk's caps. In the beret types the fullness will be pushed back over the forehead to give the halo effect.

Monk Hats for Evenings.

Monk hats will predominate for evening wear, and halo hats for the afternoon.

With exception of the "halo" effect, the general trend of hats will be forward over the forehead, rather than tilted sideways. A square-cut design will replace the rounded "shovel hat."

Shiny quills and ornaments will decorate fall hats, particularly ornaments suggesting antiquity. Ostrich feathers will be revived for evening wear, with felts, velours and shiny fabrics predominating.

Salt in Drinks Is Heat Reducer

Salts are far better than sugar for heat sufferers, says Dr. J. Shirley Sweeney, former chairman of the Dallas, Tex., Public Health Advisory Board.

Dr. Sweeney recently advanced the theory, according to the United Press, that salt in solution should be drunk as a pick-up on hot days.

The loss of chlorides through perspiration weakens the blood stream, says Dr. Sweeney, and causes the heat victim to become listless and fatigued. A teaspoon of salt in a glass of cool water often will prove a relief from heat and at the same time restore energy.

Girls in Teens Need Counsel On Cosmetics

P.-T. A. Authority Tells Attitude Mothers Should Take.

SHOULD the teen-age girl use cosmetics?

Whether she should or not, she usually does, and the part of the wise mother is not to rant against such a practice, but to help her daughter use make-up artistically and judiciously.

"Long ago says Mrs. Hall, who is a mother and Parent-Teacher leader, of Denver, Colo., "there were girls who never even thought of cosmetics, let alone using them—but that was in the dear, dead past. Today, easily 90 per cent of the girls and women use them. Moreover about this period of a girl's life, the male element is likely to be very much in evidence. And, of course, a girl want always to look her best. The proper use of her cosmetics is the answer."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Hall advises mothers to talk to their young daughters as though the girls were grown-up and not children, and to try to make them see the importance of taking care of their complexions for the sake of their future beauty. The ideal of artistic and careful make-up should be constantly held before them, she points out.

"Tell you daughter," she says "that haste never pays. The modern young miss dashes wherever she's going; she slings on her clothes, applies her make-up with an impetuous hit-or-miss touch, and she's off. Hurry, hurry, hurry—it's that kind of day and age. Point out to her how tremendously important it is to take time, plenty of it. That she must be careful, painstaking when she applies her make-up. There are dozens of girls walking around, as lovely as flowers, whose beauty is hidden under a coarse, rough mask—who are quite ignorant of what to do about it."

Mrs. Hall tells of discussing the teen-age make-up problem with a famous cosmetician. She passes on the following pointers:

Goal Is Naturalness.

Naturalness of make-up is the primary effect the young girl should strive for.

A thorough soap and water cleansing massage should be the first step in any make-up program. This should be followed by a cold rinse.

Mild lotions should be used to preserve youthful skins from sun wind and cold.

Powder should match the skin. Young girls particularly should avoid a white pasty look.

Rouge should be used but seldom—as for evening social affairs—and should be applied carefully, skilfully and sparingly.

Lipsticks should be of light texture.

Eyebrows should not be plucked. Mascara and eyebrow pencil should be avoided as they will give age and hardness to the youthful face.

Finally, the mother herself should set a good example in conservative and skilful make-up.

Vaccine Makes Advances Against Colds

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

THE pursuit of the elusive cause of colds continues and a veritable army of investigators is marching and countermarching, seeking an advantageous position for attack.

Colds abound wherever bacteria-laden dust exists and affect all members of society. While there is a greater incidence of colds at the change of seasons, yet they occur with annoying frequency throughout the year. Summer colds are sometimes harder to shake off than winter colds.

It has been shown rather conclusively that a filterable virus prepares the soil for cold infections. If the mouth, throat, and nasal passages are free from bacteria the filterable virus in itself does little or no damage. It functions, however, much as the plow and harrow perpare a field for sowing. Through its vicious offices the mucous membranes of the body—perhaps the blood itself—are made ready to receive and nourish such disease-producing organisms as the pneumococcus, the streptococcus, and the bacillus of influenza. Antibodies are found in the blood of patients convalescing from acute colds and in some perfectly well persons. Whenever these antibodies exist in high concentration there are fewer colds.

The recent report of George E. Rockwell and others is significant as indicating that vaccine (killed bacteria) administered by mouth would confer a certain amount of protection from infections. Two groups of individuals were compared. In the first, 500 persons, including nurses, etc., were given vaccines, while 536 others pursuing similar occupations were observed as to the incidence of colds but were not given vaccine.

The vaccine was made by growing preumococci and streptococci for 24 hours in beef broth. The bacteria were then precipitated and killed by heat. A paste was made by mixing the dead organisms with starch and the material was administered by capsules. Each capsule contained approximately 100,000,000,000 killed pneumocci and the same number of streptocci. One capsule (with a half glass of water), was taken before breakfast for seven consecutive mornings; thereafter one capsule a week.

Rockwell's report notes that of the 500 treated cases 38 had suffered previously from continuous colds. After the administration of vaccine these 38 patients had during the year a total of but 41 colds. We can not disregard the means that changed the status of these persons from a continuous infection that lasted throughout the year to but one cold per year, and that of only a few days' duration.

Capsule Administration May Upset Ideas About Antibodies.

The remaining treated cases, namely, 462, had suffered an average of three or more colds per year. While taking the vaccine this number was reduced to 1.3 colds per person, or a decrease of 57 per cent. Among the group not receiving vaccine there was a reduction of 12 per cent in the number of colds. While the difference between 12 and 57 per cent may not appear large, yet to the cold sufferer this reduction constitutes a real achievement. No unfavorable symptoms due to the use of the vaccine were reported, and there was found in the blood of the vaccine users a marked increase in the amount of neutralizing substance to infection, the increase bearing a direct ratio to freedom from colds.

The method has a very practical application, inasmuch as it is simple. Just how and why this plan of vaccination succeeds is not entirely clear. We must either revise our former notions that vaccines given by mouth are without effect—that is, destroyed by the bile—or offer a new explanation.

Varied Quick Breads Win Prizes In First Week's Recipe Contest

Twelve $1 Awards Are Made, and New Subject Is Announced; Cookie Recipes Also Will Be Eligible for Three Grand Prizes.

The question of whether cooks in the Washington area use quick breads in their menus, discussed on this page last week, was definitely settled by the response to the recipe contest on the subject. The answer is that they do, and in more varied forms than will be found in many a cook book.

"Cracklin' Biscuits," "Snippy-Doodles," "Butterscotch Curls," "Waikaiki Muffins" and other equally enticing recipes were among those received, and from them Dorothea Duncan, food editor, has selected 12 which, in her opinion, will prove most helpful to other readers.

Each of the week's winners will receive $1, and her recipe will be entered in the final contest in which three grand prizes will be awarded at the end of two months. There is a Sunshine Mix-Master, with the new and larger beater which increases efficiency, as first prize. A G. E. Hotpoint coffee maker, a great convenience as well as an adornment for any table, is second prize. And the third grand award is a Dominion sandwich grill, which does equally well for frying bacon, making waffles or similar purposes. The prizes are offered by The Post and the National Electric Supply Co.

All of today's winners are eligible now for the grand prizes, and another chance to compete is offered to Post readers in the second week's contest, which begins today. The first week's winners follow:

Mrs. Anne M. Mundy, 1504 V street southeast: Ripe olive bread.

Mrs. P. A. Raper, 119 Monroe avenue, Hyattsville, Md.: Butterscotch curls.

Mrs. Arthur T. Edinger, 5301 Potomac avenue northwest: Raisin and nut bread.

Mrs. James P. Greene, 6909 Fifth street northwest, Takoma Park, D. C.: Hot currant breakfast bread.

Mrs. S. C. Holland, 1624 Eastern avenue northeast: Shrewsbury biscuit.

Mrs. Dan Johnson, 318 Twelfth street southeast: Maple biscuit.

Mrs. F. O. Maier, 119 Monroe avenue, University Park, Hyattsville, Md.: Green corn gems.

The recipes for which these contributors won prizes are given in full elsewhere on this page, and Post readers will find them all worth trying.

"Cookies" is the subject of this week's recipe contest. Any cookie recipe is acceptable and Miss Duncan hopes to find many new ideas among those submitted. Simply write out your favorite cookie recipe and mail it in time to reach The Post by Saturday at the latest. Address your letter to Dorothea Duncan, in care of The Washington Post.

Many factors must be taken into consideration in judging these weekly contests, and some must be discarded because they so closely duplicate others submitted. However, no one should be discouraged because of not winning the first time. Each week's contest offers a new opportunity to win $1, and all the weekly winners will be entered in the final contest for the grand prizes.

Miss Hebb Wins Prize in Contest

Southern Corn Muffins Is Her Favorite Recipe.

Southern Corn Muffins.

2 eggs (white and yolks beaten together)
2 cups buttermilk or clabber
2 tablespoons melted lard
1 tablespoon sugar
1½ cups white corn meal (freshly ground)
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder.

Sift corn meal, salt, soda and baking powder together. Combine with other ingredients, pour into muffin tins and bake in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Raisins and Nuts Give Good Flavor

"Raisin and Nut Bread" is the recipe with which Mrs. Arthur T. Edinger, 5301 Potomac avenue northwest, won $1 in the past week's contest.

Raisin Nut Bread.

2 cups whole wheat flour
1 cup sifted white flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
2/3 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 egg (well beaten)
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup chopped walnuts
¾ cup seeded raisins.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Return to bowl part of flour that doesn't go through sifter. This part of the whole should be used, as it gives the bread a desirable quality. Reserve a little flour for dusting raisins. Add milk to dry ingredients. Then add beaten egg, butter, fruit and nuts. Stir only till ingredients are blended. Turn into greased loaf pan and let rise 30 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for about 45 minutes.

"What Will It Be Today, Madam?"

Dorothea Duncan, food editor of The Post, places an order for fresh fish with John Bowles, manager of the Atlantic & Pacific store at 405 Seventh street northwest.

Fish Lends Variety to Menu And Capital Has Plenty of It

By Dorothea Duncan.

If you want to add variety to your menus and still keep down the cost of your meals, consider sea food; and if you don't know the difference between a Spanish mackerel and a clam, stop in to see John Bowles, manager of the Atlantic and Pacific store at 405 Seventh street northwest.

This store is conveniently located and Mr. Bowles is right up to the minute on this matter of sea food. Just tell him what you like, and if you aren't even sure about that, ask his advice. He will expound the possibilities of every available kind of sea food in season, for he has every seasonable variety right there to offer his customers. Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia are fortunate in that a great variety of fresh fish is always available.

The accompanying picture shows Mr. Bowles at the well-stocked refrigerator cabinet in his store. moment shellfish is extremely popular. Scallops are preferred by those women who make it a point to have a hot dinner; clams are in demand for sea food cocktails, and cooked shrimp and cooked crab meat are sold every day for salads, newburgs and au gratin dishes.

Three Grades of Flakes.

If you have often wondered about the reason for three grades of crabmeat and have always purchased the most expensive lump meat for fear that the next two grades were inferior in quality, you will be interested in Mr. Bowles' explanation. It isn't inferior quality that makes the difference in price but the size of the flake. The large meat or lump is the most expensive and is used for superior dishes; the white meat is next in price and may be used equally well for salads or cocktails, and the least expensive is the claw or dark meat. While it has a delicious flavor, because of its darker color and smaller flake, it is used mainly in cooked dishes.

Will Order Specially.

Mr. Bowles knows the advantage of getting hard or soft shelled crabs while they are alive and frisky. Live crabs are not kept on hand in his store, but he will get them for his customers on order.

Now for fish in season. Mr. Bowles this week suggests croakers, Boston mackerel, pan trout, butterfish, haddock filets, sliced halibut and sliced fresh salmon. And, by the way, boiled fresh salmon, chilled and flaked, makes an excellent addition to a cold platter.

Almost any cook book has a section devoted to sea foods, but if you are in a quandary as to how to cook any particular kind of fish, write Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. Enclose a stamp for a personal reply.

Readers Like New Food Page

A professional chef wrote last week to inquire about the kitchen gadgets, which were illustrated on this page, for they were new to him, and he could see at a glance that they would be a great convenience. This was only one of many letters received indicating that The Post's new food program is performing a genuine service to readers.

Among other comments addressed to Dorothea Duncan, food editor, are the following:

"The Washington Post should be congratulated for having you to conduct its food columns. I have enjoyed reading all your articles, and I wish you great success with your new page."—MRS. JOHN E. FOWLER, 1424 Sixteenth street.

"Your new page in The Post is very interesting, and I am sure will prove of value to many housewives."—MRS. C. A. HUSH, 416 Clifton Terrace Apartments.

"I have enjoyed reading your new weekly food page. Your articles are very interesting and the contest sounds exciting."—MRS. ROMAINE CRAWFORD, 3008 Thirteenth street northwest.

"I look forward to the Tuesday edition of The Post more than ever, now that there will be a full page of interesting household subjects and recipes. More power to you."—MRS. ARTHUR T. EDINGER, 5301 Potomac avenue northwest.

In addition to submitting recipes for the contest, described elsewhere on this page, several readers have contributed recipes on other topics, and suggestions for lightening household labors. These will appear on this page from time to time. Contributions are invited, for this page will serve its best purpose if readers consider it as neighborly exchange of helpful ideas. All letters should be addressed to Dorothea Duncan, The Washington Post.

Green Corn Used In Muffin Recipe

Hyattsville Reader Places Among Prize Winners.

Green Corn Gems.

2 cups corn cut from cob
¼ cup milk or ½ cup if corn is dry
2 eggs
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Use fresh uncooked corn. Put corn through food chopper. Add milk and eggs and beat well. Add flour, baking powder and salt and pepper which have been sifted together. Mix and drop into hot greased muffin tins. Bake in moderate oven about 25 minutes. Makes 16 muffins. This recipe is especially good this time of the yeaer, when corn is so plentiful.

This recipe won $1 for Mrs. F. O. Maier, 119 Monroe avenue, University Park, Hyattsville, Md.

Clean Pot Needed For Good Coffee

If your coffee fails to please your husband do you bounce out the can and go in for a new brand? Don't do anything so drastic until you have investigated the depths of your coffee pot, for a coffee pot must be scrupulously clean before it will produce perfect coffee.

You will find a small brush with a long handle indispensable when it comes to cleaning coffee spout, cracks and crevices, and the tube of the percolator. Always keep on hand a supply of cleaners that will remove stains from the inside of the pot.

Currant Bread Is Good Served Hot

Mrs. James P. Greene Contributes This Recipe.

Hot currant breakfast bread sounds good, and Mrs. James P. Greene, 6909 Fifth street northwest, assures us it is. A prize of $1 has been awarded her for the following recipe, which makes a cake 9x12 inches square. It should be cooked at a temperature of 375 degrees F. for about 20-25 minutes.

Currant Bread.

1½ cups flour
2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 cup sugar (or less)
1 egg
½ cup milk
1-3 cup currants
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon sugar

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and unbeaten egg. Mix well. Add dry ingredients, alternately with milk, to first mixture. Pour into greased oblong pan. Mix currants, cinnamon and sugar together (or just cinnamon and sugar) and sprinkle over top. Bake in moderate oven. Break in pieces and serve warm with butter. This is excellent for lunch or with cold supper.

Recipe Will Make 18 Lemon Scones

Lemon Cream Scones.

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
4 tablespoons buttter
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 eggs
1/3 cup light cream
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and sugar, and sift again. Cut in shortening and lemon rind. Reserve about ½ egg white for glaze. Beat remaining eggs well and add cream; add to flour mixture, and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll ½ inch thick and cut in triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with reserved egg white, slightly beaten; sprinkle with mixture of sugar and grated lemon rind. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahr.) for 12 minutes, or until browned. Makes 18 scones.

Household Hints

To pare a pineapple in two minutes, slice as if slicing a loaf of bread. Discard top and bottom slices. Pare separate slices. This suggestion is contributed by Mrs. Walter E. Reid, 1621 T street northwest.

• • • •

Lemon juice or vinegar will remove onion odor from fingers and knives.

• • • •

• • • •

To cut canned corned beef hash in firm even slices for frying, chill the can for several hours in the refrigerator. Then remove both ends of the can and press the hash gently out onto a board. It will retain the perfect shape of the can.

Your suggestions for saving labor in the kitchen or effecting economies are invited. Address your contributions to Dorothea Duncan, in care of The Washington Post.

Prize Is Awarded To Mrs. G. Kelsey

Her Recipe Will Make 24 English Biscuits.

English Biscuits.

4 cups flour
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
½ cup water
½ cup milk

Mix and sift dry ingredients and work in shortening. Beat egg slightly, add milk and water, and add to the flour mixture. Mix lightly, turn onto floured board, and roll to about one-half inch in thickness. Cut with a biscuit cutter, place on a greased baking sheet, leaving a little space between the biscuits, and bake in a hot oven. Bake 20 minutes at a temperature of 400 degrees.

This recipe makes two dozen biscuits.

Ripe Olive Bread Wins Prize of $1

Ripe olive bread is a novelty hailing from Sunny California. "Serve it cut thin in long, narrow strips, well buttered as a salad accompaniment," says Mrs. Anne M. Mundy, 1504 V street southeast, who won a prize in the quick bread contest.

Sift 2½ cupfuls of whole wheat flour with ½ cupful each of Graham and bread flour, 4 teaspoonfuls of baking powder and 1 teaspoonful of salt. Add 2 tablespoonfuls of olive oil or other cooking oil or melted shortening and 1¼ cupfuls of milk and stir into the dry ingredients. Then fold in 1 cupful of ripe olives, stoned, sliced lengthwise and thoroughly drained. Add just a whiff of paprika and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—about one hour.

Winning Recipes Are Published So Post Readers May Try Them

Rice Waffles, Maple Biscuit, Butterscotch Curls and Shrewsbury Biscuits Are Among Ideas That Won Week's Prizes.

"Rice waffles are an especially nice quick bread to serve with the summer dinner because they can be cooked at the table and served hot, thus doing away with heating the oven," says Miss Netta B. Spencer, 2807 Connecticut avenue, who won $1 for the following recipe in The Post contest:

Rice Waffles.

2 cups flour
¾ cup cold cooked rice
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
2 tablespoons melted shortening
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Sift the flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Add rice, stir in the yolks of the eggs blended in the milk. Add melted shortening and fold in the beaten egg whites. Cook until a golden brown on a waffle iron and serve either with butter or a fresh fruit sauce.

Maple Biscuit.

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
¾ cup milk
Maple sugar

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk gradually to make soft dough that can be handled, rool out in one-inch thickness and cut in rounds. Brush half of them generously with siftened butter, spread thickly with finely grated maple sugar and put together in pairs. Place in greased pan and bake in hot oven 20 minutes.

This recipe also won $1. It was submitted by Mrs. Dan Johnson, 318 Twelfth street southeast.

Shrewsbury Biscuit.

¾ cup butter
½ cup sugar
2 cups flour
1 egg

Cream the butter, and add sugar, gradually, continuing the beating; then add egg, well beaten, and flour. Toss on a floured board, roll very thin and shape with a round cutter, first dipped in flour. Put on tin sheet and bake in a slow oven.

It may be necessary to add more flour.

Butterscotch Curls.

2 cubs flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
2/3 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
2/3 cup milk
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup brown sugar

Sift dry ingredients; add shortening, mixing it in with fork. Add milk to make a fairly soft dough. Knead slightly and roll out ¼-inch thick. Spread well with creamed butter and sprinkle with brown sugar. Roll up as for jelly roll and cut in about 1-inch pieces. Stand these on end in a well-buttered pan and bake in moderate oven for 30 minutes. Centers of rolls curl up and will be glazed on edges.

Mrs. P. A. Raper, 119 Monroe avenue, University Park, Hyattsville, Md., won $1 for her "Butterscotch Curls."

Potato Flour Muffins.

4 eggs
Pinch salt
½ cup white potato flour (called potato starch sometimes)
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoonsful ice water
1 tablespoon sugar

Beat egg whites very stiff and dry, add salt and sugar to egg yolks, which have been beaten light, then add to the beaten whites. Sift flour and baking powder twice, then beat into egg mixture. Add ice water last. Bake in moderate oven 10 to 20 minutes. This makes 12.

"These muffins are light like angel food. They are very satisfying and not rich—an ideal summer muffin," says Miss Helen G. Galbraith, 30 Girard street northeast, in submitting a recipe which won a $1 award for her in the weekly contest.

Democrats Tie In Kentucky's Primary Race

Run-Off Believed Needed to Nominate Candidate for Governor.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 5.—That a run-off primary election will be needed September 7 to determine the choice of Kentucky Democrats for the gubernatorial nomination appeared certain tonight on the basis of incomplete returns from Saturday's primary election.

As the count progressed, the lead alternated between Lieut. Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who advocated repeal of the State sales tax and attacked the administration of Gov. Ruby Laffoon, and Thomas S. Rhea, defender of the Laffoon administration.

Three other candidates trailed far behind, but their total vote appeared sufficient if maintained to prevent either Chandler or Rhea from obtaining a majority.

Rhea in Lead.

Returns from 1,065 of the State's 4,219 precincts gave Rhea, 60,271; Chandler, 55,576; Frederick A. Wallis, former United States Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, 11,595; State Treasurer Elam Huddleston, 4,143; Attorney General Bailey P. Wootton, 819.

The compulsory primary was enacted by a special session of the Legislature called by Chandler earlier in the year while Laffoon and Rhea were out of the State. Laffoon, who was not eligible to succeed himself, defeated Chandler's plan for a single primary and put through a law requiring a second primary if no candidate received a majority of the votes cast. Chandler told the voters, however, there would have been no primary if he hadn't called the Legislature into special session.

Swope Gains Votes.

Circuit Judge King Swope, of Lexington, took a commanding lead for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Indorsed by most of the county organizations in a harmony move to profit by Democratic discord and regain Kentucky in a pre-presidential year, Swope appeared certain of winning a majority in the first primary. Trailing far behind him were County Judge D. M. Bingham, of Pineville, and Circuit Judge Sam Hurst, of Beatyville.

Meanwhile, three other States made ready for elections tomorrow —Mississippi, Virginia and Rhode Island.

The Mississippi Democratic primary fight was enlivened last night by reports that Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, had advised his followers in Mississippi to support Judge Paul B. Johnson in the five-sided fight for the gubernatorial nomination. Opposing him are Dr. E. A. Copeland, Lester C. Franklin, Dennis Murphee and Hugh L. White.

New Deal Is Issue.

The New Deal is an issue in the special congressional election in Rhode Island. There General Treasurer Antonio Prince, Democrat and backer of New Deal policy, opposes Justice Charles F. Risk, Republican. The vacancy in the congressional seat occurred with appointment of Representative Condon, a Democrat, to a State judicial post.

Virginia's election will select State senators and representatives.

Land Trade Backed By District Board

Deal With U. S. Will Permit Rock Creek Extension.

Exchange of 55,000 square feet of Government-owned land for 58,000 square feet of privately owned land in upper northwest Washington was indorsed by the District Commissioners yesterday.

The exchange is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee, at the request of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The Government-owned land, it was said, was purchased at the time it was contemplated Rock Creek Park should extend to the District Line. The plat, however, was left isolated with privately owned land intervening between it and the park when purchase funds ran out.

The land for which it is proposed to exchange this Government land, formerly was a part of the Blair estate, and its acquisition will permit extension of Rock Creek Park to the District Line and completion of West Beach drive in accordance with the District highway plan.

West to Work on Hill, Secretary Ickes Says

By the Associated Press.

Introducing Charles West as Undersecretary of the Interior, Secretary Ickes said yesterday "the first job we will have for Mr. West will be to get all the legislation on The Hill that we want."

Prior to his appointment to the Interior post, West was on the pay roll of the Farm Credit Administration and served as "contact man" for President Roosevelt in Congress. He is a former representative from Ohio.

Former G. O. P. Chairman Succumbs at Age of 65 in Sanitarium.

By the Associated Press.

Tucson, Ariz., Aug. 5.—Frank Harris Hitchcock, 65, former United States Postmaster General and chairman of the Republican national committee, died at a sanitarium here today.

The fatal illness was attributed by Mr. Hitchcock's physicians to his effort to resume editorial work on the Tucson Daily Citizen, of which he was publisher, despite failing health.

Known as "General" because of his service in the Cabinet of President Taft from 1909 to 1913, Mr. Hitchcock was prominent in Republican circles, serving in 1908-09 as chairman of the Republican national committee and acting as manager of Taft's presidential campaign in 1908.

Pioneer of Air Mail.

He was long an advocate of the use of airplanes in carrying mail, and it was under his direction that in 1911 a pouch of mail was taken aloft from the Nassau Boulevard Airdrome on Long Island.

Mr. Hitchcock was born in Amherst, Ohio, October 5, 1869. He was graduated from Harvard University. Three years ago he made his permanent home here.

The body will be cremated and the ashes sent to Mount Ashburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass.

In a long period of public service, Mr. Hitchcock performed his outstanding work in the Taft Cabinet.

His efficient conduct of the Postoffice Department resulted in the unusual situation of having a surplus at the end of the fiscal year in 1911. He also established the postal savings banks and the parcel post and started the airmail.

A lawyer by profession, Mr. Hitchcock made a success of that calling after leaving the Government service. He also extended his interests into the field of newspaper publishing.

Ornithology His Hobby.

For recreation he took long horseback rides through the Southwest. His hobby was ornithology and he was an active member of several scientific bodies.

Previous to his appointment as a member of the Taft Cabinet, Mr. Hitchcock served four years as First Assistant Postmaster General in the Rosevelt Administration and before that was chief clerk of the Department of Commerce and Labor when those governmental activities were under one cabinet official.

He resigned the chairmanship of the national committee upon assuming his duties as Postmaster General in 1909. He also directed the work in behalf of Charles Evans Hughes for the Republican nomination for President in 1916.

Educated in Massachusetts.

Mr. Hitchcock was the son of Henry Chapman Hitchcock and Mary Laurette Harris Hitchcock. He received his early education in the schools of Boston and then went to Harvard University, where he was graduated in 1891. While at Harvard he was active in athletics, especially in boxing.

Continuing at Columbian, now George Washington University, a law course started at Harvard, Mr. Hitchcock received his bachelor's degree in 1894 and his master's degree a year later. He was admitted to the bar in the District of Columbia in 1894, and three years later to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States.

He practiced his profession in New York after his retirement from the cabinet in 1913. He also was publisher of the Las Vegas (N. Mex.) Optic. Mr. Hitchcock was unmarried.

Will Stirs Contest.

Suit has been filed in District Supreme Court to prevent probating of the will of Mrs. Mary A. Thompson, colored, on the ground that she was of unsound mind and under duress at the time she made it. Heirs of Mrs. Thompson are represented by Dr. T. A. Johnson and George H. and Augustus W. Gray, attorneys. Mrs. Thompson was the mother of the late Anna Thompson, a District school teacher, who died several years ago.

Relief for City As Wind Stirs, Humidity Fades

'Cooler Today' Predicted, But Capital Still Needs Rain Badly.

Hourly Temperatures.

8 a. m.	79	4 p. m.	88
9 a. m.	81	5 p. m.	86
10 a. m.	81	6 p. m.	86

1 p. m.	83	9 p. m.	77
2 p. m.	86	10 p. m.	74
3 p. m.	86	11 p. m.	74
3:45 p. m.	89	Midnight	73

Unexpected relief came to the Capital yesterday in the shape of a light breeze and much lower humidity, and still more relief is due today. The Weather Bureau forecasts a fair and "slightly cooler" day.

But Wednesday's forecast carries an ominous "slowly rising temperatures." And no rain is in sight for withering grass and drooping shrub.

Temperatures yesterday followed closely those of the preceding days. Beginning at 8 o'clock with 79, the mercury had climbed to 83 at noon and to a high of 89 at 4 o'clock. At 6 it had dropped to 85 and was on its way down to fulfill the Weather Bureau's predictions of a cooler evening.

Humidity at 30.

The humidity, which had been 74 Sunday morning, was 30 at 2 p. m. yesterday. It had risen to 43 at 6 o'clock. This is considered unusually low for midsummer. Breezes which held all day long cleared away the steamy mugginess which has burdened Washington for days.

No heat prostrations were reported to police, who coasted in their campaign for traffic safety. Traffic violation arrests, which had reached as high as 88 in a day and have rarely been less than 35 in recent weeks, totaled 12 yesterday at 6 o'clock.

Even more pressing than the need of heat relief now is the necessity for rain. Gardens and flower beds throughout the city are struggling along with the help of hose and sprinkler, but trees are suffering heavily and the broad expanses of Washington's park system can not be watered with garden hose.

Golfers complain that the fairways have dried out to an extent which causes weird bounces, and greens are so "fast," except where sprinklers make them soggy, that only careless beginners can putt.

Fires on tinder-dry lots and fields kept the fire department fairly busy yesterday, seven alarms of this nature bringing out apparatus. This is not an unusually high number for mid-summer, but fire officials say rain any time in the last week would have eliminated most of them.

All swimming pools did a heavy business as children and adults sought to avoid the dust of streets. Motorists who have been on rural roads complained of thick clouds of heavy dust.

Sen. Pope to Visit League of Nations

Trip Abroad Is Unofficial, He Makes it Clear.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Pope, of Utah, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today he would be a "vacationist observer" at the League of Nations assembly beginning August 24 to consider the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

Secretary Hull told reporters the Senator had not been delegated to official duties by the State Department.

"Entirely unofficial" was Pope's description of the trip, which he expects to take him successively to London, Paris, Geneva, Rome, possibly on to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, then back through Paris and London to New York.

Census Bureau Starts Wheels On 72,000 Jobs

Enumeration Projects to Cost $9,881,984 Are Set in Motion.

Preliminary work on three census projects, to employ 72,000 relief workers and to cost $9,881,948, started in the Census Bureau of the Department of Commerce yesterday, following President Roosevelt's approval of an allotment of $7,784,000 for a business survey.

The other two projects involve card indexing the names and birth dates of all persons living in the United States in 1900, preliminary to operation of old-age pension legislation, and a retail survey.

Headquarters for the business census will be established in Philadelphia and for the card index work in St. Louis. The actual canvass under the business-survey project will begin next January. Eligibility tests for selection of enumerators will begin in November.

Farms, Factories Exempt.

The business census will cover all business activities except agriculture and manufacturing, on which data already are available in the Census Bureau. The enumerators will obtain basic information relating to kinds and types of business establishments, employment, pay rolls and receipts.

The data will be available for administrative purposes by Federal, State and local agencies. The information in co-ordinatel form also will be made available to financial, industrial and commercial organizations. It is estimated the work will require from six months to a year.

The card index project will cost $1,804,948. It anticipates operation of the social security act, as well as operation of various State old-age pension laws. There will be no house-to-house canvass, but all the data will be compiled from 35-year-old census information.

Other Funds Allotted.

Since the average minimum for old-age pensions is 60 years, the index is expected to give accurate data on all persons now of that age who were living in the United States in 1900.

It is expected that the Census Bureau will be called upon to give age information concerning 250,000 to 500,000 persons in the first year of operations of the security act and concerning 100,000 persons each year thereafter. Approximately 2,000 persons will be employed in this work.

The retail trade survey, which will be made only in selected areas, will cost $293,000. The plan calls for enumeration of 280,000 retail establishments in 17 large cities and in 258 towns with populations of 2,500 to 10,000.

In addition to the census funds, President Roosevelt yesterday approved allotments of $40,350,000 for the Rural Resettlement Administration and the Reclamation Bureau. The Administration will receive $22,000,000 for taking land out of production and putting it to other uses. The Reclamation Bureau will receive $18,350,000 for various reclamation projects.

Cramer Selection Meets Opposition

Territories Committee Approval Not Unanimous.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Territories Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Lawrence W. Cramer as Governor of the Virgin Islands.

At least three influential members voted against the appointment, however, and promised to voice their objections on the Senate floor when confirmation is voted on the latter part of this week.

Chairman Tydings disclosed a division in the committee vote, but declined to reveal those who opposed Cramer.

Cramer, former Lieutenant Governor of St. Croix, Virgin Islands, was named by President Roosevelt to succeed former Gov. Paul M. Pearson, who was shifted to a new post in the Interior Department.

Courtney Ryley Cooper's '10,000 Public Enemies'

Chapter XXIII.—He Never Liked Golf.

Keating, Holden and Frank Nash conducted quite an inquiry in the underworld, at last assuring themselves that no one was squealing and that the growth of Government heat was largely a myth. There was quite a party when at last they met "Monk" Fontaine, lately of Leavenworth Penitentiary, at the O. P. Inn. This person described the details of the projected Leavenworth break as the convicts themselves had conceived it.

If they could only get guns and cartridges and explosives, everything would be easy. Holden ran a hand through his bushy hair, now bright with henna.

"I guess we can get the artillery easy enough," he said. That night Harold Fontaine sent a telegram which, in its seeming innocence, passed the censorship and reached Harry Brown, one of the plotting convicts:

"Mother and Frances are well. I will leave next week. Love,

Margaret M. Brown."

In the code, this meant that the contact between Fontaine and the escaped convicts had been established, and that the guns and dynamite soon would be on their way.

Leavenworth Seethes With Excitement.

In all fairness to penal institutions in general, certain previously stated facts must be remembered: The scheming ability of incarcerated men, the constant plotting and conspiracies, the temptations which constantly confront underpaid guards, the ever-present willingness of one convict to help another, even if he risks his own good time record to do it. Beyond this, it must be repeated that, with the exception of cell blocks and restrictions, a penitentiary perforce is not a prison, in the old sense of the word, but a guarded factory where workers are held against their will, performing labor which they do not intend to repeat in civil life. Therefore a portion of Leavenworth seethed as the news of the telegram was passed along.

It was now a matter of smuggling in the guns to make the break possible. Frank Nash said a short good-by to Frances Luce, whom he had taken from the O. P. kitchen and set up in an apartment in Cicero, where they lived together.

A day later there was a purchase of guns and ammunition at a shop in Peoria, Ill., including a sawed-off 20-gauge shotgun, four revolvers and ammunition, 17 sticks of dynamite and a hundred nitro caps and fuses, by which this explosive could be fashioned into hand grenades.

On that same day a man called at the office of a shoepaste manufacturer in St. Louis and ordered a 30-gallon barrel of paste to be shipped to Joliet, Ill. This was Harold Fontaine. The barrel was taken from the express office at Joliet to a place of hiding. There the four conspirators wrapped the revolvers in a pillow slip, pushed this into a piece of automobile inner tube, then, after vulcanizing the ends, shoved the parcel deep into the paste. The same procedure followed with the shotgun, the caps and dynamite and cartridges. The barrel was resealed. It was painted the peculiar color of red which containers from this factory bore when they arrived at the penitentiary. Then, early the next morning, the four men started in a truck for St. Louis.

The truck rattled into St. Louis and to a freight station there. The prosaic-appearing barrel was rolled off the rear and into the depot; the shipping tag was made out, the usual receipts given. That afternoon a second telegram traveled into Leavenworth. This one read:

"Aunt Emma very ill. Leaving St. Louis tonight.

MARGARET M. BROWN."

"Aunt Emma" was the barrel of shoe paste. No wonder she was ill, with that arsenal in her gizzard. Convicts watched every arrival of the prison truck following that telegram.

Barrel Arrives Arsenal Removed.

The duties of John Kulick, the convict volunteer, included the receiving of all supplies. At last, on December 9, the prison truck drove up to the warehouse platform with a red barrel among its other freight. A guard made the usual inspection, necessarily a cursory one. Then the red barrel was dumped off and the truck rumbled on to another part of the factory. Kulick turned the container on its side and, with pushing kicks, rolled it around to what is known as the oil house. Then the word passed, from convict to convict, that the guns were here.

One by one, under various pretexts, they left their work. The oil house was not guarded. Here they dug deeply into the paste and brought forth the heavily loaded pieces of inner tubing. Then, with guns concealed under their convict clothing, they rolled the barrel into the factory, down into the plumbing shop, where they emptied it and burned the barrel and tubes in the stove. That done, they hid the dynamite and caps and ammunition under a pile of waste materials. Two days later, the break came.

Under various pretexts, the conspiring inmates left their posts, while a perfect shout of silence wished them well. A little later three of the convicts, followed at a distance by the other four, moved toward the rear gate. There three forged passes were presented, all they had. The guard let them through, only to see one of the convicts suddenly whirl upon him and press a revolver into his stomach.

"Give me those keys," the inmate demanded. The guard obeyed. Again the gate was unlocked and the four other convicts came through. After that, the gates were locked, to hold remaining guards captive; the one at the rear gate was taken along as a hostage.

The two preceding convicts had leaped into the warden's office with guns leveled and kidnaped the warden. Now they joined the other men at the front gate. Here they commanded the warden to produce his keys. He refused. Dynamite was forthcoming.

"We'll blow the gate, you and everything else to hell!" the men threatened. "Give us those keys!"

Siren's Shrick Gives Alarm.

At last the warden acquiesced. The gates swung wide. Members of the convict band made a rush for the warden's car, upon which they had planned for their get-away. It was locked. They demanded the keys. The warden replied that they were in his office.

Herein lay the tiny fault which turned this escape from a prison break to a prison fatality. There was no time to return for the keys; already the siren was screaming its eerie warning of a crush-out. A car filled with Negro hunters was passing. The convicts rushed at it. White-eyed darkies flooded forth, scrambling in all directions, their guns abandoned. Into the car piled the convicts, forcing the warden to accompany them.

The day which followed was one of horror. There had been incessant thaws and freezes; unfamiliar with the thoroughfares, the convicts drove off the main highway and onto a slimy "cat" road, where the car slithered and finally crashed. They commandeered another and wrecked it. Finally, in their madness, as it became evident that posses would soon be upon them, they shot the warden, severely wounding him, commandeered still another car and made a last attempt at liberty.

A dozen posses now had formed. Airplanes took off from nearby fields. Soldiers were rushed from Fort Leavenworth. Soon a part of the gang was cornered in a farmhouse, with law-enforcement bullets crashing the windows and tear-gas bombs flooding the interior with chocking fumes. But when at last posse members rushed the place, they found that their shots had been in vain. The guns which Nash and Keating, Holden and Fontaine had shipped in the shoe-paste barrell had been used for suicide. In an upstairs room, their bodies sprawled one atop the other, lay the inanimate, blood-splotched forms of Green, Durrill and Curtis.

Karpis Brothers Join the Gang.

Brown, Berta and Underwood, three more of the escaped convicts, had stolen horses from a farm and headed across the fields. Airplanes roared over them, spoting them for the posses. Soldiers and deputies were approaching from all sides. Meekly the men held up their hands.

Only one man was free. For three days, Earl Thayer, of the old Al Spencer gang, stuck it out in corn shocks, desperately striving to discover a method by which he might make his get-away and join his old partner, Frank Nash. At last he forewent his dreams. Delirious and half-frozen, he staggered into the outskirts of Leavenworth, a 30-30 rifle which he had stolen from a farmhouse dragging from one clutched hand. There he surrendered. Back in Chicago, four men made ready for much traveling. In the spring of 1932, after many miles, they met again in Hot Springs, Ark.

New coalitions were formed. Freddie Barker and Alvin Karpis were young, but they were cold, fearless and calculating. Frank Nash always had liked Freddie, ever since that first meeting down at Herb Farmer's. Harvey Bailey liked him, too, and appraised Alvin Karpis as a deadly man with a gun.

Finally the inevitable urge to move hit everybody. They scattered, returning to Chicago, where on May 3 there was a birthday party for Frances Nash; two murderers personally brought her presents to the Nash apartment. After that the incessant movement began again. But most of them got together again in Kansas City, making numerous forays against banks in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa. Returning, they played golf. Always they played golf.

Those patient special agents had not relaxed their vigilant search for an instant. Still checking, still asking questions, they went the rounds. A St. Paul bootlegger attempted to sell some bonds at a Minneapolis bank. The numbers were checked and the collateral found to have been stolen from two messengers at the First American National Bank of Duluth.

Bought Golf Cap The Day Before.

The Bureau of Investigation was notified. The bootlegger broke down and confessed the names of the hot bond shovers from whom he had received the securities. They also talked, telling what they knew, which was not much.

Finally they found a lead. Kansas City special agents, picking up the information which St. Paul had forwarded, visited a manufacturer of handmade golf clubs. It seems that Charlie Harmon had telephoned this place, long distance, from St. Paul the summer before.

The manufacturer couldn't remember the call; he got so many. They showed the pictures. At last, however, his gaze centered. He was quite sure about Keating and Holden; they had been here recently. Holden had bought a golf hat only the day before.

The next out on the course, Jimmy Keating, Thomas Holden and Harvey Bailey moved along the fairway; iron shots had been excellent, laying all three balls on the green. Far in the rear, Bernard Phillips dubbed along. Suddenly he looked up, his attention centered on a widespread circle of men converging upon the fairway. He ran.

Keating, Holden and Bailey knew nothing of this until that circle of men had closed in. Automatics appeared in the hands of police and special agents. The three men raised their hands. A long hunt was over.

Frank Nash read of it in the Chicago newspapers. Keating and Holden already were headed back for Leavenworth. Old Harvey Bailey was in for trouble down there at Fort Scott. Frank Nash took many drinks that night. Usually this procedure was because he liked whiskey. Tonight it was because he never had liked golf.

Annapolis Girl, 16, Is Critically Burned

Tobacco Field Worker Makes Rescue in Fire.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 5.—Catherine Suit, 16, was in the Emergency Hospital tonight under treatment for burns on her legs and the lower part of her body.

Miss Suit was carried from her blazing home by Cecil C. Knighton, jr., who was working in a nearby tobacco field when he saw the flames. Knighton wrapped a comfort around the girl to extinguish the flames and took her to the hospital. Mrs. Sara L. Tucker, Catherine's grandmother, was burned on the hands when she tried to beat out the flames.

The fire started from a lighted candle which fell into bedclothing. The house, owned by the girl's father, William Suit, and located at Birdsville, near here, was destroyed.

Gossipers couldn't fool clever Mrs. Robinson

Mrs. Harry Robinson, of Akron, Ohio, writes: "I lost 18 lbs. with one jar of Kruschen. Just bought another today and expect to lose 18 more. I feel fine."

All over the world Kruschen Salts is helping thousands of fat folks reduce, enjoy better health and maintain normal weight.

No matter what gossips may say—Kruschen is one reducing treatment that can't harm you—it's first of all a health treatment approved by physicians—folks have taken it day in and out for 30 years just to keep physically fit. Take a half teaspoonful in a cup of hot water every morning—tastes fine with juice of half lemon added—remember Kruschen is SAFE—actually improves health. Jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. —Advt.

Hot Primary Race Closes In Virginia

Final Speeches Delivered as Voters Prepare to Visit Polls.

More Than 1,000 Citizens on Ballot for Various Offices.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug 5.—Gathering momentum in the final week, political temperatures reached the boiling point tonight as Democrats prepared to choose nominees for State and House seats and county offices in tomorrow's primary.

In some sections, the county races drew more attention than the legislative contests despite the weighty problems to confront the General Assembly next January.

The old expression that the "woods are full" of candidates is literally true. It is estimated that something like 1,000 citizens will be voted upon tomorrow for the State Senate, the House of Delegates, clerkships of the courts, sheriff, magistrate, treasurer and other county offices.

Last Opportunity.

Tonight, if a light blinked wherever a political speech was being made, the Old Dominion might look like a huge signboard to an observer from the stratosphere. It was the last opportunity and most of the candidates took advantage of it.

Although there are 40 members of the State Senate and 100 members of the House, there are few primary contests. A few of the counties and senatorial districts will or have nominated by convention, but in the majority of the legislative districts nominees declared when no opposition appeared.

Senate nominees will be chosen in 13 districts in the primary tomorrow, while nominees for the House of Delegates will be selected in 34 districts holding 48 seats.

One of the most interesting situations in the State developed in Henrico County, where the "Citizens' League," which won a fight to set up a county manager type of government, urged its members and other voters to stay out of the primary and vote for four incumbent supervisors in the general election. The incumbents are not on the ballot.

Non-Partisian Stand.

"Down-the-line Democrats" in the county, backing four supervisors on the ballot, are urging their nomination, but assert they are not opposing the county manager form of government. The Citizens' League says it has maintained a non-partisan attitude and does not want its members to participate in the primary.

Interest continued to center on the vigorously-waged battle in which Senator Saxon Holt, of Newport News, chairman of the Senate privileges and elections committee and a member of the "Old Guard" of the Senate, is opposed by A. L. Bivins, attorney of Newport News.

Candidates in the Twenty-first floater senatorial district—H. B. Apperson, incumbent; Hal C. Tyler, and Leonard G. Muse—had division of the big district, composed of Roanoke City, Roanoke County, Franklin Floyd and Montgomery counties, as one of the issues. The issue is over separating the city from the counties, with one Senator to be elected from each, rather than two at large.

Home Rule Plan Up.

Mayor Sidney Small's "home rule" plan to permit Roanoke City Council to fix the salaries of constitutional officers instead of the State compensation board, also had an important place, with candidates attacking Senator Apperson and Delegate Walter Scott, who oppose the "home rule" plan of the Mayor. Scott is running in Roanoke City with Ray O. Lawson and M. S. Battle, with two to be elected.

The grand jury at Roanoke cleared all candidates of any blame but asserted the absent voters law invites fraud and corruption in a report of its investigation of the administration of the law. Several indictments were returned for violation.

Polls tomorrow will be open from sunrise to sunset, which the Weather Bureau says will be from 5:17 in the morning until 7:14 in the afternoon at Richmond, giving almost 14 hours for casting of ballots. The time will vary slightly in other parts of the State.

Portsmouth also witnessed a fight over local issues—a charter change to permit election of councilmen from wards rather than at large.

Road Patrol Effective Today in 20 Counties

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Road patrol under the newly organized State police system will begin tomorrow in the 20 counties served by Company A, in charge of Lieut. Arnold Moore, of Fairmont headquarters, and Corp. R. P. Harris, newly appointed supervisor of transportation for the company.

Twenty-four State troopers will go on patrol in 20 counties with motorcycles and roadsters recently purchased by the State department of public safety. Under the revised plan, State police posts are located at county seats and officers patrol only in their own counties.

Institute Head Plans a Forum For Veterans

Dr. Maphis of University Projects Conferences for 1936 Session.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., Aug. 5.—Plans are nearing completion for a group conference of all national associations of war veterans at next year's annual session of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of ter understanding among themselves, and also to create a better Virginia, it was announced today by Dr. Charles G. Maphis, institute director.

The institute, he said, hopes to aid these groups in reaching a betinformed public opinion as to their objectives.

Each organization has been invited to name several official spokesmen for the conference, and it is proposed to select a leader or chairman from one of the larger groups.

Citing the need for such a conference, Dr. Maphis said that "it is deplorable that amongst the various groups which represent the Nation's defenders that there should seem to be such lack of uniformity in the attitude and policy toward veterans' welfare sponsored by the various units.

"I believe that the policies of these organizations, all of which were founded on the highest patriotic precepts, are not generally understood by the public."

Elkins Forwards More Big Projects

Proposals Sent to Charleston to Cost $1,000,000.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Additional projects, submitted by the district works progress administration with offices here to State headquarters call for expenditure of $1,000,000.

They include three road projects, one each in Jefferson, Morgan and Pendleton Counties, and one health service and FHA project in each of the ten counties in the district, with a total expenditure of $291,429.90.

The road projects submitted are estimated to cost $808,002.50 and will be spread over the counties of Berkeley, Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, Mineral, Randolph and Tucker.

Four projects are listed for Randolph County at a cost of $329,346.50, while Grant County will have three, Berkeley and Mineral two each, and Hardy, Hampshire and Tucker, one each.

Largest of the four in Randolph County will be the widening and improving with a traffic-bound surface of crushed stone the road from Beverly to Bemis, a distance of 12.6 miles.

$90,000 Road Projects Approved for County

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Approved WPA road and street projects in Tucker County will cost more than $90,000, according to information furnished by Representative Jennings Randolph.

The largest of the projects is for construction of a road from Parsons to the Barbour County line by way of Clover District, for which the Federal Government will provide $73,644 and the State road commission $2,700.

New streets for Hendricks will cost $4,326, all from Federal funds, while construction of the Elk Lick Run trail is planned to cost $15,136, to be provided by the Federal Government.

By-Pass Route In Hagerstown Left Up to City

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5.—The mayor and council shall decide which route the by-pass of Route 40 shall take through the city and the State roads commission will not dictate to city officials.

City officials were informed by officials of the commission that the commission has no idea of selecting the route and that it was only at the invitation of Hagerstown officials that a month ago Dr. Homer L. Tabler, chairman of the commission, and Nathan Smith, engineer for the commission, came here to inspect a proposed by-pass that has since caused considerable opposition.

The commission has informed city officials that $550,000 has been allotted to Hagerstown in the commission's budget submitted to Federal officials and that if the city desires a grade crossing elimination project on Route 40 it will have to decide for itself which route it shall take.

The plan, if submitted by city officials, must meet Federal requirements, must eliminate the grade crossings on Route 40 here and must be done with the amount allotted.

The by-pass which the commission inspected would leave the present Route 40 west of the corporate limits, pass through a section of the City Park, follow Memorial boulevard to the municipal electric light plant and Antietam Creek to a point near Funkstown, where a new bridge was contemplated, and return to Route 40 a half mile below Funkstown, eliminating three grade crossings and a number of sharp curves.

The sentiment, expressed by business and civic leaders at a mass meeting called two weeks ago by Mayor I. M. Wertz opposed almost unanimously any route that would not come through the business section.

Information that the commission would not dictate to city officials as to the route came as Mayor I. M. Wertz sought a conference with the roads commission to learn if a route through the business section would be objectionable.

House Agrees on Plan For Appomattox Shrine

The House yesterday agreed to Senate amendments to Representative Patrick H. Drewry's bill establishing a national battlefield monument at Appomattox—the scene of Lee's surrender to Grant.

Senate amendments changed the designation of the shrine from a park to a monument and reduced the area of the monument from 5 to 1½ miles, according to the Associated Press.

The bill establishes a national monument at Appomatox and makes available $100,000 for the purpose. The bill now needs only the President's signature to become a law.

PWA Studies Fund Plea On Charlotte Project

The Public Works Administration yesterday had under study an application from Charlotte Courthouse, Va., for a loan and grant of $18,000 for a waterworks project, according to the Associated Press.

The PWA announced also that Arlington County had requested an additional allotment for its sewerage project, based on increased construction costs. The original application for the Arlington project seeking $2,500,000 was approved in October, 1933.

22 New Units Functioning In Maryland

Four of Groups Are Self-Supporting on Basis of Fees.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 5.—Twenty-two State commissions and supervisory bodies are functioning in Maryland now under laws enacted or revised since the first of the year.

A survey today of the acts of the last legislature showed that 18 commissions have come into existence since Gov. Harry W. Nice took office.

Four new bodies are self-supporting on fees collected from persons examined or licensed. They are the board of examiners of architects, the milk control commission, the board of examiners for paperhangers and the board of hair dressers and beauty culturists.

One of the most important groups is the State survey commission under the chairmanship of J. Cookman Boyd. This commission has been holding executive meetings for the purpose of investigating State departments and expenditures. Its report will be made to the State Legislature.

Other bodies now in operation are the board of barber examiners, commission for the study of breeding grounds of edible fish, occupational diseases commission, veterans' relief commission, State aviation commission, State banking commission, commissioners on uniform legislation, hall of records commission, the governor's military staff, Potomac River district commission, tercentenary memorial commission, commission to investigate prison labor, Patapsco River bridge commission, interstate compacts commission, commission on the extension of Patapsco avenue, commission or corporation laws of Maryland and land laws commission.

The members of most of these commissions are serving without pay, while appropriations ranging downward from $50,000 are provided for rthe operations of some of the groups.

Farmer Is Killed As Autos Collide

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 5.—Russell L. Linthicum, 35-year-old farmer of near Berryville, Clarke County, died as he reached Memorial Hospital here today following a collision with an automobile driven by Clyde Douthat, of Washington.

Linthicum, according to officers, was riding on the left front fender of a car driven by Richard R. Price, 36, who attempted to make a left turn on the Berryville pike, when the cars crashed. Douthat was injured on the chest and head and was brought here to the hospital.

Price received several broken ribs and other injuries. Receiving minor injuries were George Kercheval, sprained wrist; Allen Mallory, Frank Chapman and daughter, shock, and Ernest Chapman, bruises.

Linthicum, who is a son of Mrs. A. B. Linthicum, 223 C street northeast, Washington, is survived by the widow and three children.

Hagerstown Sergeant To Get Service Medal

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5.—First Sergt. Charles B. Minnebraker, of Company B, Maryland National Guard, Hagerstown, will be awarded a 15-year service medal at the annual encampment of the First Maryland Regiment, August 17-31, at Mount Gretna, Pa. A ten-year service medal will be presented Lieut. Guy S. McGee, of the company.

A cup for the best attendance in the regiment for the last fiscal year will be awarded the local company, which had a percentage of 99.9, the highest average of any guard company in the United States. Sergt. Minnebraker will also receive a medal for not having missed a drill in 11 years.

Long, Neeley Invited To Labor Celebration

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Organized labor in this part of West Virginia will stage a double celebration of Labor Day.

The first will be at Fairmount Sunday, September 1, where John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, will speak. The following day union men of Harrison County will observe the day here.

Among those who have been invited to attend the local celebration are Senator Huey Long, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the former Governor of Pennsylvania; Senator M. M. Neely and Representative Jennings Randolph.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fairmont, W. Va., Aug. 5.—The receiver of the closed Union National Bank is distributing to 8,000 depositors a 10 per cent dividend, amounting to $223,372. This dividend represents 63 per cent paid out since the bank closed.

Man Sought As Assailant Of Woman

By the Associated Press.

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 5.—Working with several fingerprints and a vague description as clews, Harford County authorities today sought a man who Mrs. George Archer alleged tried to attack her in her home.

The 82-year-old woman said the attempt occurred Saturday night soon after she had retired. Mrs. Archer lives alone in a bungalow at Bensons, about a mile from the Wilma substation of the State police.

She was not able to give a detailed description of the man, but State police took impressions of several finger marks found about the bedroom.

The investigation was directed by State's Attorney D. Paul McNabb, Sheriff Granville C. Boyle and Sergt. E. S. Haddaway.

A premonition that her home would be broken into while she was alone was disclosed by Mrs. Archer in explaining why she kept a large dinner bell in the bedroom. She had asked neighbors to "come a-running" when they heard the bell.

George Preston, owner of a neighboring farm, and a laborer on the nearby farm of Benjamin W. Amos were first to respond to her call.

Search for Body Of Captain Halted

Lack of Dragging Hooks Ends Chesapeake Hunt.

By the Associated Press.

The lack of dragging equipment caused watermen at Deal's Island to abandon the search yesterday for the body of Capt. Hector Webster, who disappeared Sunday from a fishing boat in the lower Chesapeake Bay.

The upper thoroughfare, where Capt. Webster was believed to have fallen overboard while trying to prevent his boat from running aground, is about 75 feet deep. The watermen gave up the hunt because they did not have hooks with which to drag.

The body of a man found floating on the bay near Hackett's Point was identified yesterday as that of Sergt. Charles D. Price, of the Federal Radio Telegraph Service. He disappeared Thursday from a yacht near Gibson Island.

Two other people were drowned, seven Marylanders killed in automobile accidents and one crushed by a train to boost the State's weekend fatality list to 12.

Dr. Hammond Resigns Pulpit After 23 Years

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 5.—The Rev. Kensey Johns Hammond, D. D., rector of St. Marks Parish for 23 years, presented his resignation to take effect the first of October. His resignation was prompted by continued ill health.

Dr. Hammond, who came in 1913 to St. Marks Parish, which includes St. Stephens Church in Culpeper, where he resides, the Little Fork Colonial Church at Oakshade and the chapel at Rixeyville, previously served 25 years at the Episcopal Church in Wilmington, Del. Two years ago he celebrated his golden anniversary in the ministry. Dr. Hammond, member of a prominent Maryland and Delaware family, is the father of Dr. Lewis Machen Hammond, professor at University of Virginia.

Virginia Work Projects Approved by President

Virginia's first set of public works projects was approved yesterday by President Roosevelt. A total of $132,492 was made available for the work, according to the Associated Press.

The projects are in Charlottesville, Culpeper, Petersburg, Marshall, Richmond, Louisa County, Madison County, Suffolk, Quantico, Fredericksburg, Stafford County and Sussex County.

Man, Helpless on Track, Hit by Train and Killed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 5.—His right leg crushed by a freight train as he lay helpless on the tracks, Jacob O. Weddle, 52, of near Woodsboro, died at the Emergency Hospital yesterday a few hours after the accident. Weddle, an employe at a lime plant, told physicians at the hospital that he twisted his ankle while walking along the tracks and fell.

Awards to Be Made.

Tomato Is Fruit, Says Court In Decision on Murder Trial

Grower's Excuse From Jury Held Valid by Virginia Tribunal.

By the Associated Press.

Accomac, Va., Aug. 5.—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, gravely weighing the evidence in the case of a man convicted of murder by a jury, has ruled that tomatoes are fruit.

The argument as to whether the "love apple" is a fruit or a vegetable is an unending one on the Eastern Shore and the northern neck of Virginia, where tons of the fruit—the vegetable—are grown each summer.

The court's decision on the question was handed down in reversing and remanding for a new trail the case of Paul Wessells, convicted by an Accomac County jury of fatally wounding Dewey Coard in a store at Greenbush, Va. Witnesses testified Wessells hit Coard with the handle of a wire stretcher. Wessells pleaded insanity. But the 12 convicted him of first degree murder and he was sentenced to life imprisonment.

In their appeal his attorneys based their first assignment in error on the fact that one Otho T. Kelly was excused from jury service by the court because he was "busy picking tomatoes." The Virginia statutes exempt from jury duty "any fruit grower while actively engaged in harvesting his crops."

The Virginia Supreme Court held the lower bench was correct on this point, citing an authoritative dictionary, which defines a tomato is a "South American perennial herb widely cultivated, usually as an annual for its fruit." But it did find the Circuit Court erred in other technicalities in allowing Kelley to go back to his fields.

Wessells' new trail probably will be held in September.

Auto Deaths Decline By 30% in Maryland

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 5.—Traffic deaths in Maryland during July, 1935, were approximately 30 per cent lower than during the same month a year ago, Maj. J. Purdon Wright, commander of the State police, said today.

During July, 1934, there were 48 fatal accidents, in which 52 persons were killed. During July, 1935, there were 31 fatal accidents, which accounted for the death of 36 persons.

Credit for reduction in the death rate was given to the night patrol. This patrol is an augmented force of traffic officers who patrol in automobiles between 11 p. m. and 2 a. m. The death toll included only those killed in the counties and not the fatal accidents in Baltimore City.

Tri-State Elks Begin Conclave In Maryland

Havre De Grace Tent Is Registration Place for Convention.

By the Associated Press.

Havre De Grace, Md., Aug. 5.—A mammoth tent near the Havre de Grace race track was the scene today of the gathering and registering of the early arrivals for the fifteenth annual convention of the Tri-State Association of Elks.

No sessions were held today, the first business coming up for consideration tomorrow morning. Today's program of the three-day convention was devoted entirely to getting acquainted and a few sightseeing tours.

Motor tours to the Army proving grounds at Aberdeen and the hydroelectric power plant at Conowingo were given many of the delegates during the day. A moonlight excursion on the steamer Tred Avon offered tonight's entertainment.

The largest delegation to arrive today was from Annapolis. The group of 50 men took over one hotel here. A Washington party with a boy's band of 70 pieces arrived with a State police escort.

Approximately 5,000 delegates and visitors were expected for the convention. The association comprises lodges of nearby Maryland, Pennsylvania and Delaware. Visitors were coming from New Jersey and West Virginia.

Two Delegations Back Candidates for Bench

Two delegations seeking appointment of their respective candidates for the new Federal judgeship in the Eastern Virginia District yesterday were granted interview dates with Attorney General Cummings, according to the Associated Press.

Legh R. Page, of Richmond, and a delegation have an engagement to see the Attorney General at noon today in behalf of A. H. Sands, of Richmond. A Suffolk delegation is to press the claim of Judge Corbett, of Suffolk, in an interview arranged for tomorrow. The judgeship bill was signed by President Roosevelt last Friday.

Virginia Lists 11 Additional Paralysis Cases

Albemarle County Leads With Record of 7; Total for State Now 297.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5.—Seven of 11 cases of infantile paralysis reported to the State Health Department today came from the County of Albemarle, where more than one-fifth of the total reported since July 1 have centered.

Twenty-three of Richmond's 51 cases have made complete recoveries, while four more have been released from quarantine, Dr. W. A. Brownen, city epidemiologist, said today. There has been one death in the State capital from the disease.

There were five poliomyelitis deaths in Virginia in June, it was said at offices of the State health department. No statistics have been compiled for July.

The other counties reporting today were Greene, Rockingham, Southampton and Roanoke, with one case each.

Cases of poliomyelitis recorded at the office of Dr. I. C. Riggin, health commissioner, since July 1 now total 297, with 51 of them in the first five days of August.

The State Guernsey Breeders Association announced today that its scheduled picnic at South Hill Wednesday would be postponed because of the epidemic. The Mecklenburg Guernsey Club, which was to act as host, said it had received a circular letter from Dr. T. H. Valentine which said it was "thought advisable by the State Department of Health to request that all public gatherings be postponed for the present."

Heat Victim Improved.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 5.—Aubrey Bradshaw, 16, messenger boy, remained in Mary Washington Hospital tonight, the victim of heat prostration. The youth was delivering a telegram Saturday when he collapsed in the street. Physicians said his condition was not serious but he would have to remain in the hospital for several days.

Chain Gang Break Fails; Felon Shot

Guard Opens Fire When Convict Attempts to Choke Him.

By the Associated Press.

Gate City, Va., Aug. 5.—A convict was shot and a prison camp employe stabbed in an attempted chain gang break near here today.

John M. Hood, a guard, shot Tom Lloyd, one of the prisoners in a gang being transported to a road job, after another convict had tried to choke him, assistant camp Sergt. A. T. Cox said following an inquiry. Lloyd is reported to have grabbed at Hood's pistol while the second prisoner was attempting to hold him. Hood said he jerked free from the man and fired.

The bullet entered Lloyd's back below the shoulder and Dr. G. K. McConnell, hurriedly summoned, said its range could not be immediately ascertained. He said the man might not live.

A third convict stabbed a man named Tomlinson, prison camp truck driver employe, while the two others attacked Hood, it was said. Tomlinson was taken to an Abingdon hospital.

Details of the unsuccessful break were withheld by Cox, who said he was awaiting the return from Richmond of Capt. Quarles.

By the Associated Press.

Fulton, Mo., Aug. 5.—Aided by watchful farmers of this territory, authorities concentrated their search here tonight for five criminally insane fugitives from the Missouri State Hospital.

Dr. Ralph Hanks, hospital superintendent, said he believed at least four of the fugitives still are in this vicinity. He said a second group of hospital guards and attendants was being sent to hunt through the thick underbrush east of here.

One group failed to find a man who ran into the underbrush and disappeared when a farmer, William Harrison, approached him this morning.

Hanks pointed out it was almost necessary that the criminals be tracked by persons connected with the hospital or the State penitentiary who are acquainted with them. All were in civilian clothes when they escaped, as the hospital patients do not wear prison uniforms.

Highway patrolmen and deputies stopped cars and questioned all pedestrians along highways, and officers also stopped freight trains and searched the cars for the escaped men.

Only one of the fugitives has been seen since the escape. Believed to be Oliver Hamilton, St. Louis, who murdered two men in 1933, he obtained three automobiles to aid in his flight by abducting the drivers and occupants and then putting them out of the cars.

Imposing List of Films Is Disclosed, Sans Adjectives, for Loew's New Season

Several Rated As Spectacles Of First Rank

Foremost Stars Included; the June Champions; Amusement Chat.

By Nelson B. Bell.

From time to time, since the series of producing companies' sales conventions beginning in June, this column has announced the important film releases that might be expected during the ensuing year from the various major producers. It now becomes possible to furnish slightly more concrete information for the benefit of local picture patrons by stating briefly what major films may be expected on the screens of the Loew houses in Washington during the months that lie ahead.

Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., announces the inauguration of the new season of Loew's Fox, Palace and Columbia theaters on Friday of this week.

In commenting upon the films which he has in the offing, Mr. Barron remarks that his list embodies productions of such obvious superiority in stories, casts and treatment that no superlative adjectives are required to impress their importance upon an informed public.

"This year we are cutting out the descriptive flourishes because the lineup of attractions coming to the Loew theaters is so outstanding that Washingtonians will immediately recognize the merits of the many new pictures on the way," is the manner in which Mr. Barron puts it.

There seems to be ample justification for this complacent view of the excellence of the screen entertainment about to be made available to the Capital on F street.

"Farmer" First Again.

First on the list to which Mr. Barron refers is a romantic drama of a long-forgotten era in the development of the Nation in which Washington should feel an especial interest, because the stage version of the work was given its first performance on any rostrum as the opening attraction at the National Theater last season, under the aegis of Max Gordon, with Marc Connelly, author of "The Green Pastures," in the dual capacity of co-author and director.

This is "The Farmer Takes a Wife," with Janet Gaynor in the principal feminine role and Henry Fonda in the same part he created on the stage. The comic role of jack-of-all-trades, originated by Herb Williams, is played on the screen by "Slim" Summerville.

On the termination of the run of "The Farmer Takes a Wife" at the Palace, that adventurous tale of the Erie "Canawl" will be succeeded by "China Seas," the first of the several big, spectacular films that will punctuate the season's output. Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Beery head the cast of this one.

It is pointed out by Mr. Barron that his new season bookings will be more than ordinarily prolific in "spectacle" films, by reason of the fact that sound recording now has been perfected to the point where vast expanse of screen does not impede accurate reproduction of alarums, commotions and dialogue, stentorian or sotto voice.

Garbo's Next.

Greta Garbo's next release "Anna Karenina," an adaptation of the novel by Count Leo Tolstoi—which she made in 1927, under the title of "Love" and which Fox produced as a silent picture as far back as 1915—will reproduce scenes of old Russia on a lavish and impressive scale, just as was done in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of "Rasputin and the Empress."

Other forthcoming Loew bookings that fall into the category of the spectacle include Dickens' "The Tale of Two Cities," in which Ronald Colman will be the pictured star. This subject calls for a cast of principals numbering 112, and 6,000 extras for the scenes of the French Revolution. "Mala," South Seas subject, also is big.

From the same studio will come the film version of that tale of brutality and adventure in the South Seas, "Mutiny on the Bounty," with Charles Laughton and Clark Gable featured.

In addition to these italicized releases other pictures expected to keep queues forming at the ticket wickets include "The Call of the Wild," the Jack London story starring Clark Gable and Loretta Young, and "Broadway Melody of 1935," with Jack Benny and a stellar cast recruited from stage, screen and radio.

Others in Prospect.

Then will come a profusion of United Artists, M-G-M, Paramount and Fox productions to the Loew screens, among which may be mentioned Charlie Chaplin, in "Modern Times;" Fred Allen, Phil Baker, Paul Whiteman and a carload of luminaries in "Sing, Governor, Sing;" Spencer Tracy and Claire Trevor, in "Dante's Inferno," "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," with Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper; Ted Lewis, in "Here Comes the Band," "The Big Broadcast of 1935," with Burns and Allen, Jack Oakie, Lyda Roberti, Bing Crosby, Amos 'n' Andy, Ethel Merman, Jessica Dragonette and numerous others; Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Grand Opera star, in her film debut in "The Rose of the Rancho," with John Boles; Charles Laughton, in "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Here Comes Cookie," with Burns and Allen; Eddie Cantor, in "Shoot the Chutes," George Raft and Carole Lombard, in "Every Night at Eight," heralded as Walter Wanger's best effort to date as a producer of A-1 drama, and William Powell and Myrna Loy, in a sequel to "The Thin Man."

Also listed for future showing are "Let's Get Married," with Sylvia Sidney and Fred MacMurray, Carole Lombard, in "Hands Across the Table," and Will Rogers, in "In Old Kentucky" and "Steamboat Bill."

Now in production, but as yet untitled, are new vehicles for Joan Crawford, Shirley Temple and Bing Crosby, as well as "Marie Antoinette," starring Norma Shearer.

And, as if that were not enough for any one organization in a single season, Mr. Barron goes on to list William Powell in "The Black Chamber," The Marx Brothers in "A Night at the Opera," Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy in "Americans Can Sing, Too," Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Tarzan Returns," Ronald Colman in "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," Laurence Tibbett in "Metropolitan," Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall in "Dark Angel," and Edward G. Robinson, Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea in "Barbary Coast."

Add to all this, carefully selected supplementary short subjects and scrupulously chosen stage attractions and you have ample corroboration of this department's frequent contention that the modern motion picture theater offers the geratest range of entertainment to be found anywhere, and at prices of admission that anybody can afford to pay.

Speaking of Greta Garbo, as we must have been somewhere back there in the course of Mr. Barron's "brief" announcement, that illustrious recluse this week is celebrating the tenth anniversary of her debut in American films at her home in Jenny Lind's famous old castle in Sweden. Ten years ago she arrived in this country with a great director, Mauritz Stiller. A studio articled to pay him $1,350 per week and her $200, a stipend which Stiller by cogent argument succeeded in having raised to $300. Early in 1926 she was acclaimed for her work in a picture called "Torrent." Her picture with John Gilbert, at that time the greatest star of the two, was "Flesh and the Devil." From that time on her star has been the brightest in the Hollywood constellation, on a year-in, year-out basis of computation. Instead of $300 per week, Greta now receives a beggarly $200,000 per picture. So she bought the summer palace of Match King Kreuger!

Nine June Champions.

As tangible evidence of the increasing merit of current film product, may be cited the findings of the Motion Picture Herald in its poll of the key cities of the country to determine by actual box-office statements which were the "Box Office Champions for June."

So uniformly excellent was the quality of the June pictures that nine qualified as candidates to fill the first five ratings, on a basis of bona fide earnings, reflecting, of course, the indisputable preferences of the cash customers.

First, second and third places in the ratings were uncontested, two pictures were tied for fourth and four found themselves in a deadlock for fifth.

First place went to "No More Ladies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production, starring Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery, with Franchot Tone, Charles Ruggles and Edna May Oliver. The runner-up was "Oil For the Lamps of China," with Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson, and third place was won by Will Rogers in "Doubting Thomas."

Color Film Ranks Down.

The two tied for fourth were "Becky Sharp," starring Miriam Hopkins, and "Les Miserables," with Frederic Marsh and Charles Laughton. Fourth place seems to have been dedicated, strangely, to period costume pictures, "Becky Sharpe," of course being the first feature executed in the new three-tone Technicolor process.

Fifth place was divided among "Under the Pampas Moon," starring Warner Baxter; "Public Hero No. 1," with Lionel Barrymore, Chester Morris and Jean Arthur; "The Glass Key," starring George Raft, and "Break of Hearts," starring Katharine Hepburn, with Charles Boyer and John Beal.

This tabulates into a score, by producing companies, of two for M-G-M, two for Fox and two for RKO-Radio, with one each for First National-Warner Brothers, United Artists and Paramount.

Nice going, if you ask us. Nice going, even if you don't!

Washington's amateur and semi-professional acting groups deserve credit for keeping everlastingly at it. Rumors are afloat that on or about the fifteenth of the present month, Myrtis Morgan, recently of the National Civic Theater Society, active for a brief season at the Odeon, out at Forest Glen, Md., Forney Reese and others of the Odeon group, augmented by several new recruits, will present "East Lynne" in the auditorium of the National Press Club. It will be done as a tear-jerking melodrama, after the fashion of last summer's "The Durnkard," on the roof of the Willard.

A month later, or in the vicinity of September 15, the Mann-Tilla Players, under the direction of John Mann, and with the active participation of Ted Tiller, if he is back from the Gloucester Playhouse by then, will present Noel Coward's "The Young Idea" in the Wardman Park Theater. This will be followed, according to present tentative plans by Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie," with Ann Garrett in the title role. Miss Garrett, it will be recalled, received the award for the best feminine acting in last year's District one-act play tournament.

"Anna Christie" was played with great success on the stage by Pauline Lord and on the screen by both Blanche Sweet and Greta Garbo. It was this picture that established Garbo as a star of the audible screen and launched the late Marie Dressler on her way to becoming its foremost character comedienne.

Encouraged by the enthusiastic reception accorded its initial production of "Waiting for Lefty," by Clifford Odets, the New Theater Group has gone full swing into plans for an extensive program for the coming fall and winter season.

The first full-length play to be produced in the early fall will be "Awake and Sing." Odets' unique drama of life in the Bronx. This play, scheduled to close almost a month ago in New York, is still going strong and is one of the few holdover offerings on Broadway that still is packing them in. This local production will be the play's first outside of New York. Casting is now in progress. "Awake and Sing" will be directed by Rose Skopp, who also directed "Waiting for Lefty."

Also under consideration by the group's repertoire committee for production following "Awake and Sing" are "The Black Pit," a drama of the coal mines, by Albert Maltz; "Parade," the Theater Guild's satirical revue; "The Young Go First," CCC drama; "Till the Day I Die," Odets' play of Nazi Germany, and many others.

Anyone interested in the group's activities, or desirous of more complete information concerning its plans, will do well to communicate with Dave Lyons, 1717 P street northwest, who, I am led to believe, is loaded to the ears with data.

Signs-of-the-Times Note.

A thriving establishment on U street, near Fourteenth, emblazons to the world in guady, vari-colored Neon lights the fact that it is the "Owl Sandwich Shop."

I seem not to recall ever having eaten an owl sandwich.

Milk Control Board Plans Bigger Market

Baltimore, Aug. 5. (AP).—A campaign to increase the consumption of milk in Baltimore is one of the aims of the Milk Control Commission, which recently assumed control of the industry in this milkshed, C. Wilbur Miller, chairman, said today.

Miller's statement was made in a letter sent to all producers. He asserted that the commission had formed "no half-baked plans" and promised to operate with as little annoyance to the producer as possible.

"Georgeo, Wherefore Art Thou?"

Juliet Allen, sometimes known as Gracie, for short, munches a rose and twiddles a mean guitar in token of her mad passion for Romeo George Burns in still another screen production—or partial production—of Shakespeare's classic love tragedy. Their revival of "Romeo and Juliet" occurs as an interlude in the otherwise comparatively sane goings-on in Paramount's "Here Comes Cookie," a film that will be coming along to local screens in due course. It requires no clairvoyant power to discern that the Romeo-Juliet sequence was wholly the delightfully lunatic Gracie's idea.

Hotel Agrees to Close Bar If Granted ABC License

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—The Chamberlin Hotel management today announced the barroom there would be closed and the hotel otherwise conform to the State law if permits similar to the ABC licenses could be obtained.

The announcement was made by J. Wesley Gardner, manager of the hotel at Old Point.

"If we can not get licenses to sell wine and beer like other Virginia hotels and can not get banquet or club licenses, I do not see how we can conform to the State law," Gardner continued.

Gov. Peery said, "The question of whether the hotel is within the law or outside the law is being decided by Federal authorities, I have been informed."

Dead Fish Draw Inquiry.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 5.—Efforts are being made to ascertain the cause of death of hundreds of fish floating on the waters of Opequon Creek, in the Wadesville section of Frederick County. The fish have been observed for a distance of more than 4 miles. State authorities may be called to assist local officials. It is believed the fish were killed by poisonous matter dumped into the stream or by dynamiting.

Body of Drowned Man Recovered From River

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 5.—Searchers this afternoon recovered from the Rivanna River the body of Wiley Sharp, who was drowned late yesterday afternoon while he sought relief from intensive heat with a companion several hundred yards below the Richmond highway bridge. Firemen and volunteers searched last night and this morning.

Sharp, a native of Dillwyn and employe of the Barnes Lumber Co. for 20 years sank as Herbert C. Womack, his companion, sat on a bank. One of Womack's children was said to have called his attention to Sharp's disappearance three or four minutes after he was seen swimming.

The Gossipel Truth.

Hollywood, Aug. 5.

LESLIE HOWARD is favored for the "Romeo" to Norma Shearer's "Juliet" and Irving Thalberg has been visiting Jack Warner trying to arrange the deal . . . Garbo and Gilbert were an on-and-off the screen love team, but these nights the off-screen billing is Dietrich and Gilbert. Marlene and John have been out dancing several times . . . Caesar Romero is busy these nights with Betty Furness and Margaret Perry, who is in town visiting . . . Boris Petroff and Jim Timony purchased a story from Fred Stanley called "Common Clay," to put into play form. Tomorrow night the play opens and although no author is listed, you have only to hear some of the spicy lines to know they were written by Mae West . . . Ad Randall and Isabel Jewel are romantic . . . A producer summoned his staff and said: "When we have a conference, I don't want any more evasive answers. You don't have to fear me when I ask a question; give me a 'Yes' or a 'No,' but mostly a 'Yes.'"

Neophytes Love to Finesse.

One of the many differences between a good Bridge player and the average beginner is that the neophyte loves to finesse, whereas the good player finesses only as a last resort. You have heard the story of the player who with 13 top-card tricks at a Grand Slam contract took a losing finesse and was unable to answer the polite inquiry of his partner as to whether he was trying to make an overtrick. There are hundreds of similar hands on the other side of the fence showing the expert resorting to every possible stratagem to avoid the necessity of guessing which way to finesse for a Queen.

Avoiding a Guess.

Anyone who looks at all four hands would find it simple to make four spades on the North-South cards. It is a good example hand, however, because it shows how a resourceful declarer avoided the necessity of guessing the finesse.

East, dealer.

East	South	West	North
1♣	1♠	2◇	Pass
3♣	3♠	Pass	3NT
Dbl.	4♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

The Play.

West opened the ten of clubs and South played low from dummy and trumped in his own hand. Apparently, making four spades depended solely on guessing the location of the Jack of hearts. Since this was a card impossible to locate in either hand from the bidding and since a rough count of the two adverse hands indicated the split of the heart suit as fairly normal, South could find no satisfactory guide.

Recalling the bidding, however, it seemed likely East's bid was sound and therefore included the Ace of hearts, in which case West's only possible excuse for a free overcall would be a six-card diamond suit. This would leave East only a singleton diamond and South foresaw a possibility of making the hand, even though he lost two heart tricks.

A low spade lead to dummy's Queen was followed by a low heart return, which South's Queen won. Two rounds of spades showed East had three and therefore, assuming he had a six-card club suit, he held only three hearts. It looked as though even if West did not hold the heart Jack, South's plan had succeeded.

A low diamond was led to the Ace and a low club trumped, enabling declarer to lead the ten of hearts from his hand. West and dummy played low, and East won with the Jack. East cashed the Ace of hearts and led the Ace of clubs, but South realizing his plan had succeeded, allowed the Ace to win, discarding a losing diamond. East played the Queen of clubs, South discarded his last diamond, dummy winning the trick with the club King. The last two tricks

Nats Outhit But Trim A's, 10-7, in First Sixth-Place Clash

With Shirley Povich

MR. ALVA BRADLEY, owner of the Cleveland Indians, who has been fumbling his job all season, the other day muffed his final chance to conduct himself as a big league club owner when he retired Walter Johnson as manager and appointed Steve O'Neil to the job. The retirement of Johnson and the appointment of O'Neil was all right, of course, if Mr. Bradley saw fit, but the conditions under which they took place are quite something else again.

POVICH.

If Mr. Bradley did not want Johnson to continue as his manager, this department rises to ask why in the world he didn't pay Johnson off, as is customary in big league baseball, and let him sever connections with the Cleveland Club. Instead, Bradley devises the new baseball duties of "investigator" for Johnson, who will tab the progress of Cleveland talent on minor league clubs and report his findings to headquarters.

And if Mr. Bradley wants Steve O'Neil as his manager why didn't he give O'Neil the benefit of his confidence and tender him a managerial contract. No; Bradley chose to appoint O'Neil as a stop-gap in his club's managerial troubles, withholding his complete stamp of approval. Thus O'Neil is placed in the position of a manager who really isn't a manager but might be a manager if he manages to please Mr. Bradley.

The extremely wishy-washy, weak-kneed administration of the affairs of the Cleveland club by Mr. Bradley has been apparent throughout Johnson's reign. It was Bradley, who, shirking the responsibility of ruling on the mutiny of Cleveland players against Johnson, not only failed to support Johnson but confessed his weakness as a club owner by referring the case to Judge Landis, who rightfully refused to have anything to do with it.

FROM Mr. Frank La Falce, whose motive are not entirely altruistic, we learn that the longest prize fight in the history of boxing was a struggle that went 110 rounds, lasted 7 hours and 19 minutes and ended in a draw between A. Bowen and J. Burke in New Orleans. Mr. La Falce, who as the beater of the publicity tom-toms for Warner's theaters in Washington, was moved to unearth the records of marathon bouts in connection with the current offering on the screen at the Earle.

In producing "The Irish In Us," the directors forced the featured Jimmy Cagney and his stooge, Harvey Perry, a former Pacific Coast amateur lightweight champion, to shatter all marathon fight records before the film was completed, but we seem to be getting away from fight history.

The second longest prize fight was staged in San Francisco in 1890 between Danny Needham and Patsy Kerrigan, lasting 100 rounds and consuming 6 hours and 30 minutes before it ended in a draw. Unlike the Bowen-Burke encounter, Needham and Kerrigan fought with bare fists.

But all records were tossed into the discard during the production of the comedy drama in which Cagney again brings to the screen his fighter's phiognomy for the umpteenth time. His fight with Harvey Perry extended over five days before the directors called a halt.

FROM a statistically-minded studio attache not otherwise employed, apparently, an accurate check of the time Cagney and Parry actually spent in trading blows with each other is available. When they were finished trading blows in the center of the stadium especially constructed for the picture, it was estimated that the two had fought the equivalent of 183 three-minute rounds, lasting a total of 9 hours and 9 minutes of reel fighting.

In the five-day struggle, Cagney lost eight bouts and Parry divested himself of 5½ pounds, despite the fact that both combatants had trained diligently for a period of three weeks before the fight and were supposed to be in the proverbial pink of condition.

The rub, however, is that, on the screen, the fight will last less than 15 minutes with Cagney scoring a knockout half way through the eighth round.

The players are Capts. M. P. Ansell and H. C. Walford. They will be joined by the three remaining members of the playing squad tomorrow when the liner Majestic brings in Capts. Humphrey Guiness and P. B. Sanger, and Eric Tyrrell-Martin.

Veterans to Hear Louis Fight on Air

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—There will be no broadcast of the Joe Louis-King Levinsky fight at Comiskey Park Wednesday night, with one exception.

The sole exception will be made in favor of 1,700 wounded war veterans quartered at the Hines Memorial Hospital, near Chicago.

Sheldon W. Clark, president of the Sporting Club of Illinois, which is sponsoring the battle, arranged for a special telephone line to connect the ringside with the headphones attached to every veteran's bed at the hospital. They will listen to a running description of the battle.

Four Triples Help Griffs To Score

By Shirley Povich.

WITH three Philadelphia pitchers unable to restrain themselves from throwing three-base hits, the Nats yesterday won the opening skirmish of their battle for sixth place with the Athletics.

The four three-baggers that rocketed off the bats of Dee Miles, Joe Kuhel, Jake Powell and Buddy Myer figured in all of Washington's runs as the Nats won the ball game, 10 to 7, and lopped a full unit off what had been the Athletics' margin of 3½ games.

For that matter, the three Philadelphia pitchers—Al Benton, Wedo Martini and William Doyle—were specializing in extra base hits. Six of the Nats' nine blows saw the authors gallop for extra bases, which explains in a great measure how come the A's outhit the Nats, 13 to 9, and lost the ball game.

It was fortunate indeed that the Nats scored all those runs off Benton and the two unreformed sandlotters who followed him to the mound for the A's. Established in an 8-2 lead as early as the fourth inning, Earl Whitehill went into an uncertain stagger in the sixth and seventh innings when the A's retrieved five runs and were making serious motions toward tying the score.

Whitehill Steadies.

But Whitehill turned 'em back runless in the last two innings with the aid of the third double play started by Red Kress, and registered his tenth victory of the season.

Dee Miles began to justify some of the hopes Manager Bucky Harris holds for him when he knocked a mighty triple to the extreme corner of right center field with the bases full in the second inning to provide the blow that put the Nats in a 4-0 lead.

Wedo Martini, fresh from the Philadelphia sandlots, who had to help Benton get the side out in the second inning, failed to last through the fourth. He walked Cliff Bolton and, with one out, Joe Kuhel bashed a long triple to right center. Kuhel was run down at the plate on Miles' grounder to Martini, but after Myer walked, Jake Powell delivered a healthy triple into the left field corner to score the second and third runs of the innings.

Trio Gains Revenge.

When Martini followed that blow by walking Stone, Mack had seen enough of him and rushed William Doyle, a North Carolina sandlotter, to the box. Doyle was immediately initiated into the wiles of the big leaguers. As he held the ball, Johnny Stone dashed for second and Jake Powell stole home from third on the front end of a double steal to boost the Nats' lead to 8-2.

Whitehill had struck out Finney, Johnson and Foxx in the first inning, but this trio gained a bit of revenge when the A's scored their first two runs in the third. Finney beat out a bunt that Bolton muffed, Johnson slashed a double to left, and Foxx walked.

Higgins' triple touched off a two-run uprising in the sixth inning that the second double play started by Kress nipped without further damage, and in the same inning Buddy Myer followed Miles' double with a triple to left center to boost Washington's lead to 10-4.

It was 10-5 at the end of the seventh, when Whitehill constructed

Louis Awaits Bout With Levinsky

Both Rest Today After Weeks of Training; Joe Scales 194.

Demand for Tickets May Net Gate Close to $250,000.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—With their training maneuvers over, Joe Louis, the Detroit bomber, and King Levinsky, Chicago's walloping former fish peddler, today began 48 hours of resting before their heavyweight battle in Comiskey Park, Wednesday night.

Up at his Round Lake, Ill., training camp, Levinsky indulged in one last training move, a private workout with even newspaper correspondents refused admittance. Around the bend in Lake Michigan at the summer home of Julian Black, one of Louis' managers, near St. Joseph, Mich., the brown bomber planned to do nothing more than catch up with his sleep, which he lost during the blistering hot nights of the training siege.

Levinsky, who has trained so faithfully that he has reduced to 198 pounds, lightest he has been in five years, engaged in his secret training session so his handlers could check up on his condition, and perhaps throw a couple of tough sparring partners in the ring with him for a real battle of a couple of rounds instead of the routine training sparring.

"I am boxing in exclusion today," the Kingfish blurted. "It is too bad my public can't watch me, because I am plenty tough and ready for that brown man from Detroit."

The idea of the secret workout originated with Art Winch, co-manager of Barney Ross, world's welterweight champion. Winch, shrewd in the business of conditioning and coaching a boxer, was engaged to handle the strategy in the Levinsky camp.

Louis left no doubt as to his condition during the last two days of sharpening up work with the gloves. He worked for speed and to keep his brilliant timing. He punched terrifically in the moments he chose to cut loose. He weighs 194 pounds. Louis intends to remain in his Michigan retreat until time to return Wednesday for the weighing in.

The rush for tickets gained volume with Promoter Joe Foley announcing that the advance sale had reached $110,000. He predicted that the gate might approach a quarter of a million dollars.

Ruffing Stars, Yanks Down Sox, 10-2

Game Is Halted in 6th by Rain; Weird Playing Marks Contest.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—The New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox, 10 to 2, today in a weird ball game, terminated by rain in the first half of the sixth. Red Ruffing pitched his first victory for the Yanks after four straight defeats.

Nine hits, seven walks and three errors gave the Yanks their ten runs off five pitchers, starting with wild Fred Ostermueller and ending with Stewart Bowers, rookie right-hander from Gettysburg College, making his big league debut.

A fourth-inning shower held up the game 17 minutes and the fifth was a travesty, as with more rain coming up and on the chance that the game would be called before the legal 4½ innings, the Red Sox tried not to get the Yanks out, and the Yanks tried to get themselves out, reversing the usual procedure.

Umpire Calls Halt.

Yankee Finishes 4th In English Boat Race

Cowes, England, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The Boston sloop Yankee, owned by Gerard B. Lambert, placed fourth in today's abbreviated race of the Royal London Yacht Club regatta.

Yankee and her four British rivals were forced to end the contest after covering only one lap of the scheduled three-lap course because of lack of wind.

Bob Tow Beats Mitchell by Decision

BOB TOW, the Alexandria Adonis, boxed his way to a split decision over Young Terry Mitchell, of New York, in a ten-round bout which featured a card of fisticuffing at Griffith Stadium last night.

Tow was stale from an eight-month lay-off and was lamentably off in his timing, although he experienced little difficulty in outpointing the wild swinging Irishman. Mitchell was staggered only once during the bout and Tow never was in difficulty.

Joe Lipps, the Ti-Ti (Ga.) Tiger, whaled his way to a unanimous six round decision over one Lou Lepage, of New York, in a gruelling heavyweight semifinal. Lepage started fast, but wilted just as rapidly under a two-fisted barrage to the stomach where he was none too solidly constructed. By the time the final round come up, Lepage was just in the ring for the ride and contented to stay the distance.

Burke Easy Winner.

Kirkwood Burke, former District A. A. U. heavyweight champion, completely removed his most persistent challenger by scoring a fourth-round technical knockout over Steve Kadash, of the Army, in a blood-and-thunder preliminary scheduled for 6 rounds. Kadash was down for a count of nine in the third round from a long right to the jaw. He was on the floor again from another such punch when the bell saved him at six.

The performance was repeated in its entirety in the fourth, even to the bell saving Kadash at six, and Referee La Fond would not let Steve answer the bell for the fifth because of a cut mouth.

Frankie Blair, of New York, outpunched the southpaw, Roy Manley, a welter weight from Arkansas, to take a unanimous decision in a hectic 6-rounder. Blair quickly solved Manley's unorthodox portside tactics, but Manley gave a creditable and courageous account of himself throughout.

Champion Steele Aids in Rescue Of Drowning Boy

Long Beach, Wash., Aug. 5 (AP).—Robert Robinson, 17-year-old Portland (Oreg.) boy, was alive today because of the courage and quick thinking of Freddie Steele, newly famous middleweight fighter of Tacoma, and Lloyd Wynans, of Aberdeen.

While swimming in the ocean here, Robinson and a companion, Robert Smith, also of Portland, were caught in an undertow and carried out into deep water. They screamed.

Smith yelled he could make it alone and Steele and Wynans saved Robinson. The boy was unconscious nearly two hours.

Savoldi Faces O'Mahoney Tonight

10,000 Are Expected to See Bout; Irishman Is Favorite.

Irish Whip, Drop-Kick to Have Showdown at Stadium.

By Bill McCormick.

Washington will be given its first glimpse of Danno Aloysius O'Mahoney as undisputed heavyweight wrestling champion of the world when the Oirish sensation meets the Eyetalian challenger, Jumping Joe Savoldi, in a title bout to a finish at Griffith Stadium tonight.

The paths of the 23-year-old phenomenon from County Cork and Savoldi never have crossed in the ring before and the encounter has aroused such interest among the grapple-minded that a crowd of more than 10,000 is expected to storm the portals at the local ball yard.

Savoldi will be permitted the use of his famed "drop kick," a maneuver which he was forbidden to use in several important matches and whose use O'Mahoney's manager sought to have barred here.

O'Mahoney probably will specialize in the "Irish whip" which he has made famous, as well as a varied and large repertoire of holds which he perfected while campaigning as an amateur and while slamming his way to the title within the past few months.

Star at Notre Dame.

Savoldi, who is 27 years old, was born in Three Oaks, Mich., of Italian ancestry. He was a great athlete as a boy in grammar and high schools, starring at football, baseball, track and boxing. He enrolled at Notre Dame for his higher education and immediately attracted the attention of the great football coach, Knute Rockne.

In 1930, Rockne termed Savoldi the greatest full back ever at Notre Dame. Joe was secretly married sometime later, the marriage was discovered and he was dropped from football prior to the Rose Bowl game. Out of college football Savoldi took up professional wrestling.

For a few years he was regarded as just another college athlete trying to make a living, but in 1933 he stunned the sports world by tossing the then champion, Jimmy Londos. Through some special rulings and what-not Savoldi was not given the title, but was ordered to meet Londos again and the drop kick was barred to him in the return match. He lost the return match.

Won 65 Matches.

O'Mahoney was born in County Cork, Ireland, just 23 years ago. His father was some shucks as an athlete in his day and Danno naturally followed in his footsteps, specializing in weight lifting. At 18 he enrolled in the Irish Free State army and in the service wrestled 65 matches without a defeat.

Strangler Lewis, one of the better grapplers, made a tour of Europe and Danno surprised the world by tossing him. He was immediately sought for an American appearance and finally signed under the management of Jack McGrath.

Mrs. Leo Walper's 86 Sets Pace in Public Links Qualifying

Mrs. McNitt Trailing by 4 Shots

Match Play Will Start At Rock Creek Course This Morning.

NOT content with winning medals in virtually every tournament in which she is a participant, Mrs. Leo Walper, wife of the driving range professor, went after more honors yesterday, and succeeded in outstroking the field in the 18-hole qualifying round of the District women's public links golf championship at Rock Creek.

Mrs. Walper shot an 86 over the rolling, par 68 layout, going out in 43 and returning in the same figures. Although not playing up to standard, the Kenwood Golf and Country Club champion was good enough to land the medal by a four-stroke margin.

Mrs. Arnold McNitt, whose golf career is just two years old, produced a 90, and held the lead through most of the day until Mrs. Walper came home with her late evening, medal-winning score.

Miss Brown Gets 96.

The luck of the draw brings Miss Brown and Miss Kincaid together in the first round. Mrs. Walper meets Mrs. H. Ingles. A sweep through to the final is expected of Mrs. Walper's case.

Her card:

Out, par	4	4	3	4	3	3	4	5	4—34
Mrs. Walper	5	4	5	5	6	4	4	5	5—43
In par	4	3	4	5	4	5	4	3	4—34—68
Mrs. Walper	4	4	4	4	5	6	6	5	5—43—86

Today's Pairings.

Championship flight—8:30, Miss Betty Keeler vs. Miss Nina Owings (99). 9, Mrs. Frank Steiner (104) vs. Miss M. Hessey (96); 9:05, Miss Lutie Tracy (97) vs. Mrs. Inez O'Donnell (106). 9:10, Mrs. Hope Wilkinson (100) vs. Mrs. Arnold McNitt (90). 9:15, Mrs. T. Powell (93) vs. Miss Doris Goodall (104). 9:20, Miss Brice Martin (107) vs. Miss Virginia Stokes (97). 9:25, Miss Marion Brown (96) vs. Miss Ellen Kincaid (106). 9:30, Mrs. Walper (86) vs. Mrs. H. Ingles (99).

Second flight—9:35, Miss Claire Ander (122) vs. Mrs. Mable Crafts (110). 9:40, Mrs. George Mead (114) vs. Miss A. Purse (113). 9:45, Mrs. M. Guderman (123) vs. Mrs. C. S. Bayer (131). 9:50, Mrs. H. C. Lang (111) vs. Mrs. M. L. Waldron (138).

One of the finest 18-hole rounds of the season, a 39—31—70, was carved out by little Ralphie Fowler at his Washington Golf and Country Club course. Fowler was even par for the route, and his last nine splurge, which included four birdies, came within two shots of matching the all-time record of Pete Calfee. Playing with Fowler were Dave Thomson, Felix Early and Charles H. Doing, sr.

3 2 4 4 3 4 3 4 4—31

The membership committee of Beaver Dam Country Club, headed by Frank Kramer, will stage another nine-hole tournament tomorrow at 5 p. m. A dinner will follow the tournament.

George Differenbaugh and Roger Peacock, one of the best pro-amateur teams in this section, defeated Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, and Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, yesterday at Indian Spring in an informal match, 2 and 1. Diffenbaugh set the pace with a 72, one over par; Barnett had 75, and Mackenzie and Peacock, 76s each

The 18-hole Maryland State handicap tournament scheduled at Manor August 21 has been changed to August 14, due to the qualifying round for the National Amateur.

After a month of inactivity the District Women's Golf Association will sponsor a nine-hole miniature tournament at Woodmont Country Club next Monday.

New York Printers Defeat Washington

Win, 14-6, After Foe Gets Five Runs in First.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—New York defeated Washington, 8 to 6, in one of the opening baseball games at the twenty-fifth annual Union Printers Baseball Tournament today.

Washington, the defending champion, was defeated despite a five-run lead in the first inning. Washington scored these five without getting a hit. Three men were safe on errors, then Pitcher Troff hit the next two batters and walked the next two.

Fred Stringer and Ed Merkle lead 120 golfers in first 18 holes of 72 hole tournament for Walter Hagan cup of the International Union Printers' Golf Club. Stringer had 80 and Merkle 82, each shooting 14 pars at Ridgewood Country Club.

Charlottesville Tops Orange, 7 to 3, 8 to 1

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ORANGE, Va., Aug. 5.—A hard-hitting Charlottesville club gave the pennant hopes of Orange a decided set-back here today by winning both ends of a twin bill, 7-3 and 8-1.

The first game, until the latter innnings, was a pitchers' battle between Tisdale, Orange ace, and Kerr, Charlottesville southpaw, with the latter having a slight advantage. The visitors scored in the second, when Fary and Sargeant walked, Ed Edelin driving them home with a long single and scoring later on Haslup's drive. Orange made three hits count a run in the fourth and tied the score at 3-all in the fifth, when Ross and Haney singled in succession and scored on Munday's long double.

O'Mahoney Faces Savoldi Tonight

An outstanding supporting card has been arranged for the edification of the large crowd expected to attend. In a semifinal, scheduled for 45 minutes, Gus Sonnenberg will meet Ed Meske. In 30-minute time-limit bouts, Rube Wright will tackle Mike Mazurki, and Abe Coleman is scheduled to perform against Jack Donovan.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Aug. 5.—Scoring four straight victories, including a double decision over the Heurich Brewers of Washington, the Front Royal All-Stars ascended to first place in the second half of the Valley League race and hold a one-game margin over the Culpeper champions.

Front Royal, runner-up for the first-half title, registered a 2-to-1 decision over Culpeper and a verdict over Waynesboro to set the stage for the double killing Sunday.

Culpeper Divides.

Culpeper split even during the week by taking a 5-to-4 decision over Harrisonburg after losing to Front Royal. The victory over Harrisonburg showed that Herb Hash, University of Richmond ace, who had a bone splintered in his pitching arm and was out for several weeks, has returned to form. Incidentally, Harrisonburg, runners-up a year ago, has been unable to register a victory over Culpeper this season.

Waynesboro holds third place by virtue of victories over Harrisonburg and their greatest rival, Staunton. Waynesboro yesterday registered its first victory over its Augusta County rivals this season.

Schedule for the Week.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 5.—Middletown defeated Emmitsburg, 10 to 4; Thurmont set back Woodsboro, 4 to 0; Brunswick took the measure of Taneytown, 6 to 3, and New Windsor downed Union Bridge, 5 to 4, in week-end Frederick County games. The Thurmont-Woodsboro tilt was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of rain.

Middletown's victory was its seventh straight win, a record for the team, and enabled the Valleyites to hold on to first place in the pennant race, one game ahead of Brunswick, champion last year.

The game started out a pitchers' battle between Hauver and Frank Althoff, with the latter having the better of it until his support gave way. Emmitsburg scored one run in the first inning and added three more in the second. Hauver then settled down and held Emmitsburg scoreless the remainder of the game. Middletown evened the count in the fifth inning and went ahead in the sixth when two walks, a fielder's choice and a triple by Harold Remsberg counted for two runs. The Valleyites clinched the game with four runs in the eighth.

Sharpsburg Triumphs To Retain League Lead

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5. — Sharpsburg continued its unbroken string of victories yesterday to remain leader in the second half of the Washington County Baseball League, defeating Williamsport, 4 to 2. Sharpsburg scored all of its runs in the first three innings.

Hancock, winner of the first half of the season, was eliminated in the second-half race when the Chevies won a pitching duel, 1 to 0, Tolbert yielding but four hits for the Chevies. A 14-inning game, won by the Woodmen from Mount Briar, 3 to 2, also featured yesterday's league games.

Cumberland Valley's Net Titlists Crowned

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5.—Miss Virginia Trenary, Martinsburg, and Miss Rachel McKinley, Hagerstown, won the doubles title in the second annual Cumberland Valley Tennis Tournament on City Park courts, defeating Miss Lisa Bloede, Catonsville, Md., and Mrs. Elizabeth Bopst, Frederick, 6—3, 6—0, in the final.

Fred Wright, jr., Hagerstown, and Jackson McLaughlin, Mercersburg, Pa., won the men's doubles title from P. Richard Ramsburg and Atlee Radcliffe, Frederick, 6—4, 4—6, 7—5, 1—6 and 6—2.

Boys' Doubles Under Way Tomorrow

32 Playgrounds Teams to Open Tournament on Four Courts.

SIXTY-FOUR teams in the junior and senior divisions, representing 32 playgrounds, will start play at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in the annual boys' doubles tennis tournament conducted by the Department of Playgrounds.

The matches will be played on the Rosedale, Montrose, Chevy Chase and Takoma playgrounds courts. Juniors will play at 9:30 a. m. and seniors at 2 p. m.

In the junior division the outstanding team has been entered by Burroughs and consists of Harry March and Charles Channing. March, sixth ranking junior player, recently won a sectional tournament in Baltimore and then won the District playgrounds boys' singles title. His partner was a semi-finalist in the senior division of the singles' tournament. Channing is 16 and he was eligible to play in the junior division, but elected to try his luck with the older boys.

Lynham, Bortz, Vie.

Billy Contreras, who won the senior singles title, is paired with Jack Eckert as the Virginia Avenue entry in the senior division. Competition is expected from Sam Root and Charles Rainey, Chevy Chase (Root was a senior semifinalist), and from the team of Gene Owens and Dick Wilmer, Mitchell.

The Department of Playgrounds this year will inaugurate the ranking of players in the league and playground tournaments. Fifteen of the players will be ranked on their league and tournament performances and the rankings will be announced at the end of the playing season. It is planned to continue this ranking on an annual basis, Richard S. Tennyson, assistant supervisor of playgrounds, said.

Barney Welsh Defeated by Bob Ryan

Bows, 6-3, 6-2 in Eastern Grass Court Net Championship.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Frankie Parker, seeded No. 2, joined Frank Shields, No. 1 seeded player, today in the third round of the annual Eastern grass court championships in progress at the Westchester Country Club, Rye, N. Y. Parker, overcame a 4-2 lead in the first set to finally eliminate Ramsey Potts, of Memphis, Tex., 6—4, 6—1.

Barney Welsh, of Rockville, Md., and Washington, National Public Parks champion, fell before Robert (Lefty) Bryan, of Chattanooga, 6—3, 6—2, in another second-round match. Welsh had gained the second round with a 6—2, 8—6 win over Walter M. Hall, of New York.

Welsh paired with big Jess Millman, of Los Angeles, in the doubles to gain the third round with a 6—3, 6—3 victory over J. Daggett, of Yonkers, N. Y., and Melvin Partridge, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Shields, third-ranking player of the country, and Bitsy Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., were idle today, but Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., advanced after a hard-earned engagement with Ed Feibleman, of New York.

Wood Doubles Up.

Sidney Wood, unused Davis Cup squad member, due to arrive from England tomorrow, will have to play two matches then to catch up with the field and he will be pitted against Haines Stockton, first, and then, if he wins, Lieut. R. M. Watt.

A minor upset was registered when Sam Lee, of Berkeley, Calif., who looked so good at Southampton last week, was beaten in three sets by Sidney E. Davenport, of Forest Hills, N. Y., 0—6, 6—4, 6—4. Davenport played good enough tennis to promise Parker a keen match when they meet tomorrow.

In the women's championship Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, top-seeded with the default of Carolin Babcock, gained the second round with a 6—2, 6—4 conquest of Ellen Lehman, of Tarrytown, N. Y. Eleanor Janes Sharp, Los Angeles star, advanced with a 6—3, 6—2 conquest of pretty Josephine Gray, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and will meet Mrs. Agnes Lamme, her Seabright conqueror, tomorrow. Mrs. Lamme won, 6—1, 6—4, from Jean Burritt, of Toronto.

Indians Turn on Chisox, 4 to 2, To Win First Under New Pilot

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 5. — The Cleveland Indians played heads-up baseball for their new pilot, Steve O'Neill, today, defeating the Chicago White Sox, 4-2.

Joins Argument.

O'Neill rushed out and joined the argument while players for both sides surrounded the disputants. O'Neill did not occupy the position as first base coach where Walter Johnson used to direct the team. Instead, he sent Rookie Shortstop Roy Hughes to coach at first. The new manager occupied his usual position as coach at third.

Earl Averill's homer took him out of a batting slump that dated back to a firecracker accident, early in July. He set the pace with four straight hits. The Indians did all their scoring in the first and third. In the third, Galatzer was safe when Appling let his grounder go through him, Averill doubled against the right field wall, and Vosmik was purposely passed. Trosky singled to right, scoring Galatzer. Averill was out at the plate. Hale then dropped a double into left center, Vosmik scoring and Trosky going to third. Trosky scored a moment later as Kennedy deflected Knickerbocker's grounder to Appling, who threw out Knickerbocker.

Two Runs in the Seventh.

Chicago scored its two runs in the seventh on a single by Bonura, two walks, and a single by Sewell.

Reds Down Cubs, 3 to 1; Take Series

Chicago Only Two Games Ahead of Cards.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Aug. 5.—The Chicago Cubs dropped four games behind the league-leading Giants today, losing to Cincinnati, 3 to 1, in the last game they have scheduled here this season. The victory gave the embattled Reds three out of five for the series and left the Cubs only two games ahead of the third-place Cardinals.

Al Hollingsworth held the Cubs in check until the eighth, but was removed in that inning as Cavarretta walked, went to third on Stephenson's third single, and scored on Lindstrom's single with two out. Don Brennan relieved him with men on first and third, and stopped the Cubs the rest of the way. He fanned Chuck Klein in the ninth.

Manager Charley Grimm notified Umpire George Magerkurth that he would protest the victory because of a ruling on Herman's walk. The fourth pitch was a passed ball that bounced into the field seats, where a woman spectator picked it up. Herman was allowed to go to second after a lengthy argument.

Hoosier's Pride, 8-1 Shot, Comes From Behind to Win at Suffolk

Strong Ride Is Made in Stretch

Red Badge Fades After Early Lead, Runs 3d; Revonah Second.

By the Associated Press.

SUFFOLK DOWNS, Boston, Aug. 5.—Given a strong stretch ride by Bert Wimmer, Hoosier's Pride, gelded brown son of Blondin, galloped home a half length in front of the field in the Lenox, the one and one-sixteenth-mile route and feature of today's card.

The winner was an outside choice at 8 to 1 and returned $20 for $2.

Red Badge broke out of the gate with a terrific burst of speed and turned it on in the run down the back stretch. Until coming on to the turn he had a lead of five lengths on the field. There he started to fold and as the winner and the favored Revonah moved up on him, he quit entirely, but managed to hold command by a small margin until about a furlong out from home, where he surrendered.

Fifth From Gate.

Hoosier's Pride was placed fifth away from the gate and jumped into fourth place on the turn into the back stretch. He beat back the threat from Revonah on the stretch while taking the lead from the fading Red Badge and at the wire had a half-length margin.

Revonah, while not equal to the winner, held the place position by a three-length margin, while Red Badge was lucky to be in the money by a head margin on the fast-coming Boocap.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOHN TIO, $6.80, $4.40, $3.60; SAN RAFAEL, $7.00, $4.60; WISE KING, $5.60.

JOHN TIO displayed speed from the outset, met determined bids from WISE KING and SPITTENIMAGE, shook them off and, keeping a straight course after losing the command to SAN RAFAEL, continued gamely to the end. SAN RAFAEL outpaced early, moved up on the outside, assumed a slight lead after straightening out in the stretch, but bore out badly through the last furlong. WISE KING was prominently placed all the way. SPITTENIMAGE went into contention with a rush on the outside, only to weaken through the last three-sixteenths.

SECOND RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:08½. Winner, Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks' b. f. (3), by Abbots Nymph—Trickery. Trained by S. H. Fairbanks. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRICKLING, $15.20, $6.60, $4.40; CANTIE, $4.20, $3.60; TRANSPARENT, $15.00.

TRICKLING, prominently placed and under slight reserve early, moved up when called upon, disputed the command with JOE JAY, shook off the latter when reached in the stretch and, under ridden, barely lasted to hold CANTIE safe. The latter, on the outside throughout, moved up going down the back stretch, closed in determined fashion in the last furlong and was wearing the winner down at every stride at the end. TRANSPARENT dropped back in the run down the far side of the track, but came willingly in the closing three-sixteenths. JOE JAY, hard ridden in an effort to keep pace with the winner when challenged, faltered as the others run.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:38. Off at 3:38½. Winner, W. H. Gallagher's b. g. (5), by Vespasian—Placentia. Trained by W. L. Donovan. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 4-5.

TRIMALTA	113	5	9	10	10	10	10	Hernandez	48.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VESTED POWER, $7.40, $3.00, $2.80; PRYOR, $2.80, $2.40; COMMANDMAN, $3.20.

VESTED POWER, slow to begin and bothered when starting to move up on the inside leaving the back stretch, was taken to the outside, went up with a rush and, wearing down the leaders in the stretch, was going away at the end. PRYOR took command midway of the back stretch, was steadied along under slight restraint, but was unable to withstand the closing bid of the winner. COMMANDMAN was a forward factor all the way. CURRANTS never could reach the leaders. HARKY had good early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:09. Off at 4:09½. Winner, E. Craigie's blk. f. (4), by Zev—Granny. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RELATIVITY, $7.80, $3.80, $2.80; METTLE, $4.80, $3.00; LAST ROMANCE, $2.40.

RELATIVITY, under steadying restraint while following the pace established by METTLE, came to the outside of the pacemaker when reaching the stretch and, responding gamely to urging, went to the front and was slowly drawing out at the end. METTLE took command 'n the run to the first turn, opened up a good lead and, despite being hard ridden at the end, was unable to keep pace with the winner. LAST ROMANCE, unable to reach the leaders early, closed going gamely. SANDWRACK was going willingly at the end.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 4:44½. Winner, P. F. Rollins' br. g. (4), by Blondin—Grandess. Trained by E. J. Rollins. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:47 2-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:40 4-5, 1:47.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOOSIER'S PRIDE, $20.00, $8.80, $4.80; REVONAH, $4.00, $3.20; RED BADGE, $3.80.

HOOSIERS PRIDE, reserved off the pace for the first six furlongs, moved up on the outside entering the stretch and, closing stoutly, went to the front at the furlong pole and held REVONAH safe at the end. The latter, in nearest pursuit of the pace, was first to overtake the early pacemaker, but was unable to keep pace with the winner in the drive. RED BADGE drew away into a long lead, but stopped through the stretch run. BOOCAP, under reserve while following the pace, was unable to improve her position under pressure. PASS SHOT was outrun. STAR FIRE was never prominent.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:17. Off at 5:20½. Winner, O. L. Foster's ch. g. (3), by Polymelian—Lady Winsome. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $175; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEETER TOTTER, $11.00, $4.80, $4.60; MARFREE, $9.00, $6.90; SUN CLOTHING, $13.20.

TEETER TOTTER, hard hustled from the start, assumed a slight lead at the half-mile ground, was steadied along in front, withstood repeated bids from LEANA G. and TOM PROCTOR, shook them off and held MARFREE under hard riding. MARFREE went into contention with a rush nearing the far turn, responded gamely to hard urging, saved ground at the stretch turn, and closed willingly. SUN CLOTHING, under slight reserve early, swung to the outside in the stretch and closed with a rush, but was unable to withstand the closing bid of the winner. COMMANDMAN was a forward factor all the way. CURRANTS never could reach the leaders. HARKY had good early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:40. Off at 5:50. Winner, M. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANTERNO, $11.00, $4.60, $3.00; UNKIE TOM, $4.00, $2.80; TOP HIGH, $3.20.

SANTERNO was not hurried during the early stages, worked his way up steadily leaving the back stretch and, closing gamely, wore down the MORESORIS and held UNKIE TOM safe. The latter moved up on the outside down the back stretch, closed into the stretch and held on well, though bearing out through the stretch run. MORESORIS went into command soon after the start, was rated along under light restraint for the first six furlongs and tired in the last furlong. BIG SHOW, well up, was unable to keep pace in the closing test. JERRY S. had brief early speed.

General Motors Doubles Rate Of Dividends

Common Increased From 25 to 50 Cents; 25 Cents Extra Added.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Directors of General Motors Corporation today increased the regular quarterly dividend from 25 cents to 50 cents a share and declared an extra of 25 cents on the common stock, both payable September 12 to stock of record August 15.

The directors also ordered the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the $5 preferred stock, payable November 1 to stock of record October 7. Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president, had this to say in reference to the additional payments:

"As to the increase in the regular dividend rate from 25 cents to 50 cents a quarter, I might state that it has been a long standing policy of the board to establish a normal or regular rate of dividend as generous as possible and one that can be reasonably counted upon by the stockholders, while at the same time reflecting the financial condition of the corporation, the current rate of earnnigs, and the future trend so far as that can ever be discerned. The increased rate ordered at this time reflects the judgment of the board with respect to all these factors.

"It must be recognized, however, that with things as they are, there may be injected into the situation at any moment unusual circumstances that cannot be foreseen such as may entirely alter the case. In such an event the directors will not hesitate to reappraise their position and act accordingly.

"The regular dividend declared today represents a rate of disbursement two-thirds of that of the predepression period."

O. E. Hunt, R. H. Grant, N. D. Mooney and C. E. Wilson have been elected to the executive committee.

Crop Havoc Sends Wheat Prices Up

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—With Minneapolis wheat prices shooting straight for the zenith, the Chicago wheat market today developed unusual strength. An extreme gain of 5 cents a bushel for wheat at Minneapolis was attributed largely to indications of augmented crop damage both north and south of the Canadian border.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, 1¾@2¼ above Saturday's finish; September, 91⅞@92; corn, ⅝ off to ⅛ up; September, 77¼@77½; oats, ¾ to 1 cent advanced, and provisions showing 7 to 37 cents gain.

In New York the British pound sterling was ⅛ of a cent higher at $4.96⅜; French francs declined 00¼ of a cent to 6.63¼ cents and Holland guilders held at Saturday's final level at 67.92 cents.

In London the market was closed due to holiday and in Paris the dollar was very steady at 6.631 cents.

Institute Figures Steel Output 46%

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Steel ingot production for this week is scheduled at 46 per cent of capacity, compared with 44 per cent in the previous week, the American Iron and Steel Institute announced today. A month ago the industry was operating at 35.3 per cent and in the corresponding week of 1934 at 35.8 per cent.

Hogs at $11.35 Touch Highest In Five Years

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Hog-on-the-hoof prices hit a new seasonal high in Chicago live stock markets today.

A peak price of $11.35 per hundredweight was paid for prime, medium weight hogs. This is the highest since August 29, 1930, when $11.40 was paid for the same grade of hogs.

Trade in the sheep and lambs was also active today as the prediction came from Washington that reduced market supplies of fed lambs as well as improvement in consumer demand would bring about within the next ten months prices that would average higher than for the 1934-1935 season. The Department of Agriculture estimated that the 1935 sheep and lamb crop was the smallest since 1929.

Hogs in the Chicago market were selling from 10 to 20 cents higher than Friday, and fed lambs and yearlings were up to 25 cents higher. Selected lambs sold at a peak price today of $9 per hundredweight.

50 N. Y. Stocks Gain 28 Per Cent in Year

New York, Aug. 5.—The market value of 50 representative stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the week ended August 3 was $14,320,960,625, an increase of $279,508,000 or 1.99 per cent as compared with the market value of $14,041,452,625 at the close of the preceding week, according to a compilation by Paul H. Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, the same 50 stocks had a market value of $11,192,027,000, indicating an increase during the year of $3,128,933,625, or 27.95 per cent.

Stocks—A brisk rally in oils and continued firmness in utilities featured an active session with a trading volume of 1,739,010 shares. Passage of the new tax bill had no immediate effect on equities.

Bonds—Amusement and high high-grade issues continued last week's upgrade trend, while utilities and secondary rails were lower and governments neglected. The turnover receded to $8,102,000.

Curb—In the heaviest trading of the year, with a volume of 446,000 shares, price changes were generally upward. Oils and utilities were especially in demand.

Cotton—Trading was quiet and confined within a range of 5 to 10 points. October closed 3 points higher at 11.43.

Grains—Following a 5-cent rise in Minneapolis on crop damage reports Chicago wheat closed at 91⅞, up 2⅛ cents. Corn was off ½, at 77¼, and oats at 31 were ¾ higher.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.20 for spots and refined sugar at 5.10, for fine granulated. Futures were a point higher.

Coffee—Spots were firm, with Santos, No. 4, up ⅛ to 8, and Rio, No. 7, unchanged, at 6¼. Futures were steady.

Bar silver—The New York price was unchanged, at 67¾ cents.

Bar gold—No London quotation as the British markets were closed for the bank holiday.

Reduced Lamb Supply Seen as Drought Echo

A decrease in market supplies of lambs this fall and sustained prices for the meat as well as wool were predicted yesterday by the Department of Agriculture.

It said the supply of lambs for slaughter, curtailed because of the drought last year and a small crop this year, will be reduced until the 1936 lamb crop is ready for market.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Public Utility and Oil Company Shares Give Life to Market—Wheat and Hog Prices Make Broad Jump.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Aug. 5.—Strength in wheat and two sections of the stock market gave tone to what otherwise would have been just another dog day in securities and commodity trading. Bonds were quiet and steady. Turnover in stocks was around one and three-quarters million shares, with prices near the best at the close. September wheat closed 2⅛ cents higher at 91⅞ cents a bushel.

In stocks fully 40 per cent of the turnover took place in the oil and public utility groups. Public utilities have been active for several days, but the oils have done little for a month or more. Lively trading at higher prices, following publication of the Phillips Petroleum quarterly report, set off the oils. In addition to Phillips, Seaboard Oil rushed forward. Gains of more than a point were made by the Standards and Continental. Steels and rails took fractional losses and most other groups were uncertain to weak. Pullman dropped more than 2 points.

In the oils the heaviest dealings were in Commonwealth & Southern. The stock's volume of trading was the largest for any single issue in one session since February 6 of last year, when more than 375,000 shares of Commonwealth were transferred. The stock opened with a block of 15,000 shares.

Motor shares were fairly steady. Some of them had a good run in the late trading. General Motors was dull at the start, but later managed to work up to a new high price for the year, in anticipation of something at the quarterly dividend meeting scheduled to be held after the close of the market. Another stock to stand out was Corn Exchange Bank Trust. Cuban American Sugar common and preferred perked up. General Asphalt, General Baking preferred, Kaufmann Department, Macy and Maytag advanced. Steel was barely steady.

Confidence and Cheap Money.

London's bank holiday kept dealings in foreign exchanges quiet. Rates generally were steady. Money markets were unchanged and demand was fairly light. Signs still point to even lower rates, in spite of the fact that the season for rising demand for commercial money is here and speculation is growing. When that comes the low rates will begin to work. They haven't set the machinery in motion, but they will accelerate the pace.

In that connection some interesting comment is made by a writer for the bulletin of the Royal Bank of Canada. To a merchant, he shows a difference of 1 per cent in interest rates assumes relatively no importance in costs, but for any organization making capital investments to be amortized over a period of, say, 25 years, a reduction of 1 per cent in the interest rate is 250 times as important.

In the discussion it is pointed out that a difference of 2 per cent in long-term interest rates would mean the difference between success and flat failure in projects such as electrification of the British railways. The bulletin concludes: "Present or lower rates of interest on long-term borrowings will depend not so much (now) on pressure of the banks to invest their funds as on the confidence of the investing public is economic and financial policies of governments."

Rising Activity.

Some crumbs of comfort were picked up by security markets from the droppings by Congress. Refusal of the House to adopt the Administration's unsound proposals on a graduated corporation tax and its refusal to jack up taxes on dividends received by corporations were heartening to those who now are looking to Congress to protect business from the more radical of the Administration's policies.

The hot fact is that the security markets, and business confidence, began to get a toe hold at the time President Roosevelt did a positive act along sound lines—namely, veto the bonus bill; and they swung into their stride in earnest from the date, about two months ago, that the Supreme Court threw NRA into the ashcan. Business has, in other words, forged ahead in spite of certain cherished policies, and its action this summer, and that of the markets, encourages the hope that continued progress will be made, in spite of minor setbacks, unless and until Congress or the President does the wrong thing.

On the business side the news was favorable. The steel industry is enjoying its second spring, for this week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimates the operating rate will rise to 46 per cent of capacity, against 44 per cent last week. That will put the trade at the highest level since last March, and the best part of it all is that much of the business is coming from miscellaneous consumers. Corporation earnings statements now coming in belatedly were mostly favorable and the season of higher and extra dividends is approaching. Meanwhile, this week's account shows a 6 per cent rise in the use of bank checks over last week and a gain of 13 per cent over a year ago.

The one hundred and fifth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Potomac Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia was held in the office of the company, the Washington Loan & Trust Building, yesterday and the following directors were elected for the ensuing year beginning Augst 5:

A. A. Hoehling, Charles E. Hood, O. H. P. Johnson, James F. Mitchell, Thomas C. Moore, F. Norie-Miller, S. Norie-Miller, C. F. R. Ogilby, Alexander K. Phillips, Douglas R. Phillips, Frederick Richardson and George W. White.

The Potomac is the oldest and largest local fire insurance company in the District of Columbia, having been chartered by special act of Congress in March, 1831. Its charter papers were signed by President Andrew Jackson. It operates throughout the United States, doing a regular fire, automobile, inland and ocean marine business, and writes all of the modern covers that the usual fire insurance company is permitted to carry.

The company has a paid-in capital of $1,000,000 and surplus of $1,277,965.57, making total surplus to policyholders, $2,277,965.57.

In a review of the Nation-wide activities of the company, presented at the meeting, it was stated that steady gains had been made to surplus and assets.

Note Bids Asked By Pennsylvania

New York, Aug. 5.—Banks and investment houses have been invited by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to enter bids on August 13 for $50,000,000 notes maturing in eighteen months, to be issued in anticipation taxes imposed for public relief. Bidders may either quote a discount, with no interest to be paid on the notes, or may name a coupon rate not in excess of 4½ per cent.

While the term of the issue and the high rate limitation would seem at first glance to insure success of the offering, there are some extraordinary features which made bankers today express doubt as to whether they would participate in the sale. In the first place, it was pointed out, the notes will not be a general obligation of the Commonwealth. They will be issued in anticipation of new taxes allocated for relief purposes and estimated to yield about $120,000,000 a year.

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—The board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana today voted a dividend of 25 cents per share of common stock, payable September 5 to stockholders of record August 16.

Auto Sales Jump 46.9% in a Year

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—R. L. Polk & Co. estimate new passenger car registrations in the United States during July at about 285,000 units, compared with 280,360 in June. This brought the total for the first six months to 1,460,940 units, compared with 995,121 in the first half of 1934, an increase of 46.9 per cent.

Phillips Oil Net Is Twice 1934 Half Year

New York, Aug. 5.—Reporting the largest gross income and total volume of business for any like period in its history, the Phillips Petroleum Co., in its half-year statement made public today, shows gross income of $42,294,612, compared with $38,265,473 for the first six months of 1934.

Net profit for the period amounted to $5,019,975 after expenses, interest, taxes and other charges. This is equivalent to $1.21 a share on the outstanding stock. In the same six months of last year the net profit, after similar deductions, was $2,510,158, or 60 cents a share.

In his report, Frank Phillips, president, said:

"For more than a year your company has been making a substantial quantity of motor fuel by polymerization, a new process, which transforms into motor fuel of the highest quality products wasted under other processes as being too light for motor fuel purposes. This process, patents on which are owned by the company, was developed by our technical staff, has been thoroughly demonstrated as a practical success, and effects both an important improvement in the quality of our motor fuel and a very substantial lowering of our costs. The quantity of motor fuel made by polymerization will be rapidly increased, with corresponding benefits. This is an outstanding accomplishment of major importance."

The average French combing and better staple 64s and finer territory wools have in recent sales comprised the greater portion of the total than was the case a week or more ago.

Morgan Sells Maracaibo Oil Shareholdings

Sloan and Briggs Reduce Ownership in Their Corporations.

By the Associated Press.

Substantial sales by officials and directors of stock in their own corporations were disclosed yesterday in a securities commission report covering June transactions.

Here and there a heavy purchase was listed. Sewell L. Avery, president, increased his common holdings in Montgomery & Ward to 98,000 shares by acquiring 48,000 in June. But selling dominated the report which directors and officials must make on every change in their holdings.

J. P. Morgan & Co. disposed of 61,300 shares of Maracaibo Oil Exploration Co., after having sold a like block in May, to leave the firm with none of these shares.

Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, sold 5,000 National Biscuit Co. to reduce his personal holdings to 27,500 shares.

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., head of General Motors Corporation, sold 1,320 of the company's 5 per cent cumulative preferred in June. John J. Raskob, through a liquidating dividend, received 10,540 shares and bought 6,000 shares of the company's common.

H. Hobart Porter, New York, officer of American Waterworks & Electric Co., sold 7,900 of his company's common in June, reducing his holdings to 16,950. Seton Porter, American Waterworks director, sold a holding company interest of 26,350 shares.

Stephen F. Briggs, Detroit, Briggs & Stratton Corporation, reduced his holdings from 32,550 to 27,250 shares in the four month period ended June. Carle C. Conway, New York, bought 900 shares of Continental Can Co. common in June after selling 10,125 in March.

Samuel Zemurray, New Orleans, sold 5,000 shares of United Fruit Co. common in June to leave his holdings at 90,871.

William C. Dickerman, United Gas Improvement Co., sold 4,500 U. G. I. common in June. W. R. Timken, Timken Roller Bearing Co., sold 5,373 common in June after May sales of 15,600. Giles W. Mead, New York, sold 9,675 shares of Union Carbide & Carbon Co. in June.

Union Pacific Income Drops in Half Year

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Union Pacific Railroad system reports net income for the six months ended June 30 at $3,496,432, after taxes and charges, as reduced from $6,507,256 in the first half of 1934.

This is equal to 68 cents a share on 2,222,925 shares of common stock and compares with $2.03 a common share in the first half of 1934.

Cotton Loans Repaid.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The repayment of AAA cotton pool loans, which New York City banks decided not to renew on July 31, was understood in banking circles to have been principally responsible for the sharp drop of $51,000,000 in "other" loans of reporting member banks in New York City in the week ended July 31.

T. L. Barnette Services Held In Maryland

By the Associated Press.

Princess Anne, Md., Aug. 5.—The funeral of Thomas L. Barnette, prominent Somerset County farmer and lumberman, was held here today with his fellow vestrymen of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church acting as pallbearers.

The service was conducted by the Rev. William Woodford, a life-long friend and neighbor of the deceased. Burial was in the family plot in the Grace Episcopal Church yard.

Barnette was born at the ancestral home near Princess Anne on June 22, 1868, the son of the late John W. and Sarah Jane Martin Barnette. A great-grandfather was William Steward, moderator of the general Presbyterian synod in 1733.

He was well-known throughout the lower Eastern Shore for his sale of lumber products, piling and fish-pound poles. At one time he operated stores in Oriole, Somerset County, and Laurel, Del.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Maud Cannon, of Monie; one daughter, Miss S. Mildred Barnette; one son, John T. C. Barnette, of Princess Anne; a sister, Mrs. D. Herbert Williams, of Salisbury, and two brothers, John S. Barnette, of Pleasantville, N. J., and Paul M. Barnette, of Laurel.

The Rev. Lewis P. Bransford.

Fund May Relieve Hospital Crowding

New Allotments Seen as Aid in Maryland.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 5.—Hope that crowded conditions in State hospitals would be eased by his recommended allotments from the half-million dollar "cushion fund" was expressed today by W. H. Blakeman, State budget officer.

Blakeman's recommendations will be presented to the board of public works for final approval at a three-day meeting on the State yacht Dupont this week-end. His recommended allotments totaled $470,000, leaving only $30,000 as contingent fund for the rest of the fiscal year.

The number of inmates of State institutions has been increasing steadily for the last several years. The gain is from 150 to 200 white persons and about 100 Negroes per year.

Truck License War To End, Is Promise

W. Va. Road Head Says States Reach Agreements.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Members of the West Virginia Motor Truck Association in its annual convention here over the week-end were assured that former reciprocal privileges with repect to trucks and trailers operated for hire will soon be fully restored, thus ending the truck war which began July 1, between several States.

"Verbal agreements have been reached with Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, restoring reciprocal privileges existing prior to July 1, Mortimer W. Smith, acting State road commissioner, told the convention.

Smith added "similar agreements will be made as soon as possible with the District of Columbia, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina and other States which do not impose fees in addition to registration charges on West Virginia trucks."

REPLIES to "Poor and Broke, But a Loyal American" are pouring in from indignant Government employes. Most of them feel that "PBLA" deserves an explanation rather than a sharp reply.

BAKER.

Here is today's best answer to "PBLA:"

"Dear Mr. Baker:

"... 'Poor and Broke' does not deserve a sharp reply, but an explanation that may clear up her rather confused mental processes.

"In the first place, the word 'grateful' is entirely out of place in connection with the relations between Uncle Sam and his employes, except in the case of those employed as an act of charity. The old gentleman in question hires people to work for him, not as a personal favor, but because the work has to be done.

"He needs them. If he allows a fair day's pay for a fair day's work, certainly there is no reason why he should be 'grateful' to them. If they give a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, there is no reason why they should be 'grateful' to him. I entered the classified service in 1905, as the result of a rigid competitive examination. I was engaged because a person was needed to fill a certain position. It was a business transaction, and no gratitude was expected on either side.

"Now, as to the 'deserving' persons without a job. I have held some 14 or 15 positions in my life, but I never was hired because I was a so-called deserving person. I had to prove that I could do the work. I never heard of a corporation's hiring a person because he was 'deserving' in the vague and general sense in which the word is used. There were just two reasons: The corporation in question needed someone to fill a vacancy, and the person who got the job was found to be able to do the work.

Californians in Government service are invited to join the California State Society in a moonlight cruise down the Potomac August 13. Among those arranging the outing are Mrs. Gertrude Scott, Veterans' Administration; Maj. Horace T. Jones, Veterans' Administration; Walter McIntosh, NRA, and Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper, Veterans' Administration.

If credence can be placed in a letter just received by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the crime problem is a thing of the past. The individual who, according to his own admissions, has single-handedly accomplished this remarkable feat, writes:

"Under my secret formula known as the 'Snake System of Detective Work,' I have been able in the last three weeks to detect crimes that the best and most able sleuths had to abandon as hopeless cases. Through this system I'll guarantee that you will be able to detect any and all crimes. There is not a criminal act of any nature but what can be ran down through it."

Retirement Fund Payments.

Q.—In case of death of a Civil Service employe, who receives the retirement money due him?

P. O. (F).

A.—The Amendatory Civil Service Retirement Act approved June 22, 1934, effective September 1, 1934, provides for settlement of claims for amount standing to the credit of a deceased annuitant or employe in the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund, at death, as follows:

First, to the beneficiary or beneficiaries designated in writing by the annuitant or employe and recorded on his individual account.

Second (if there be no such beneficiary), to the duly appointed executor or administrator of the estate.

Third (if there be no such beneficiary or executor or administrator), payment may be made, after 30 days from the date of death of the annuitant or employe, to such person or persons as may appear in the judgment of the Civil Service Commission to be legally entitled thereto, and such payment shall be a bar to recovery by any other person.

This change in the law appears to simplify payment to a beneficiary of the amount in the retirement fund to the credit of a deceased employe, and also removes the restriction limiting to $1,000 that may be paid to the heirs or distributees without requiring the appointment of an administrator.

On The Air Today

Three expressions have come to this desk day after day since The Sunday Post program preference poll was started. First, many listeners have written "thanks for giving us this opportunity to express ourselves;" second, "be sure to have another poll late in the fall or early winter," and third, "give us an opportunity later to express preferences on types of programs as well as specific programs on the air."

To which I say: Many thanks for your interest; there will be another poll in the early winter, and every one certainly will have the opportunity of listing his preference on types as well as specific programs.

And I believe it will be interesting also to include one additional question: What is your pet aversion in radio?

* * * *

"May One Man's Family never leave the air. . . . Waring's Pennsylvanians were better—much better—before the advent of the 'mighty gas pipe organ.' . . . Favorite of all programs were the condensed operas given last winter under direction of Deems Taylor. . . . Satisfied with everything on the air. . . . Nothing so much admired as the Goldbergs for artistic realism and influence.

* * * *

"Hollywood Hotel is my idea of a perfect program . . . Please run the female barytones off the air . . . Postilion is an important 'must' like eating and sleeping . . . Al Jolson is the worst, aside from Ed Wynne . . . After Godfrey there is no more . . . One Man's Family and Arthur Godfrey should be taken off the radio . . . I miss Moonshine and Honeysuckle . . . We like political speeches and prize fights . . . Why not take a poll of pet abominations, too . . . We want no beer and no jazz.

* * * *

"At last Lanny Ross is getting a chance to show he really is the best performer on the air . . . Can't imagine what has happened to the Ray Noble fans . . . 15-minute programs not worth listening to—too much advertising . . . There should be more Hawaiian music on the air . . . Easy Aces should be on at night so more people could hear them."

* * * *

And so it goes. One man's priceless entertainment usually turns out to be another's pet irritation. Note particularly the contrary views on "One Man's Family" and Godfrey. Doubtless the latter is in one of the most favorable positions radio can set up. His audience both likes and dislikes his air personality, usually with a vengeance. To like or dislike anything with enthusiasm, one must be familiar with it. And not the least interesting of the poll thus far is an off-the-record luncheon table poll of last week in which not one of seven persons had ever listened to "One Man's Family," which leads the field by a wide margin.

Dorothy Mackaill, of the films, will be N. T. G.'s star attraction tonight, WMAL, at 8. Also presented will be Madeline Killeen, who used to dance in an N. T. G. chorus with Barbara Stanwyck and Ruby Keeler . . . Ted Weems' Orchestra is back on the air, WJSV, at 11:30 p. m. . . . following half an hour of Seattle Symphony direct from the San Diego Exposition.

* * * *

Representative Frank L. Kloeb speaks on "Neutrality," WMAL, at 8:30 and Representative Louis Ludlow on "Should People Vote On War," WOL, at 8 . . . WOL airs the O'Mahony-Savoldi grunt-and-groan from Griffith Stadium, at 10 . . . Stoopnagle and Budd bear down on "The Wreck of the Hesperus" with the Warings, WJSV, at 8:30 . . . The Music Guild presents Robert Schmitz, French pianist, with the Roth Quartet, WRC, 12:45 p. m.

Another for music lovers: WRC carries a program of works of Luigi Boccherini, direct from Turin, Italy, at 3 p. m.

In a statement the federation said: "It is the opinion that the bill will fill the place in economic and industrial policies set aside by the Supreme Court when it held the national recovery act unconstitutional. It is confident that when the public is informed of the constructive and practical features of this act that public opinion will rally to its support. It is the purpose of the American Federation of Labor to appeal to Congress to enact the O'Mahoney Federal corporation licensing act into law."

IT took our new refinery and modern processes to give you a brand new and modern type of gasoline—"AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas—different from and superior to any regular gasoline on the market. It is produced from a 100% Pure Petroleum Base, is not acid-treated, and does not require the addition of any of the chemicals used in the average regular gasoline of today.

Then this 100% pure petroleum base gasoline is so conditioned—through our modern processes at our new refinery—that it does things no other regular gasoline can do. Here they are!

GUARANTEED FEATURES!

"AIR-CONDITIONED": Conditioned at refinery to counteract erratic engine tendencies caused by outside temperature and humidity changes. This guarantees uniform and efficient motor performance in any weather.

HIGHER ANTI-KNOCK: By new processes—without acid treatment—in the world's most modern refinery, we obtain naturally from 100% Pure Petroleum Base a higher anti-knock value than other regular gasolines get artificially by the addition of chemicals to bring up anti-knock alone.

MORE MILES: Greater net power and higher anti-knock rating net more miles to the gallon than any other regular gasoline.

"AIR-CONDITION" Your Motor!

Stop at any Yellow and Black American Gas Pump and fill up your tank with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Then keep your car "air-conditioned" with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Even though it costs us more to produce, it is being sold at regular gas price from Maine to Florida and inland by thousands of American dealers and stations.
